Tennessee's War of the Roses.

With the election of Benjamin Harrison Taylor of Johnson City to represent Tennessee democracy as elector for the state at large in the coming presidential campaign, Tennessee seems destined for another "War of the Roses," which will be very similar to that of 20 years ago, when the late United States senator, Bob Taylor, and his brother, Alfred, were the opposing candidates for governor of Tennessee. The two brothers stumped the state in joint discussions of the issues, Bob Taylor as a democrat and Alf as a republican. Bob adopted the white rose as his emblem, while Alf adopted the red rose. Their respective followers wore roses at the political meetings held throughout the state. Benjamin Harrison Taylor, a young man, is a son of Alfred A. Taylor, and a nephew of the late Senator Bob Taylor. His father, Alfred Taylor, has been chosen as republican elector for the state at large. Since it is customary for the opposing electors to canvass the state in joint discussions, it is practically certain that Alf Taylor and his son will meet each other upon the stump in all counties of the state during the approaching national campaign. In this event, Tennessee is destined to experience the second "War of the Roses."

SCOTCH PLAINS, N. J.—Arthur C. Ruzicka, a rose specialist, has leased a range of greenhouses here.

FREMONT, NEB.—One house, 32 by 80 feet, which will be devoted to roses has been added to the range of Greene's Greenhouses.

PORTLAND, ME.—Dennett, The Florist, has purchased the Portland Flower Store and will operate it in addition to his other establishment.

CHEYENNE, WYO.—The Swayger Greenhouses have been purchased by G. M. Couch and wife, who will conduct a general florist business.

VISITED NEW YORK: A. M. Van der Schoot, representing R. Van der Schoot & Son, Hillegom, Holland.

THE item of fir tree seeds has been stricken out of the agricultural appropriations bill in the senate.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Lester L. Morse, fully restored in health, is expected home from Honolulu this week.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, of Flowerfield, L. I., N. Y., reports his mail order business about 26 per cent better than last year's.

L. L. MAY, of St. Paul, Minn., is believed to be progressing favorably at the Mt. Sinai hospital, Milwaukee, Wis. Mrs. May is with him.

THE freesia crop is reported looking poorly in California, as there was no rain during April and May. This has not been a good growing season.

BLUE GRASS seed estimates of new crop from the Missouri district indicate a fair average yield, while Kentucky growers predict only about half a crop. Prices are up about two cents per pound.

H. A. NALDRETT will represent Kelway & Son, Langport, Somerset, Eng., in America this season, his address from July 1 being care of Thos. Meadows & Co., 8-10 Bridge street, Battery Park, New York.

HOWARD M. EARL, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., who passed through Chicago May 27, enroute to his firm's seed farms at Lompoc, Calif., says this has been a banner season for the house, the business exceeding that of any previous year, notwithstanding the low records of the early months, in March almost a slump.

SHENANDOAH, IA.—Regarding the business of 1916 the Henry Field Seed Co. writes as follows May 27: "Business has been fine. We show a big gain over last year. Total number of orders for the season will be about 135,000 against 106,000 last year, or a gain of nearly 30 per cent. The average size of the order is also a little larger than last year, being about $3.15 per order. We did not show much gain in January and February over the same months last year, but showed very heavy gains in March and good gains in April and May. Our catalogue efficiency or number of orders to each 100 catalogues stands the same as last year, at about 48 per cent. We hoped to reach 50 per cent this year, but failed to make it. The percentage of profit will run about the same this year as last, very satisfactory."

A Call for Better Seed.

Market gardeners are by no means satisfied with present conditions in the seed trade. Experience has taught them that satisfactory returns in any individual culture is very dependent upon the varietal quality of the seed used. They no longer regard mere viability as the only, or even the most important, factor determining the value of seed, neither are they constantly looking for some new and wonderful variety. They are calling loudly for seed of proven varieties and stocks which shall show greater uniformity not only in all the plants in a single culture, but in those of other cultures in which seed of the same variety was used, and are demanding that seed bought under the same name in different years, or even from different seedsmen, shall be practically identical in varietal character. On the other hand, most seedsmen are now growing less and less of their own stock, depending more and more upon jobbers, wholesalers, or growers, who in turn get their supply from widely scattered locations, so that not unfrequently, the seedsman is not certain whether the stock he handles was grown in France, Germany, Australia, Ontario, Idaho, Washington, or California, or is a mixture from them all. He is careful to buy only of reliable dealers, and if he makes sure by careful trial that each lot is fairly viable, feels that he has done his full duty to his customers.

The Late Frank A. Stecher.

The more conscientious wholesaler may have extensive trial grounds where he tries to keep a record of the varietal quality of stocks from different sources, but gives it little attention, being fully occupied in the executive work of his increasing business.

The retailer is not in position to gain personal knowledge of varietal quality and purity, and devotes his time to securing attractive new sorts. This is evidently an undesirable condition in the trade, and we think it is largely due to the surf from the receding tide of the Burbankism which has swept over the horticultural world.

In proportion to his experience the actual grower of vegetables for market, shuts eyes and ears to the seductive claims of catalogues and salesmen of the superlative merit of some new sort and even to lower prices and is looking for better bred stocks of a few old sorts of proven merit. Experience has demonstrated the practicability of developing stocks of older sorts which will show higher and far more uniform development of the qualities fitting it for special cultural and market conditions.

The cry from garden and farm is not for new sorts, but for better bred strains of those of proven merit, and the most successful seedsmen of the future will be those who heed the call.

WILL W. TRACY.

Wholesale Seedsmen's League.

A meeting of the directors of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League was held at the Hardware club, New York, May 25, with the following in attendance: F. W. Bruggerhoff, of J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York; Charles H. Breck, of Jos. Breck & Sons Corp., Boston, Mass.; S. F. Willard, of Comstock, Ferre & Co., Wethersfield, Conn.; B. Landreth, of the David Landreth Seed Co., Bristol, Pa.; J. L. Hunt, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.; Lem W. Bowen, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.; H. W. Wood, of T. W. Woods & Sons, Richmond, Va.; Howard M. Earl, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Routine business was transacted, but the conditions now prevailing in Europe render it impossible to forecast the future of the seed trade in this country.

Holland-American Freight Conditions.

The latest regulations require that freight on Holland-American shipments be paid in advance. If the freight charges are made collectible at destination, the merchant remains responsible for this payment regardless of condition of merchandise upon arrival or entire non-arrival through seizure or otherwise. The carrier is exempt from receiving and loading all shipments under the new contract.

New York Seed Trade.

The seed trade for the season now about to close has turned out better than was expected at the end of April. F. W. Bruggerhoff, of J. M. Thorburn & Co., says it is difficult to compare conditions with those of other years because of the unusual situation. This firm's business throughout May was excellent. Patrick O'Mara, of Peter Henderson & Co., states that his firm had better business in May of this year than last, the counter trade having improved materially over that of April. He can not foresee results, however, if the war in Europe continues. Mr. O'Mara will leave June 7 for a sea voyage to New Orleans to be absent two weeks, returning by the same route.

At the store of S. D. Woodruff & Sons, whose trade is more wholesale than retail, it was stated that their business for May, in both departments, was better than in former years. Their business for March and April was largely in filling contracts made in 1915. This firm shipped 250 barrels of Maine seed potatoes during the past week.

W. E. Marshall & Co., whose trade is mainly private, report business better than in former years.

Iowa Seed Dealers' Association.

The Iowa Seed Dealers' Association convention will be held at the Savery hotel, Des Moines, Ia., June 7-8. June 7 will be the business day and the meeting promises to be more largely attended than any previous gathering. A splendid programme is being arranged and the association is sending invitations to all Iowa seed dealers and shippers this year to come in and get acquainted and possibly become members if they desire.

A. M. ELDRIDGE, Sec'y.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. — The Henry F. Michell Co. reports business this season has been equal to normal in all departments, and that they have been very busy during the past few weeks. —The Robt. Buist Co. says business has been in every way equal to that of last season, with prices somewhat better.

Texas Bermuda Onion Crop.

Reports received in the bureau of crop estimates, United States department of agriculture, indicate that the total production of onions in Texas will be about 4,650 carloads of 460 bushels each. On March 7, 1916, the bureau issued a report as of March 1 on the Texas onion crop, estimating the acreage at 10,657 acres, the condition at 65.6 per cent of a normal crop, and the yield per acre at 230 bushels, indicating a total yield of 5,328 cars of 460 bushels each. On April 4 a revised report was issued, and it appearing that the acreage in two counties had been over-estimated, owing to a lack of information as to methods of planting, and that a reduction of 200 acres seemed advisable in one county, such reductions were made. The revised acreage was stated to be 10,057 acres, the condition 55 per cent, a reduction of 10.6 points, forecasting a yield per acre of 192.5 bushels, the equivalent of 4,200 cars of 460 bushels each. The demand for a further revision was so persistent that a special onion condition schedule was sent into Texas to be returned on April 15, and on April 20 a revised condition report was issued, the condition estimated at 58 per cent of a normal crop, an increase of 3 points over April 1, forecasting a yield per acre of 203 bushels, the equivalent of 4,438 cars of 460 bushels each.

Watermelon Wilt Disease.

A serious disease of watermelon, known as the wilt, has for many years been prevalent in the southern states and has now extended westward to the Pacific coast, having been reported from Oklahoma, Iowa, Indiana, Missouri, Arizona, Texas, California, and Oregon. In many sections the disease is a serious handicap, not only by destroying the growing crop, but also by preventing the successful culture of melons upon the same field again in succeeding years.

Watermelon wilt is caused by a fungus which lives in the soil and enters the roots, plugging up the water-carrying vessels and preventing the rise of moisture. The leaves of affected plants first droop, then rapidly wilt and soon die, the runner dying with them. Upon cutting the main tap root across near the surface of the ground it will be found to present a yellow color in the wood, making a distinct contrast with the white color of the healthy plant. This yellowing, together with the wilted appearance of the vine, makes the identification of the disease easily possible.

There is nothing that can be done to save a field of melons when once attacked by the wilt, but the disease may be avoided by the following precautions:

1. In infected districts, watermelons should never be planted on land where watermelons have been grown within ten or twelve years, more or less, depending on soil conditions, as experiments have shown that the fungus causing the disease is able to live a long period in the ground.

2. Stable manure which has become infected by the use of melon hay or refuse containing melon vines should never be applied to the watermelon crop, or to land where it is desired to plant watermelons later.

3. Fields which have received the drainage water from infected fields must be considered and treated as if infected. This means that the farmer having two fields, one of which is on higher ground than the other, should plant the lower field first.

4. As far as possible live stock should be prevented from passing from infected to uninfected fields.

5. Breed resistant varieties. It has been demonstrated by the department of agriculture that varieties resistant to wilt can be bred, and it will be worth while for interested localities to have wilt-resistant varieties bred, adapted to their conditions.

Canned and Dried Fruits and Vegetable.

A preliminary statement of the general results of the 1914 census of manufacturers for the canning and drying of fruits and vegetables has been issued by Director Sam L. Rogers, of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. It consists of a detailed statement of the value of canned and dried fruits and vegetables packed during the years 1909 and 1914, in the United States as a whole, prepared under the direction of William M. Steuart, chief statistician for manufactures. The figures are preliminary and subject to such change and correction as may become necessary upon further examination of the original reports.

Returns were received from 3,199 establishments engaged in the industry in 1914, the products of which for that year were valued at $158,015,893. The products reported for 1909 were valued at $96,943,273. The number of establishments in 1914 thus exceeded the number reported for 1909 by 337, or 11.8 per cent; while the value increased by $61,072,620, or 63 per cent.

The value of canned vegetables increased from $53,307,791 in 1909 to $84,413,667 in 1914, or 58.3 per cent; of canned soups, from $2,588,834 to $7,877,057, or 204.3 per cent; of canned fruits, from $12,672,900 to $24,897,174, or 96.5 per cent; and of dried fruits, from $22,287,522 to $34,771,912, or 56 per cent. The value of canned soups does not include the product of slaughtering establishments.

Of the total number of establishments reported for 1914, 97 were engaged primarily in other industries but packed vegetables and fruits to the value of $8,839,837, as subsidiary products; and in 1909, 73 similar establishments packed vegetables and fruits valued at $4,964,806.

American Association of Nurserymen.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;

Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 28-30, 1916.

LOUISVILLE, KY. — Dutch nursery stock, due here in April, is arriving about 45 days late, in some cases in such poor condition that it is not worth duty and freight charges.

SHERMAN, TEX.—The John S. Kerr Nursery Co. has been incorporated with the following officers: John S. Kerr, president and manager; W. L. Hay, vice-president; D. S. Thompson, treasurer.

BULLETIN 351, entitled, "The Terrapin Scale; an Important Insect Enemy of Peach Orchards", containing 96 pages with illustrations, has been issued by the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

LAKE CITY, MINN.—The Jewell Nursery Co. will follow its usual custom and conduct a school of salesmanship for its employes, after the close of a very busy season. A dozen or more salesmen of the company will spend two weeks in practical study of the stock, including field work.

Minnesota Nursery Laws Mis-Interpreted.

A mistaken idea exists among some Minnesota nursery stock dealers and florists that they are required by the Minnesota law to purchase their supplies from Minnesota nurseries and not from nurseries or dealers in other states. This impression is epitomized by the prominently displayed paragraph on the letter-head of a Minnesota nurseryman, reading:

"Nurserymen have to furnish their customers with nursery stock from a bona fide inspected Minnesota nursery, according to law, passed by the state legislature at the 1913 session."

If this were true, the provision would clearly be unconstitutional as a discrimination against stock grown in other states (In re Schechter, 63 Fed. Rep. 695; Minn. v. Barber, 136 U. S. 313, 322). The Minnesota legislature in 1915 amended the law of 1913, section 7, so that the Minnesota dealer or florist can, by filing an affidavit that he will buy and sell only stock duly inspected by an official state inspector (not necessarily a Minnesota inspector), and filing with the state entomologist a list of all sources of stock, sell his stock freely.

CURTIS NYE SMITH,
Counsellor at Law.

Bush Honeysuckles:

For northern gardens there are no more beautiful shrubs than some of the bush honeysuckles, for in early spring they are covered with myriads of yellow, white, rose-colored or red flowers and in summer or autumn with lustrous, usually scarlet fruits. Many of these shrubs are able to show their greatest beauty in this climate, but this can be obtained only by planting them in rich soil and with sufficient space for growth in all directions. In poor soil and when crowded by other plants they are usually miserable objects. The large-growing kinds, like L. tatarica, L. bella and L. notha, should be planted as isolated specimens at least 20 feet from any other plant. L. Morrowii, a plant of the Amoor region, requires even more space for its lowest branches which cling close to the ground and naturally spread over a great area. This shrub has gray-green foliage, comparatively large white flowers and bright red fruits. Like many other bush honeysuckles, L. Morrowii hybridizes easily with other species, and most of the plants raised from seeds sold by nurserymen are hybrids of that species with L. tatarica and are of little value for those who want plants with the peculiar habit of L. Morrowii. Among vigorous growing plants in this group attention is called to two hybrids of L. Korolkowii in the sub-collection, L. amoena and L. Arnoldiana. These have gray-green foliage and small, bright pink, very attractive flowers. L. chrysantha from eastern Siberia, with large yellow flowers, is also a conspicuous object at this time. There is a large collection of these bush honeysuckles in the general shrub collection, and plants of a few of the larger-growing kinds have been planted in the grass border on the right-hand side of the Bussey Hill road, opposite the lilac collection to show how these plants can develop when sufficient room for free growth is given to them.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 27, 1916.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—A new floral hall, a solid cement structure, 60x100 feet, will be erected at the fair grounds this spring.

Use The Garland Cast Iron Gutter When You Build

It has made good in hundreds of large ranges throughout the country and is recognized by all the growers who have used it as the best in the field. Gutters that were used for twenty years in old houses were found to be practically as good as new and when the other material was thrown on the rubbish heap the Garland Cast Iron Gutters were set aside to be used in the new range. Absolutely the best and safest Gutter to use. It costs no more and lasts a life time. Get in touch with us whenever you need anything in Greenhouse Materials. Always remember that we make the greenhouse complete and that it pays to get our sketches and estimates before you build.

Jersey City, N. J.

The Lincoln Flower Shop is a retail enterprise recently started by G. H. Dahlinger at 8 Lincoln street. He was for seven years, with A. Stehle & Son, 444 Central avenue. He is a clever and active young man and has a good store.

Mrs. Henrietta Haas has a nice store at 417 Palisade avenue and is doing a good business. She is one of the earliest morning buyers in the New York wholesale district.

The ladies of Jersey City seem to take kindly to the retail business. Beside Mrs. Haas, there are May F. Kendall, Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. A. Seely and Miss M. O'Driscoll, all of whom have their own stores.

E. Bonnet, formerly of the Bonnet Flower Shop, who some time ago sold out to Fred. Dressel, Jr., is again in business. A. F. F.

Too Conscientious.

"That policeman is too conscientious to be a gardener."

"What do you mean?"

"He arrested the growth of a vine on his house when he found it climbing through a window."

Same Everywhere.

A suggestion by a gardening specialist from Washington that Pittsburgh should have a twelve-month school year is greeted with deafening silence by the rising generation.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

DOVER, N. H.—C. L. Howe has sold out the Portland Flower Shop.

STAMFORD, CONN.—Woundy & Leonard have opened an office at 1 North Front street and will make a specialty of landscape gardening.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Freecias.

A crop of freecias, or a few plants in pots in bloom, at Christmas is a valuable asset on that holiday. In order to have them in bloom at that time the bulbs should be planted by July 1. Select the large strong bulbs, and by careful inspection many will be found on which the root eyes are beginning to swell. These will make the earliest blooming plants, and this selecting will produce plants that will all bloom at the same time. The bulbs should be planted in a good soil enriched with well rotted manure, but no fresh manure; it is a well understood principle that bulbs of all kinds do not grow well in soil full of fresh manure. Eight to ten large bulbs in a 6-inch pot will give the best results. The pots should be well watered and placed in a dark, cool place until the shoots appear above the ground, when they should be given a light location. As soon as the growths get tall enough they should be staked and tied. By continual early selection of the bulbs, and keeping the earliest separate, an early strain can be assured.

Calceolarias.

A plant that always attracts attention and is as decorative as cineraria or other plants of that kind, and yet but little grown, is the calceolaria. The culture is very similar to that of the cineraria and is fully as easy. The seeds should be sown at once and shaded until they have produced one or two leaves when the shade should be made lighter. As soon as large enough they should be potted into small pots and shifted along into larger sizes as fast as is required. They should, as soon as well established, be given a light, airy location not shady enough for them to become drawn, but if in the full sunlight will have to be watched closely that they do not get dry. They will require cool quarters during the winter, if nice stocky plants are desired, and under this treatment fine 6-inch pot plants may be had in bloom in early spring that will surely attract attention. For the last potting a good rich soil will be required and when they begin to bloom watering with liquid manure will be beneficial. Like the cineraria they are quickly ruined by aphid and constant fumigation will be necessary. Many growers stand the plants on tobacco stems which are renewed as the strength is lost.

Oleanders.

A plant that does not receive the attention that it should is the oleander. While there probably would not be a large demand for this plant, yet it is an old time favorite, and well grown specimens in bloom are a valuable addition to a porch or lawn. They are too often so sadly neglected that they get unshapely and far from being an ornament, but a little attention to trimming them into shape after they get through blooming will keep them in good condition. They can be wintered in any cool quarters, and if brought into the heat and light in June and July and a valuable decoratively spring will be full of bloom in five plants. The cuttings root easily and at any time when the plant is in growth, and grow very rapidly for a hard-wooded plant. Any florist carrying a line of assorted stock should include a few of these in the variety which he cultivates. The only insect which troubles them is the mealy bug, but a good frequent hard syringing will soon dislodge them.

Nephrolepis.

Probably no plant that the florist grows gives more returns for the labor spent in its culture or the space that it occupies than the Boston fern and its various sports. The old Boston is still, however, the easiest to handle and grow. The plants should be repotted every year, and with good treatment are sure of making nice plants. Any plants that are in poor condition can be divided and with the young stock planted in a bench of good rich soil. The house should be shaded enough to assure of good color on the foliage, but not heavy enough to prevent the house being maintained at a good high temperature. During the day the house should stand at about 80 degrees with a little ventilation which should be closed down before the sun leaves the houses. The plants can be set six inches apart and the soil should be two parts loam, one part leaf mold, and one part rotted manure. The house should be frequently syringed to keep a moist atmosphere. Under these conditions fine plants can be produced from young stock in three months. In September they should be lifted and placed in 6-inch pots, if single specimens are desired, or three or four plants can be placed in a 9-inch or 10-inch pot if larger plants are wanted. The Commencement Flowers.

The commencement season is here. The days of doubt and anxiety are over—the dreadful exams were met and conquered. Preparation is now the order of the day; the selection of the dress and the kind of flowers that will be carried are the all absorbing subjects. Right here is where the florist comes in; to be master of the situa-florist goes after the order at $4.00 per dozen, for all long-stemmed flowers, each bunch with a ribbon. He hopes to get out with half long and half short, but generally goes into the hole and wishes he had never seen the order. The same money would have furnished a handsome bunch of pink roses or the same in combination with some other flower that that would have pleased just as well and shown a good profit instead of worry and loss.

To bring this about is a question of salesmanship, combined with diplomacy. Another mistake is to promise to furnish a big lot of red roses in the middle of June, just at the time when the growers have commenced to dry off their beds. The flowers have no substance and should the weather become very hot, as is often the case at this season, the buds come very small and almost single, and are sure to prove unsatisfactory. In many of the select and smaller schools the flowers sent are often quite elaborate—large bunches of American Beauties, baskets of roses, all pink, all yellow, or combined with other appropriate flowers in color combination.

The blue "sunshine baskets," that is blue tinted with white, make up beautifully with pink roses and a blue ribbon. Snapdragon is largely used, as it is so plentiful and in such good form at this time. Sweet peas are great favorites, either made in large round bunches or sprays or arranged in baskets or hats. They are often a "class" flower, each graduate carrying a huge bunch of the same color. If handled intelligently this class of work is well worth while, showing a very good profit. In a competitive test, as is sometimes the case where samples are asked for, the best bunch of two, two and a half or three dozen roses, with ribbon for a certain price, is chosen. In a recent case, the committee could not decide, so the seven bunches were numbered and the whole class voted, the bouquet getting the highest number of votes winning out.

The matter of cards is very important on bunches sent by individuals. If for any reason the card becomes detached, there is a reflection on the the plants they can be cut around about two inches from the crown, and lifted with a trowel, leaving the runners in the bench, if the place they occupy is not wanted at once. The runners will immediately break into small plants which can be placed in flats for young stock for the next season. The finer varieties of this fern, such as Whitman, do not submit to the lifting and potting as well as the old Boston and better plants can be obtained by potting along into larger pots as may be required. The only insects that trouble these ferns are the brown scale, and the plants should be kept clean from these either by washing, or spraying with aphine, or a weak nicotine solution.

Poinsettias.

The propagation of poinsettias should be pushed to the utmost at this time, for it is the plants that are rooted early in July that make the best single specimens at Christmas. Those that are rooted later in July and during August will make fine plants for pans, placing four to eight plants in a 6-inch or 8-inch pan, for they will be much shorter than those rooted early in July. The plants that were rooted earlier should now be growing nicely and should be shifted into larger pots as soon as they require it; under no circumstances allow them to become pot-bound until the bracts begin to set in November. They should be placed in the bright sun as soon as strong enough to endure it, that the growth may be short and sturdy and the leaves as close together as is possible. A long, drawn plant grown in the shade, with the leaves far apart, is not the typical plant for the holidays and does not meet with approval.

tion or to be mastered by it, according to his capabilities.

School girls, who have little or no experience in selecting flowers, will often let their fancy run away with their judgment and choose something in "class" colors that is almost impossible to be had at this season. They are often partial to American Beauties for the close of the February term. With from one hundred and fifty to two hundred graduates each to be supplied with one dozen American Beauties, an enterprising (?)

florist, "who never sent them." It is best to demand a receipt from the head usher or person in charge. The card envelopes, now so generally used, carrying in addition to the card a written description of the article to which they are attached, is a great help in locating a lost bunch, and is also of assistance to the recipient in thanking the donor for the proper "lovely bunch or basket" as the envelope reveals. It is much better to give each bunch a box to itself, as if left lying unprotected on a floor in a drafty hall, it very soon presents a passee appearance.

In the case of class bunches, they are sometimes ordered to be sent to the home address of the various graduates. This is a great mistake. It is much better to have them handed out at the hall where the exercises take place without name, each girl getting as good as her neighbor. To have them named and hunt for each bunch when possibly two hundred or more graduates arrive almost all at one time, produces great confusion and is not the plan adopted twice by the same florist.

Each season some persons will be found raising their voices in protest at this great "waste" of money. The cost of the dresses, the class pins, and other expenses, and then the flowers, which do not probably cost a tithe of the other things, are singled out and made the goat. Girls are girls and flowers are flowers, sweet girl graduates and lovely flowers have always had an affinity for one another and let us hope they always will, notwithstanding the wishes of the carping critics.

Henry Penn.

The House of Penn.

Before the traveler gets to Boston, he is pretty sure to know that in that famous city, at 124 Tremont street, he will find Penn, The Florist. Electric signs at night and huge attractively painted boards with the conspicuous trade mark of the name "Penn, The Florist," divided with a long quill pen, are seen along the railroads and in many of the much traveled thoroughfares of the city. The house is not satisfied with this publicity, however, and spends a small fortune each year in keeping their name and business before the public through the medium of the best newspapers. The store is one of the finest appointed in the country, being most commodious when one considers its location, right in the center of the shopping district, where rents are almost prohibitive. On either side of an imposing entrance are two large show windows, the one on the corner of Hamilton place extending quite a distance down this street. Both are at all times filled with pictures in choice and rare flowers, reflecting the artistic ability and resources of this wide awake establishment. Inside, the store is beautiful in its appointments, and a model in its practical features, the refrigerator flower cabinets the ample space for showing plants with decorative effects, and the working tables, which do not intrude, but are centers of interest to the visitors, all seem to fit in exactly the right place. The fountain court, with its Italian fountain surrounded by marble pillars, with a beautiful glass ceiling, is brilliantly illuminated at night by concealed electric lights. The business offices are on a balcony in the rear, with the private office of the firm on the first floor. The cashier's desk, with several office clerks, is to the right of the fountain court. A white enamel, octagon card or writing table on a heavy pedestal, is a feature. This is in the middle of the store; it has a glass top and in the center are ink wells, pens and blotters, while at the outer edge, below the glass, are receptacles filled with cards and envelopes.

The basement is commodious, being the same size as the storeroom above. The interesting feature here is the Automatic Audiffren refrigerating system. The motive power is electricity, which pumps water through pipes, extracting the heat without the use of ammonia, the temperature of the two stock refrigerators in the basement and the store show cabinets being kept at any desired temperature by the automatic thermostat. To handle this large business there is a force of about 45 employees with a number of auto-

Take a young man of personality and good habits, who delights in flowers and the society of other flower lovers, see that he has an original turn of mind, one who is not afraid to use his brains in quest of new ideas, give him $300 to $5,000, according to his field of operations, and last and most useful, teach him to keep the newspapers working for him through their ad' pages, impress him thoroughly with at four per cent, this leaves a profit of 56 per cent. Asked as to extending credit, Mr. Penn said they always welcomed new accounts; their loss from bad bills last year was only 1/2 of one per cent. All good stores seek charge customers. They are also constantly alive to the prices of their competitors, some having shoppers who go about making purchases to learn as much as possible of the business methods of others in their line.

When asked to account for the great observance of Memorial day in New England, he said, he could hardly give a satisfactory explanation, they had introduced the magnolia wreath with crepe flowers and asparagus because it was impossible to get fresh flowers enough for the demand. This enabled them to handle the business more expeditiously, as so much could be gotten ready before. They do not sell as many now as at first, as everybody has launched into the business, even the department stores stocking up with them. It was first popularized with heavy advertising and it certainly brought business and greatly expanded the trade of Memorial day. Advertising, in Mr. Penn's opinion, is the only way to serve all the classes, from the man who has the full dinner pail, up to the millionaire. The name must be popularized and made synonymous with flowers, so that people will think of flowers and of Penn at the same time. When one thinks of a lock, the name Yale comes up. Candy in Boston means Paige & Shaw, and so on. To get famous for a dollar box, was death to a better trade, although good to push when flowers were plentiful, and this fact advertised. Retail dealers should at all times move with the market; when flowers were plentiful and cheap, keep them going by giving good values; it is not fair to the grower to hold prices up when flowers are plentiful. Penn would rather sell 2,000 customers $2 worth each than have 40 who purchased $4,000 worth in $50 lots. The individual sales for seven months last winter averaged $3, mobiles in its delivery department. A trunk line telephone service, with an operator in charge, insures immediate attention to all calls.

This is a brief description of the home of Penn, The Florist, as it stands today. Its rise from nothing is an interesting story. The proprietors are Henry and William Penn. Henry Penn first opened a store in Bromfield street about 15 years ago, with a capital of less than $300, which he had made and saved from flowers sold as a sidewalk merchant. He was progressing in a moderate way, when an incident occurred which suggested advertising as an aid to his business. A customer asked one day: "What are you going to 'soak' me for one dozen carnations"? This set Mr. Penn to thinking that he must let the people know that he gave quality, service and economy in flower buying, but how? There was only one medium—the newspaper—to tell the public constantly and conspicuously so that they cannot help but see it. Advertising is peculiarly essential to the flower business because prompt sales are the only kind that can be made. A house will keep, a vacant lot cannot run away, but nothing is more unsaleable than a withered flower. This business offers unlimited advertising possibilities. Every season of the year has its sentiments that only flowers can express. In addition to days and occasions that are celebrated generally in flowers, every week in the year is full of the more intimate anniversaries and celebrations for which flowers are appropriate, so that they may be said to be always in season. Penn now advertises two or three times a week and oftener for holidays and special seasons.

When asked the chances of a young man starting in business at this time, he said it depends on the individual.

the importance of keeping his business constantly in peoples' minds, so that when flowers are wanted there is suggested the mental picture of himself and his individual ad's, so that his ad's and firm are welded for all time and come first to mind on every occasion when flowers are required. Such a man's chances for success are A. 1. As for location, he must act according to his purse; it is best to take a small place and expand as he grows. The quicker he learns that he does not need credit, the better for him. Two per cent in ten days means 60 per cent a year and as money can be borrowed while they now are running at $2.50. A new cash register tabulates every sale or charge and greatly simplifies the business. An original order sheet and duplicate, folded so that one is a trifle shorter than the other are both marked paid or charge and dated alike, with one stamp of the machine. This had been a great help in their bookkeeping.

Wm. Penn believes too much is made of artistic ability—70 per cent business and 30 per cent artist is a better combination than if the figures were reversed. In the retail store much depends on the salesman; one must not be too quick in sizing up a customer. If a man is asked five dollars, or ten, and he wants something for twenty, he loses confidence, he feels he is not in the right place and the same impression is created if the customer is seeking a lower priced article. It is best to say, at the proper time, and with the proper inflection, "How much do you feel you would like to spend?"

Again, in speaking of advertising, Mr. Penn said that of two men of same ability and opportunity, starting at the same time in the flower business, one advertising and the other not, the printer's ink man would soon forge ahead and be on easy street, while the other was still plodding along.

Examples of Penn advertising have from time to time been seen in the columns of THE AMERICAN FLORIST. New and original copy, much of it illustrated, is constantly being used. Their telephone is called Boston's Flowerphone, 6900. The new store being of much higher class than the old, they emphasize the fact that prices, however, are no higher, better facilities and larger volume of business enabling them to keep prices to lower levels for quality flowers. They are great believers in the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, and do a large business, both with and for other florists.

We are indebted to Henry Penn for the above ideas and account of the business. He is a very busy man, but most courteous, and is always ready and anxious to greet his brother craftsmen, show them through the beautiful store and explain his business methods.

New York Summer Show.

The first summer show of the International Garden Club was held at the Bartow mansion, Pelham Bay Park, New York City, June 1-4. The mansion, it may be stated, is the home of the club. Located near the shore of beautiful Pelham Bay, there are many attractive features on the estate. Noble old trees and a wide expanse of lawn stretching down to the water side, make it a most desirable spot for a summer outing.

To accommodate the exhibitors, several large tents were pitched on the lawn. In the largest, the commercial exhibits of flowering and foliage plants were placed and considerable landscape skill was shown in their arrangement, under the management of Arthur Herrington. In this section there were noteworthy exhibits from the following: Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., orchids and other flowering and foliage plants; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., flowering rhododendrons and a collection of ferns; F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., flowering rhododendrons, ferns, cut roses and peonies; Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., orchids; Isaac Hicks & Son, Westbury, N. Y., hardy flowering shrubs; Clement Moore, (non-commercial), Hackensack, N. J., orchids. These exhibits occupied the greater part of the large tent. W. A. Manda had an exhibit of topiary and a variety of evergreen shrubs in tubs, on the lawn. The Julius Roehrs Co., F. R. Pierson Co., Bobbink & Atkins and Isaac Hicks & Son also had lawn exhibits.

We should have been pleased to have seen more competition in all classes, but as this was an initial effort on the part of the club, we have no fault to find. We will, however, offer one or two suggestions that would help to make such shows popular, providing the promoters wish them to become so. The admission, June 1, was $5; June 2, $1; June 3, 50 cents; June 4, (Sunday), free. There was nothing to be seen in the show or on or about the grounds that was worth $5—or half that money. If it had been a society event, held in an exclusive private residence, the case would have been different. There was a restaurant, in a tent on the grounds, as the place is far from commercial hotels and restaurants. In this a flat rate of $1.50 was charged for a lunch. Such a price does not appeal to a large majority of the people.

The exhibits by private estates was somewhat disappointing, at least on the opening day, when we visited it. Several of the best known private gardeners of the vicinity of New York, were conspicuous by their absence. This may have in part been due to the lateness of the peonies, which were not generally in bloom in this locality. In flowering plants there were creditable exhibits as follows: Mrs. Wm. G. Nichols, Rye, N. Y. (Geo. N. Sullivan, Gr.), group of hardy flowering and foliage trees and shrubs, also display of hardy cut flowers; Mrs. John H. Flagler, Greenwich, Conn. (Wm. Whitton, Gr.), group of foliage and flowering plants, (stove and greenhouse), also, group of hydrangeas;

Mrs. Geo. D. Barron, Rye, N. Y. (Jas. Linane, Gr.), group of summer flowering, bulbous and tuberous plants; Mrs. A. M. Booth, Great Neck, N. Y. (E. Fardel, Gr.), display of cut iris flowers. There was a good exhibit of children's garden work, under the auspices of President Cabot Ward, of the New York park board and Park Commissioner Thos. Whittle of Bronx Borough.

The following garden clubs had creditable exhibits: Greenwich, Conn. Garden Club, Garden Club of New Rochelle, N. Y., National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild, Women's National Agricultural and Horticultural Association, Rye, N. Y., Garden Club, The Bedford, N. Y., Garden Club, Garden Club of Somerset Hills, N. J. The ladies of the Bronx chapter of the American Red Cross had two tents on the ground and were busy increasing their membership. Assisted by boy scouts, they also gave demonstrations of preparing bandages, and other work of the society. The entire affair was enjoyable and interesting. Our foregoing criticism is not a "knock" but a suggestion. We should be pleased to see the club continue and improve its shows.

The awards in the commercial classes were as follows:

Group of rhododendrons covering 100 sq. ft.—W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., 1st; F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., 2nd.

San Jose Sweet Pea Show.

The fact that large fields of sweet peas, growing for seed, are commonplace sights in the Santa Clara valley, does not seem to dampen the enthusiasm of flower-lovers of San Jose, Calif., for the sweet pea. The San Jose Chamber of Commerce put on a three-day show, commencing May 17. Although no prizes were offered, a large number of exhibitors participated and the daily attendance was large. Aside from an exhibit of field-grown blooms, by the Braslan Seed Growers Company, all entries were made by amateurs, chief among which was Emile Ralston, who entered 27 varieties of the Spencer type, including most of the newly introduced sorts.

Baltimore's Retail Stores.

North Charles street is the center of the retail florists of this large city. Samuel Feast & Sons' store, at the corner of Pleasant street, adjoins that of Halliday Brothers, while a couple of doors below is E. A. Seidewitz, and next door, Wm. J. Halliday, while just across the street is the store of John Cook. A block further out is the Hamilton shop, and on the corner above, the handsome establishment of Pierce's House of Flowers.

With four auto delivery cars, one of them a large van for palms, etc., lined up at the curb, the Feast shop looked busy. Miss Hill, the manager, said they had had a splendid season. Their store was nicely decorated with peonies and other outside flowers. Halliday Brothers had their large window filled with spring flowers and daisies and the store interior was gay with daisies and peonies. They have sold their property at North avenue and Pulaski street and are building greenhouses at Monkton. They have enjoyed a good season.

E. A. Seidewitz has put in an immense plate glass window to replace one unfortunately broken by the wind a short time ago. A double pink larkspur raised by Mr. Seidewitz looks like a very good one, and think it is a fine color. His American shop on Liberty street should do well these patriotic days.

Wm. J. Halliday's attractive store and window was gay with peonies, which were just at their height. The season had been very satisfactory. John Cook's store, so ably managed by his two daughters, is a model of neatness. It enjoys a fine family trade. Things looked, as they were said to be, prosperous.

The Hamilton shop, 509 North Charles street, had a healthy wide-awake appearance, with nicely decorated window and interior.

SAN JOSE SWEET PEA SHOW.

Pierce's House of Flowers, 517 North Charles street, on the corner of Hamilton street, is a most pretentious place, a veritable flower palace, with very ample store and a large conservatory without any division in the rear. It is one of the most beautiful stores of the country. A large out of town as well as city trade keeps them busy. Mrs. Mary Johnson, 223 West Madison avenue, in the residence district, enjoys a large family trade. A new truck for decorative plants makes their fourth car, which gives an idea of the extent of the business. Robert L. Graham, 854 North avenue, has an active and busy place. His daughter is a most able assistant.

J. A. Ritter & Son, 1918 North Charles street, made a very good bid for business with their fine stock of flowers, which were very nicely arranged.

Chas. A. Fox, 1200 Bolton street, has in the greenhouse and rear garden, very useful adjuncts to the business, which Miss Fox, the manager, reports had been all they could handle. Mrs. Charles Held, 32 South Eutaw street, was very cheerful of the business doing. A nice stock of flowers was a feature.

There are quite a number of shops on West Baltimore street who do quite a business. J. J. Cummings, at 1131, has purchased the corner property next door but one; this is now coming down and a modern store will soon be erected, giving him greatly increased facilities.

Fiedler & Co., 902 South Charles street, makes a specialty of funeral work—things looked prosperous here. P. A. M. Eberhardt, 1129 Light street, reports business good, as does B. C. Fox, 743 Columbia avenue, where there was a good stock of plants and flowers.

Pennsylvania avenue has also its quota of trade. A lively funeral design business was under way with Edward Fauth at 1318, a blanket being a feature.

The establishment of Mrs. Schuler-Thomas is another of the cut-flower stores managed by women, of which there are quite a number in this city. She is at 316 West Saratoga street. She keeps busy most of the time. Parkway Flower Shop, North avenue and St. Paul street, is well pleased with this season's business, which is their first. George Smith, 1130 West North avenue, does a large jobbing trade. He has given up his houses at Roslyn and York road.

Thos. Vincent has two stores, 1822 North Charles street and 1514 West Lafayette avenue, where considerable business is carried on. They both held good stocks of flowers.

East Baltimore has a number of hustling shops. Edward Kress has a large cemetery trade, growing most of his own stock. He does quite a business in a wholesale way, supplying retail stores. Zimmerman & Shanes, 2123 East Monument street, have a large German trade; they carry a good line of cut flowers.

Although only about two years in business without any previous experience, Mrs. Buettner, 534 South Third street, sets her competitors a smart pace and is becoming quite a factor in her section. George Eberly of 2229 Fleet street, is rapidly building up a select trade, making a specialty of funeral work. He is wide awake and progressive.

The Lexington market is a very busy place on market days, particularly during the bedding season, when a number of florists from the suburbs bring in wagon and auto truck loads of plants, which are arranged on tables in the streets and sidewalks for a couple of squares around the entrance. George M. Cook, L. H. Klein, P. C. Erdman, P. H. Eberhardt, Henry Fischer, Harry Ekas, Conrad Hess and a number of others, whose names were not visible, made a show with their great variety of bedding plants and have no trouble to sell out at this season. It is one of the largest plant markets of its kind in the country.

Baltimore has four commission houses, some of which carry side lines of supplies. The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., with Manager Perry of the old Florists' Exchange, carries a very good stock of cut-flowers, together with supplies, baskets, frames, wire, foil and other necessary every-day needs. Mr. Perry said the season had been very satisfactory.

The Leo Niessen Co., on Center street, has a well fitted up establishment, with commodious cold storage facilities. A good variety of flowers were in stock. Manager McKissick was very well pleased with the season and said trade was growing rapidly.

The Baltimore Wholesale Cut-Flower Co. on Mulberry street, John Barker, president and manager, said they had had a fine trade with good prospects ahead. The firm had done well with peonies for the northern demand. Some good Russell roses were seen here.

The Baltimore Wholesale Florists Supply Co., 11 East Pleasant street, carries a stock of cut flowers as well. Manager Perry says things are going well with them, there being a good increase over last season's business.

Washington, D. C.

BUSINESS CONTINUES SATISFACTORY.

This is the month of brides and the local shops are all about as busy as can be expected, not alone with wedding and reception orders, but every line seems to be active. Stock is plentiful and reasonably priced. Roses of all varieties are to be had and prices range from $2 to $8, the latter price being for the very best. Orchids have taken quite a drop and the latter part of last week they could be had for $6 per dozen. Lily of the valley is quoted at $4 and $5. There are plenty of carnations and the quality is very good for this time of the year. Gladioli are getting better and cheaper in price each day and there is a good demand for them.

NOTES.

The committee in charge of the annual outing have made all arrangements and the event will be held at Great Falls, July 19. Everything from peanuts to ice cream will be served. Capt. Ernest will look after the gentlemen's needs.

Geo. Lavalle & Sons are about to add a large truck to their delivery service. This is badly needed as this is one of the most progressive concerns in this vicinity.

Judge Corrigan, the water lily specialist, is sending in some splendid flowers to the local trade, and is also making generous shipments to outside points.

Visitors: J. Cutler Ryerson, Newark, N. J.; Wm. McKissick, Baltimore. G. C. D.

OBITUARY.

Miss A. L. Wilson.

Miss A. L. Wilson, of the firm of Misses Wilson, florists, Montgomery, Ala., died at her home in that city, May 30. The deceased had been in failing health for several months, but death came very suddenly. For the past 30 years she enjoyed the reputation of being a very successful grower of bulbs. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Thomas Rudolph, and a number of near relatives.

L. C. W.

Gottlieb Supper.

Gottlieb Supper, for the past 14 years connected with George C. Shaffer, Washington, D. C., in the capacity of store manager, died at his residence, The Hermitage, in that city, June 1, after an illness of 11 days. Although but 35 years of age, he was widely known to the trade, having spent nearly his entire life in the florist business and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He is survived by his widow, his parents, a sister and a brother of Lakewood, N. J. The funeral was held at Walker's Chapel, Va., June 4, and was largely attended, every florist establishment in the vicinity being represented.

Many beautiful floral tributes were sent by friends. Some of the designs worthy of special mention were as follows: Large wreath of white carnations sprayed with orchids and Sunburst roses, from Florists' Club of Washington, D. C.; spray of Ophelia roses and orchids, from J. H. Small & Sons; large wreath of Marechal Neil roses, orchids and snapdragons from fellow employees at the Geo. C. Shaffer store; spray of White Killarney roses, orchids and Sunburst roses, from Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Shaffer; large wreath of red roses, from Albert Schnell; wreath of lilies and lily of the valley, from George H. Cooke; cluster of American Beauty roses, from Gude Bros. Co.; cluster of Ophelia roses and lilies, from O. A. C. Oehmler; cross of pink carnations and white roses, from G. C. Lavalle; wreath of Killarney roses, from J. Guttman; wreath of Maryland roses, from H. Jones of Philadelphia; wreath of lilies and peonies, from J. Schatzmeier, New Orleans. Other handsome pieces were sent by the Dupont Floral Co., Z. D. Blackstone, L. Hoover, Washington Floral Co., Marche & Co., Geo. Comley and J. Smith of Philadelphia.

BOONE, IA.—The Kemble-Smith Co. has been awarded the contract for landscaping the grounds of the Eastern Star home in this city.

BAR HARBOR, ME.—F. H. Moses has been forced to retire from business and has sold his flower shop on Main street to John H. Salford, who has already commenced improvements on the property.

BOSTON, MASS.—A novel feature of the preparedness parade May 27, was the floral float decorated by Penn. The Florist. Carnations of all colors were used and the effect was striking.

SAULT STE. MARIE, ONT.—Fire which started outside of the boiler house, fanned by a strong wind, destroyed three houses at the range of Otto H. Weber, May 24, entailing a loss of about $4,000.

THE prices of insecticides have been advanced considerably this year.

CHAIRMAN ASMUS of the National Flower Show committee, will confer with the secretary and treasurer of the Society of American Florists at Buffalo, N. Y., this week and hopes to issue a report of the Philadelphia exhibition within the next two weeks.

Personal.

Joseph Heacock, of the Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., has been nominated for congress on the democratic ticket to represent the eighth Pennsylvania district.

J. D. Carmody, the veteran greenhouse builder, of Evansville, Ind., celebrated the eightieth anniversary of his birthday last month.

P. J. Lynch, of New Castle, Ind., is in Chicago this week as a delegate to the republican convention.

Mountain Laurel National Flower?

Under recent date, Wm. F. Gude, Washington representative of the Society of American Florists, writes as follows:

"In reference to a joint resolution introduced in Congress, June 1, making the mountain laurel a national flower of the United States, will this be agreeable to the S. A. F., or had we not better have a say in it? The bill was introduced by Congressman Stephens, of Tennessee. Personally, I do not care to say anything for or against it, until I hear an expression from the national society."

Telegraph Orders and Remittances.

Under new arrangements made by the Western Union Telegraph Co. one can now telegraph an order with the money to cover it in the same money transfer message. Heretofore, when money was sent by telegraph, any orders or instructions relating to the remittance had to be sent in a separate message. Now, money transfers by Western Union between points in the United States may include information concerning the purpose for which money is sent. All that is necessary is to incorporate the order in the application for the transfer at the local Western Union office and the order will be transmitted with the money. Where goods are specified by code words in the catalogue the code words may be used. The Western Union manager will give full particulars.

France Prohibits Plant Importation.

Following the example of Great Britain, as per order of council announced in THE AMERICAN FLORIST, issue of June 3, page 1040, the Journal Officiel of Paris has published two government decrees, prohibiting the importation into France of plants and shrubs from greenhouses and nurseries, a list of 21 being given, including azaleas, begonias, camellias, orchids and palms.

At the Ministry of Commerce it was stated that France had merely followed the example set by Great Britain and that Great Britain had recommended such a measure to her ally, although the chief object of prohibition, as regards Great Britain, was to reduce freight tariffs, while France's object was to improve exchange, to aid the franc to regain its normal value. The government regrets a step which must be a blow to trade with Great Britain, but feels obliged to have recourse to this measure, which, in a secondary degree, will reduce freight tariffs for France also.

"The measure is in no way retaliatory or due to motives of protection," it was said. "It was taken because the matter was urgent, and it by no means follows that it will be enforced, even during the whole time the war may last."

School Gardens in British Columbia.

The British Columbia provincial government has decided to make certain special grants for the improvement of school grounds and farm education conditional upon the expenditure of equal amounts by the respective school boards. The grants are not for such essential preliminary work as logging, stumping, rough grading, and fencing, but for draining and fine grading preparatory to seeding and planting the grounds. They may be used in purchasing grass seed, flower seeds and plants, ornamental shrubs, vines and trees; for top-dressing and fertilizing lawns, for flower borders or shrubbery, and for irrigation if necessary. The teachers and pupils are expected to co-operate with the school boards in connection with the planting and care of the grounds.

Teachers have been requested to discuss the work with their respective school boards, to obtain accurate information as to the sizes of gardens, arrangement of plats, division of classes for vegetable growing, plats set apart for flowers, large plats set apart for agricultural experiments in field crops, root or fodder crops for boys only, growing fruit trees and shrubs, and fencing and building. With this information the secretary of the school board makes application to the director of elementary agricultural education for such assistance as the department offers.

A one-room school with an average of 15 or more in attendance and each room of a graded school must have a garden of not less than 2,500 square feet. With an average attendance of less than 15 a plat of 1,500 square feet will suffice. Most of the plats are larger than required. Teachers and school boards are held responsible for the purchase of all seeds, fertilizers, tools, etc. The cost of a set of garden tools will average about $1 a pupil. In graded schools, one set of tools for a complete class may be used by several classes of the same school.

Semi-annual reports are required in duplicate, one filed by the teacher and the other sent to the inspector. Bonus grants are based upon these reports. First-year grants are larger than subsequent or maintenance grants. First-year grants to school boards are: Ungraded school, average attendance less than 15, $30; ungraded school, average attendance 15 or more, $50; for each additional room in a graded school taking gardening, $10.

BUSINESS MORE THAN SATISFACTORY.

With the graduation exercises at the high school, a few early June weddings, and Memorial day, business has been more than sufficiently good of late. Memorial day certainly made a record this year. Without a doubt, the increased efforts of the Fairlawn Cemetery Association to perfect the landscape work of the cemetery, has given an added impetus to lot owners in the silent city, for never before was there so much planting of flowers done, nor so many cut flowers used. Speaking of the business of that day, Mrs. Eager, of Furrow & Co., said: "We had a wonderful day—did a far bigger trade than ever before." Geo. Stiles, of the Stiles Co., said: "The increase in our business was very considerable."

For the first time in the history of this city, magnolias are in blossom, and the trees are thriving. It has always been held that magnolias could not be grown successfully here; now that theory, like the rose theory that has held so long, is exploded.

Miss Goldstein, stenographer at the Stiles Co.'s store, is back at her desk again after a severe illness of several weeks, and during which period she was a patient in St. Anthony's hospital.

Peddlers, with horse and wagon, selling pot plants are getting to be a regular feature with us; and on one day recently, even boys were seen selling cut flowers on the street corners.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE RECORD BREAKER.

Without exception, all reports indicate a record breaking Memorial day trade. The weather was ideal, money appeared to be plentiful, there was plenty of good stock and prices were reasonable.

NOTES.

Hail which fell here June 2, did considerable damage to glass and outside plants and vegetables. The Bunker Hill Greenhouses and Wm. Foith lost 300 lights and 250 lights respectively. The Martin Greenhouses at Shawnee, Kan., lost 500 lights.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. reports an exceptionally large increase in the shipping business especially. Splendid pink spireas were a feature but a large supply of both cut stock and pot plants were in evidence.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports that the Memorial day trade this year, both local and out-of-town reached the high water mark. This firm sold out completely and were out trying to locate more stock.

W. J. Barnes sold every flower and blooming plant in his establishment. He reports that any one day, Sunday, Monday or Tuesday, was equal to the entire Memorial day trade of a year ago.

The volume of business at Samuel Murray's attractive store established a new record. A wonderful display of wreaths was seen here—some of the finest ever seen in this city.

T. J. Noll & Co. had a heavy shipping trade. At present some of the finest Colorado grown carnations ever seen in this market are to be seen at this establishment.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports the largest Memorial day trade in the history of the firm. A big supply of peonies was a feature here.

H. Kusik & Co. had no trouble in disposing of 50,000 peonies for Memorial day in addition to large numbers of roses, carnations and gladioli.

Reinhardt & Son, of Shawnee, Kan., cut their stock to the last flower and found ready sale for all of it.

Arthur Newell's books show an increase of 40 per cent over the Memorial day trade of 1915.

Chas. Biederman & Son disposed of everything saleable in both cut flowers and pot plants.

A. F. Barbe had his usual immense cemetery business and sold out early.

Miss J. E. Murray featured wreaths and sold out completely.

OFFICE AND STORE

178 N. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO, ILL.

STOCK OF ALL KINDS IS VERY PLENTIFUL.

Stock of all kinds is very plentiful at this writing and while trade has been fairly good, it has been nothing to speak of although in some instances the wholesalers report the sales for the first five days in June considerably ahead of last year. The preparedness parade, June 3, put quite a crimp in business and trade was so quiet after 9 a. m. that practically all the stores closed at noon. There was no express service on that day either, so all the out-going shipments had to be sent direct to the depots by special messengers or held over until the next day. Roses of all kinds are very plentiful with the possible exception of American Beauty which seems to clean up well each day. Included in the receipts are large quantities of exceptionally fine Mrs. Chas. Russell, Rhea Reid, Hadley, Richmond, Milady, Hoosier Beauty, Killarney, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Double White Killarney, My Maryland, Mrs. George Shawyer, Prince de Bulgaria, Sunburst, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Ophelia, Mrs. Moorfield Storey, Lady Alice Stanley, Francis Scott Key, Fireflame, Cecile Brunner, Elgar and Baby Doll. Carnations are also in large supply but are having a fairly good call. Peonies are seen in large quantities at all the stores and there is now quite a number of local grown flowers arriving. Sweet peas are to be had in large quantities and are moving well especially in the better grades. Some exceptionally fine lilies are being offered and a few callas are seen at some of the stores. Lily of the valley and orchids continue to clean up nicely each day but the supply of the latter is steadily increasing. Cape Jasmynes were never so plentiful or of such good quality as they are this year. Gladioli are among the offerings and at times sell well. Some very fine candytuft in white, pink and several other colors is attracting the attention of the buyers and daisies seem to be having a good call considering the general market conditions. Snapdragons, irises, feverfews, larkspurs, swainsonas, Double White narcissi, daffodils, pansies, violets, poppies, tulips, statice, mignonettes, cornflowers, calendulas, honeysuckles and a long list of other indoor and outdoor miscellaneous stock gives the buyer a large variety to select from and a chance to make dandy window displays of odds and ends at a very reasonable cost. The retail florists have been quite busy with wedding orders, school closings and funeral work, but outside of that, business has been rather quiet.

NOTES.

The preparedness parade held in this city, June 3, was the largest in American history in point of numbers participating in a single day. Over 130,000 people marched and the parade was second only to the largest civil parade in Europe in the last 30 years when the home rule opposition procession consisting of 150,000 men was held in Belfast, Ireland, April 9, 1912. Among the marchers in line noticed in the preparedness parade, were Peter Reinberg, well known wholesale florist, Henry Zender, Geo. Walther, H. Nichols, and Dwight L. Harris, of the Pulverized Manure Company. Business in the loop was at a standstill so the wholesale stores closed at noon. About 50,000 of the marchers wore flowers, mostly carnations, roses, peonies and calendulas.

Mike Juracek, who is employed in the wire working department of Winterson's seed store, was rather downhearted all last week because his home at 1341 Scoville avenue, in Oak Park, was destroyed by fire Sunday, May 28, but when he came down to work on Monday of this week he was happy as a lark because a 13-pound baby girl arrived at his home just a week later, Sunday, June 4. Mike treated all his friends to a good smoke and is so happy over the addition to his family that he has completely forgotten all about his loss the previous Sunday.

W. W. Randall and wife are back from a month's stay at St. Joseph, Mich., where Mrs. Randall took the Whitcomb hotel baths for inflammatory rheumatism, which has been troubling her a good deal of late. Mr. Randall acted as nurse and proved to be such a good attendant that she is feeling considerably better and recommends the baths as a good cure for anyone who is suffering with the same trouble.

The Batavia Greenhouse Company is cutting a heavy supply of home grown peonies and has already disposed of all the Early Reds, which averaged 50 cents per bunch. Ole Johnson, who has charge of the city salesrooms, says that if he could average two cents on the later varieties he would be more than satisfied, for he would coin money at that figure.

Philip L. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Company, and wife, have returned from a delightful visit at Lincoln, where his firm is erecting a new range of houses for Gullett & Sons. Mr. McKee's trip evidently agreed with him, for he brought back a healthy looking coat of tan.

J. Mohrle has taken a position as manager of Pyfer & Olsem's retail store at Wilmette.

Chas. London, George Weiland's right hand store man, has taken unto himself a wife.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are handling a large quantity of fancy peonies in addition to their regular line of stock. This firm does not store any peonies and believe that best results can be obtained by supplying their customers with the stock just as it reaches the store and the fact that no complaints have been received so far this season leads them to believe that this is the best and only course to pursue.

Joseph Ziska, Sr., is building a new garage, 59x125 feet, at Twelfth street and Lyman avenue, in Oak Park, which will easily house 40 cars. Mr. Ziska, who is a member of the firm of Joseph Ziska & Sons, decided to build about a week ago and five days after ground was broken and work started on the new structure.

The A. L. Randall Co. has broadened its charter, which embraces all the lines it is now handling and manufacturing. Manager Frank Johnson says that the first charter issued 12 years ago only covered cut flowers and florists' supplies.

Sam Y. Bloom, 822 East Sixty-third street, and Miss Alta Levy will be married June 18. A reception will be held at the Ashland Club House, to which no cards will be issued but all his friends in the trade are cordially invited to attend.

Fred. Schramm, well known carnation grower at Park Ridge, grows peonies as a side line and will make his first cuts this week. He consigns his entire output to the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, of which he is a member.

Miss Virginia Poehlmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Poehlmann, graduated this week from the University School for Girls, at 1106 Lake Shore drive.

Hoerber Bros. are in good crop with roses, particularly My Maryland, which Window boxes have been installed this week on the entire block occupied by Marshall Field & Co., Retail, probably the largest single job of the kind ever done in this city. Henry Wittbold had charge of it, and the work was done at night. The plants were supplied by Vaughan's Greenhouses.

N. J. Wietor and John Sinner are still resisting the call of the wild, but are liable to take to the northern Wisconsin lakes at any moment, where the fishing is always good for the Pikers' club, if Frank Kneipp reminds them much more of the big catch they made on their last trip.

George Walther and all the rest of the retail florists in Englewood are true Americans and believe in preparedness to such an extent that they closed their establishments on June 3 so that they could participate in the big parade which was witnessed by nearly a million people.

Frank Benthley, who has charge of all the stock that is shipped from the Benthley greenhouse at New Castle, Ind., to Kennicott Bros. Co.'s store, is supplying his customers with a choice grade of Mrs. George Shawyer roses, which are none too plentiful in this market at present.

Chas. W. McKellar is feeling much better, and has visited his store a couple of times the past week, but has not done any actual work yet. Frank Ayres is taking care of things in fine shape, and business is going along as though Mr. McKellar was personally on the job.

J. A. Budlong is cutting a good supply of the rose Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, which is being grown at the Budlong range for the first time this season. A good supply of Francis Scott Key and Lady Alice Stanley roses are now included in the daily receipts.

C. L. Washburn reports that Bassett & Washburn are having a good demand for yellow roses, which they are cutting in quantity, and are cleaning up as nicely as can be expected, considering the large supply of stock now being offered in this market.

At Zech & Mann's store the receipts of sweet peas and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses continue to be very heavy and will be for some time to come, according to Allie Zech, who visited their growers last week and found everything in splendid condition.

M. C. Gunterberg is showing an unusually good grade of peonies, for which she reports a brisk demand.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet at the Hotel Morrison, next Thursday, June 8, at 8 p. m.

And everything else that you need for the June Weddings and School Closings. Our high grade stock is in demand by the progressive florist who insists upon the best at all times at the most reasonable market prices.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has received four cars of palms from Belgium this week, which Superintendent H. M. Oeser describes as simply superb. The palm department has had a good season and some of the houses look pretty empty, for shipments have been going out right along and the new stock will come in handy. T. E. Waters, who looks after the supply department, has the factory running in full blast at Morton Grove, where a large quantity of ruscus, cycas leaves, etc., are being prepared for next season's business. Some exceptionally fine roses are arriving at the city salesroom each day and the firm has every reason to feel proud of the Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia, Killarney, Killarney Brilliant and young American Beauty, which are all that one could desire as far as quality is concerned. John Poehlmann, Jr., is suffering from a sore throat, but it on the job every day at the store.

Percy Jones is strong on green goods of all kinds, particularly ferns, and is taking care of all the customers in fine shape. Trade in all lines continues to be brisk and the sales so far this month compare most favorably with those of the same period during 1915.

WE are prepared to take care of your orders for Peonies, Roses, Gladioli, Carnations, Cape Jasmine, Baby Gladioli, Lilies, Callas, Snapdragons, Sweet Peas, Greens, Etc., for June Weddings and School Closings. You will get satisfaction every time if you place your orders with

The George Wittbold Co. has been busy of late filling window boxes and some of the jobs already completed include the Sherman House, Royal Insurance building, First National Bank building, Lyon & Healy building, Auditorium hotel, Stratford hotel, Illinois Theatre, Board of Trade, Chicago Telephone Co., Chicago Automobile Club, Richardson Silk Co., American Radiator Co., Harry Newman, City Club and a score of other contracts. Fred Wittbold, Otto Stein and H. A. Cecile, of the Wittbold force are responsible for most of the orders and say that they have many more in sight. Louis Wittbold remarks that geraniums are unusually plentiful this season. His firm is strong on caladiums and can-nas, which are in good demand right now.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are firm believers in preparedness and always have a large supply of stock on hand to furnish their customers with. Next year they will have an additional supply of cut flowers to offer, for Pyfer & Olsem will take possession of the new range that they recently leased from Peter Nepper, July 1, and which will be under the direct supervision of Peter Olsem, who will look after the Wilmette plant.

At Peter Reinberg's store the receipts of roses and carnations are very heavy and there are now more than enough in nearly all varieties to go around. Reinberg's store came in handy for preparedness day and every window facing Randolph street was filled with spectators, who were welcome to stay as long as they liked and enjoy the parade as much as possible.

The expressmen's strike continues to cause the wholesale florists a great deal of trouble and while the special service inaugurated by the wholesalers and headed by Fred. Lautenschlager is giving satisfaction, everyone is hoping for an early settlement, particularly the manager, who is about as busy as he can be.

Wietor Bros. are having a good call for chrysanthemum cuttings and cut back plants and are offering an unusually large number of varieties. The call for cut back stock in pompons is extra brisk and some of this stock is now being benched at Wietor's establishment.

Frank Potocetka marched with the Polish silk hat brigade in the preparedness parade, June 3.

MEDIOCRE TRADE AND LOW PRICES.

While the market is well supplied in all seasonable lines, business is only fair with prices very low. Trade the previous week was good, but even with the Memorial day stimulation and the call for commencement flowers, everything sold at figures below the average. Roses and carnations are both plentiful, but in both lines there is only a limited amount of good stock. Easter lilies are also plentiful and gladioli, which are excellent in quality meet with a good market. Good outdoor sweet peas are arriving. The call for snapdragons is fair. Other offerings include lily of the valley, orchids, coreopsis, callas, nympeas and cornflowers.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell will have to vacate his present quarters on Third street to make way for the Green Line terminal. He has not decided on his future location as yet.

Thos. Windram has gone to Leesburg, Fla., to look after business at the Lake Shore Ferneries.

MARKET CONDITIONS GOOD.

Memorial day was a great event in this city, but there were several complaints from growers, arising from the new rule at Lakewood cemetery, prohibiting indiscriminate planting. Each lot owner has the privilege of planting a vase or urn, but shrubbery can only be planted under the supervision of the cemetery association. This makes it hard on growers that depend to any extent on cemetery trade. They will find an outlet for this stock, however, as the outdoor planting season has only started. Market conditions are good, with everything cleaning up nicely at good prices. Sweet peas are coming fine and are arriving in quantities, causing prices to drop. They are now offered at from 35 cents to 75 cents per 100. Peonies have been a drug on the market. The express companies were trying to unload before Memorial day at two cents, but everyone seemed to be supplied and the demand for this flower was not as good as a year ago.

NOTES.

The W. D. Desmond Co. is sending in some very fancy gladioli and sweet peas from its range at Lyndale avenue and Sixty-fourth street. Some Mrs. Francis King gladioli with four foot stems from this establishment made a hit on the market this week.

Edward Goldenstein, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, was a visitor this week, and booked a number of nice orders. He reports that the growers have had a very successful season and are ordering heavier in anticipation of a still better season to come.

Wm. Topel had a very busy week at the L. S. Donaldson Co.'s establishment. It looked like a Chicago wholesale house after an Easter rush.

Rice Bros. are very busy with orders for graduations, not only in this city, but throughout the Northwest. Their stock is always complete.

Thomas C. Rogers, who was taken suddenly ill, May 29, is back on the job again, but he lost 14 pounds in weight in five days.

The J. J. Hill funeral made very little business for the local trade. St. Paul seeming to have the bulk of the orders.

The lease on the store occupied by Ralph Latham was sold last week, and a new building will be erected on the site.

Oscar Amundson was very busy with a heavy Memorial day trade. Out-of-town business was exceptionally good.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE GOOD.

Memorial day business was very good generally, and although it rained for several days previous, immense quantities of stock were moved and prices were not at all high. Peonies were not entirely satisfactory; a few early red, local stock, which was mostly too tight to use, and some shipped stock that "fell off" in handling, were about the limit. Very few really good peonies were obtainable. Carnations moved better and large quantities were disposed of at medium prices. Roses of all grades and varieties moved nicely, the call generally being for medium priced stock. Sweet peas and outdoor lily of the valley was in good supply, with a good demand, as was such stock as baby gladioli, snapdragons, columbines, field daisies, larkspurs, candy-tufts, Easter lilies and double narcissi. The week showed a substantial increase over same week last year. Stock of all kinds is increasing in supply, and prices on some stock has dropped to summer figures. Greens are plentiful. Dagger ferns have the call.

HEAVY SUPPLY AND LIGHT DEMAND.

Business has fallen off considerably as quantities of flowers came into the market during the warm spell following Memorial day. Prices also have dropped, but it is no more than can be expected, as it is usual for a general depression at this time of year. Roses were in very poor demand, and large quantities are coming in, making prices far below standard; 50 cents to $6 per 100 is the average run of prices. Carnations sold well the first of the week, but as the shipments increased towards the latter part, the prices dropped and seemed to continue to drop as the flowers left unsold accumulated. Sweet peas are rather poor in quality on the whole, but good blossoms sell fairly well at $1 per 100, while poor ones have to go for what they are worth. There are large quantities of Memorial day specialties laying around the market, such as feverfews, stocks and candytufts, and there is very little call for them. Snapdragons are practically done for the season; the crop that is coming in now being rather drawn looking and have weak stems. Outdoor lily of the valley sells fairly well. There is a large quantity of Longiflorum lilies, but they do not sell very well, from 4 cents to 6 cents being the price.

NOTES.

The bowling league is going to have its first annual outing the last Sunday in June. Large preparations are being made for one of the most enjoyable events of the season and full particulars will appear in next week's issue.

John Barr, of South Natick, is sending his carnations to Boston in his new Ford truck. His stock is coming good now, being far cleaner and fresher looking than the majority of flowers seen.

F. L. W.

Rochester, N. Y.

Memorial day trade this year was not up to normal—even wreaths for cemetery decorations did not meet with their usual sale. There was an abundance of cut flowers; in fact, stock of all kinds was plentiful for the occasion. Peonies and irises are now coming to the market in large quantities, but there is a shortage of Easter and calla lilies and lily of the valley is somewhat scarce.

NOTES.

Harry P. Neun recently had a spring window that attracted much attention. The arrangement consisted of a miniature pond with clumps of irises here and there and a background of hydrangeas. The Rochester Floral Co. also had a pleasing display representing "A Mid-summer Night's Dream," arranged for the Shakespearean pageant week.

H. E. Wilson arranged a very attractive display for Memorial day, the center of the window being occupied by a large wreath of magnolia trimmed with wistarias. This rested on an easel while numerous wreaths and designs of various sizes were placed at other points where they showed to best advantage.

The will of the late Frank A. Stecher, head of the Stecher Engraving Co., of this city, who died May 22, provides for the distribution of $50,000 among employees who had been in his employ for 10 years or longer.

EXCEPTIONAL MEMORIAL DAY TRADE.

Without exception, the report on Memorial day trade was good. All kinds of flowers sold, probably roses more than anything else. Set pieces also sold well. Outside orders were plentiful. Business in all branches seems to be good. Besides weddings and funerals there are recitals and the "graduating girl" to be looked after, which call for many flowers. Asters and zinnias are showing up as well as centaureas. The market is well-stocked with gladioli, chiefly America and Mrs. Francis King. There are some good carnations, which sell well and many poor ones, which do not sell. Roses are better than a week ago, as the weather has been fine. The good weather has forced in the supply of sweet peas also, so that the general supply of flowers is keeping up well, which is a good thing as the demand has been so brisk.

NOTES.

Flower shows are getting to be a common thing these days. One of the latest, and one which was quite unique was that of Morris & Snow, which was held this week and consisted of sweet peas, mostly Spencers, both standard and Christmas flowering. Something over 40 varieties were shown. The idea was to show their customers the different varieties so they can get a better idea of what to plant. The scheme is a good one.

Howard & Smith had a good Memorial day trade, as did all the florists. They are making a great display of their new rose, the Los Angeles. This is considered one of the best roses of recent introduction. As they describe it the color is a luminous flame pink, toned with coral and shaded with translucent gold at the base of the petals, while its fragrance is equal to the finest Marechal Niel.

The Redondo Floral Co. cleaned up everything for their Tuesday's trade. One big order from a G. A. R. corps of New Mexico called for 875 wreaths. It is needless to say that they had to work overtime to get out such an order. They report a big demand for the Mrs. Francis King gladiolus.

Seki Bros & Co., 229 West Fourth street sold many carnations for Memorial day. They grow their own stock in this line, having several acres in flowers at Hollywood.

O. C. Saakes had a good trade Memorial day, selling Easter lilies, roses and carnations principally. Mr. Saakes had a great display for this day's trade.

S. Murata & Co. did a big shipping business for Memorial day trade. Their business in gladioli and carnations at this time is enormous.

Wolfskill Bros. and Morris Golden-son report a good trade Memorial day. They had a splendid window display this week.

SLUMP FOLLOWS MEMORIAL DAY.

Business has quieted down considerably since Memorial day, the demand being anything but encouraging the past week, and there is a great abundance of stock in all lines. Peonies are now at their height, some very fine flowers being seen, also much other outdoor stock, such as delphiniums, cornflowers, etc., and all sorts of shrubbery flood the market. There are quantities of roses of very good quality for the season. American Beauties are still very salable, although getting a little frilled and bleached on the outer petals. Russell might be called the leader now, as in all sizes the flowers are good and lasting. Carnations, while not in oversupply, are quite sufficient for the demand, and the quality is still good. Gladioli are in fair demand, making nice window and store displays in connection with the light-colored shrubbery. Larkspur sells well and is becoming more and more a standard flower. Sweet peas still flood the market; some are perceptibly smaller and lighter in color, while late crops are better. Outdoor sweet peas are coming very early for them, but it can be done when one knows how. There are plenty of Easter lilies and lily of the valley. Cattleyas are in fair supply—some extra choice gigas are seen.

CLUB MEETING.

The June meeting of the florists' club, which was held June 6, was graced by a splendid attendance, the feature of the evening being a talk on "Bugs" by Dr. Tom Daly, the Irish poet, who writes "Daly's Column" in the Philadelphia Ledger. While there was not a great deal said about bugs, the speaker, who is a host in himself, was listened to with marked attention, and a number of his poems, both humorous and sentimental, were heartily applauded. At the close of his talk J. Otto Thilow presented him with a handsome bunch of American Beauties on behalf of the club. The lecture was given in the lecture room of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, after which the club adjourned down stairs to its own quarters, where refreshments were served and a happy evening was spent. The club is now enjoying a state of prosperity that should be productive of good results.

NOTES.

The Lansdowne Flower Show Association held its second annual exhibition June 3. It was the first display under the auspices of the association, the exhibition last season being given by the same interests under another name. They have now formed an association, a miniature horticultural society, which will no doubt become full-fledged before long. The hall was very nicely decorated with cut shrubbery and baskets of cut flowers in all the window ledges. There were 100 classes, some of which had from eight to ten entries. The principal flower was the garden rose, of which there were several fine collections. Dr. Huey carried off the gold medal of the American Rose Society, for the best collection. Dr. Cryer winning the bronze. S. S. Pennock won five firsts and one second, one first being for a vase of shrubbery and evergreen branches of his own arrangement. Miss Kirk won the sweepstakes prize for the best rose in the show with a superb bloom of Duchess of Sutherland. Casper Pennock won first for collection of poppies. It is estimated that the attendance during the day and evening was over 1,000 visitors. It was a very successful show in every way, giving pleasure to a great many people, and certainly stimulating the interest in flowers for the decoration of the home and grounds.

The Leo Niessen Co. is handling quantities of American Beauties; they are very good for the season. Gladioli, Easter lilies and sweet peas are also quantity stock.

Gladioli, Easter lilies and choice lily of the valley were features of the Berger Brothers' market. Sweet peas were also a factor.

Exceptionally fine Cattleya gigas were the pride of the Edward Reid stock. Peonies are handled in quantity.

The interior of Pennock Bros.' store is very artistic with well arranged baskets of cut flowers in splendid color effects. All kinds of decorative pottery and floral nicknacks, vases, bowls, flower holders, etc., are nicely displayed. Their large bulk window is always a feature, with its best of the season flowers arranged in the very latest receptacles.

Joseph Heacock has received the democratic nomination for congress from his district. It took a long time to determine the candidate, as the vote was very close. Should he be elected, which, for the good of his constituents, we earnestly hope will be the case, he will certainly add quality to that national body.

Charles Henry Fox's window looked very pretty with Mock roses, cornflowers and a pink and white pond lily center, in a low, blue and white shallow basket. White vases held the flowers. Two blue parrots were perched on the edges of the lily pond, altogether a very pretty color effect.

Carl Corts, of the Joseph Heacock Co., is much pleased with business. Medium-sized roses, of which they have had quantities, have been the best sellers the entire season. The stork visited the Corts' residence, May 27, and left a little boy.

Samuel Lilley, of the Chalfonte Cut Flower Co., reports the new houses at Chalfonte about finished. He will have three houses, 35x250, and a connecting and propagating house, 12x133.

Laurel is now in full flower and much of it is seen in the windows and stores, making very effective decorations.

L. P. Vollers has resigned his position with E. R. Martin, 1725 Chestnut street.

MEMORIAL DAY DEMAND WEAK.

A review of the Memorial day business in this city shows that it was not as good as in previous years. It is true that for a few days previous to Memorial day, there was some activity in the wholesale district, due largely to out-of-town buyers, but the majority of retailers say that they reaped but little benefit, as what business there was went to the cemetery florists, and even they, or most of them interviewed, considered business dull. June is usually considered a good month for florists, but up to this writing business has been slow. We hope for an improvement at an early date. The weather has been fine and is sending more stock to market than can be handled. The best American Beauties are hard to move at $25 per 100, while stock supposed to grade as special, but of inferior quality, or if left over, goes as low as $10 and $15 per 100, or at that rate. Orchids are plentiful and cheap. The best Cattleya gigas are selling at the rate of $35 per 100; inferior grades have gone as low as $10 per 100. Carnations took a great drop on Memorial day and it is fine stock that will now bring $3 per 100; $1 to $2 is nearer the figures for the bulk of the stock. Three dollars is the best for lily of the valley. Lilies run from $5 to $8 per 100, the latter figure being paid only for exceptionally fine stock. Although the home crop of peonies is not yet in, the market is full of stock from Pennsylvania and other points where they are now in bloom and the price has dropped to about $3 per 100. We have reason to believe that thousands of them are now in cold storage in this city. Sweet peas seem to be doing about as well, or better than most other stocks. In snapdragons, stocks, yellow daisies and various flowering shrubbery, there is an abundant supply, selling cheap.

June 5.—The market opened this morning with an immense amount of stock on hand and low prices on nearly everything. In roses, carnations and sweet peas, much stock arrives in poor condition. The market is overloaded with peonies, and for the time being they have practically put the carnations out. The best are about as cheap, wholesale, as the best carnations, are more showy and last longer with the ultimate consumer. Many carnations are going a begging at from 50 cents to $1.50 per 100. The bulk of peonies are going at from 75 cents to $2 per 100. There are some sales of special stock at $3 per 100 and again there is inferior stock going to the push cart men at 50 cents per 100. Indoor lily of the valley holds out at $3 per 100.

NOTES.

John C. Young, father of A. L. Young, the well known wholesale florist of 54 West 28th street, died at his home in Tallmans, N. Y., May 29, aged 76 years. He was a Union veteran of the civil war, having served in the navy. His original ancestors in this country were among the early settlers in the colony of New Amsterdam, now New York, in the seventeenth century, and were among the organizers of the first Dutch church, now Dutch Reformed, in the colony. In later years, other ancestors fought under General Washington in the Revolutionary war. Mr. Young had been a merchant, but retired about 20 years ago. He was a man of fine character and had many friends. He is survived by a widow and daughter and two sons. The funeral and interment took place at Tallmans, June 1.

Alexander Donaldson has removed his growing business from Elmhurst, N. Y., to Englewood, N. J., where he has taken the Lydecker range, recently conducted by Herman Mammitch, who goes to Clifton, N. J. The Elmhurst range was sold some time ago to a real estate syndicate. Mr. Donaldson has been a successful grower of lilies, carnations, sweet peas and chrysanthemums, and will continue in the same line at Englewood. He is a son of John Donaldson, now living as a gentleman of leisure at Patchogue, N. Y.

Joseph Levy of the Brooklyn Cut Flower Market, 356 Fulton street, has recently been very ill, having had symptoms of appendicitis, and it was for a time feared that an operation would be necessary. We are pleased to state that he is again attending to business. During his illness, Mrs. Levy, who is both a good business woman and a good housewife, was kept very busy.

The George W. Crawbuck Co. has opened its wholesale store at 57 West 28th street, with George W. Crawbuck in charge, assisted by H. T. Phillips, vice-president and secretary, and H. W. Gallier, treasurer. The firm has started in business under very favorable conditions.

Although there has been considerable complaint, since Memorial day, of dullness in the wholesale district, Joseph A. Millang, of the Pierson department of the New York Cut Flower Co., is quite cheerful. He handles good stock and can get a good price if anybody can.

Nicholas Flessas, the retailer of Amsterdam avenue, has been in bed for several weeks with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, but is now somewhat improved. He is another man who is fortunate in having a good wife to look after the business.

John Young & Co. are receiving a fine quality of lilies from Carl Woerner, of Secaucus, N. J.; also, fine lilies and lily of the valley, and long strings of asparagus, but little of which is seen in this market.

Mrs. M. Loos, 504 Tenth avenue, had the decoration of the Admiral Farragut statue, Madison square, and other statues, for Memorial day and it was agreed that the work was well done.

Walter Singleman, of John J. Coan's staff, has been quite ill, but is now improving. During his enforced absence from the store Nick Schreiner has been Mr. Coan's understudy.

1302-1308 West Division Street,

CHICAGO

John H. Small, 3d, who looks after the landscape department of J. H. Small & Sons, has been for several weeks making his headquarters at their Madison avenue store.

The Twentieth Century Flower Shop, Fifth avenue and 42d street, had but a brief existence. The "birds have flown," so to speak, and the store is now offered for rent.

John Larkin, formerly with Harry Hoffmeir, 2369 Broadway, is now with E. J. Hession, Madison avenue and 76th street. He is a clever man in the retail business.

George C. Siebrecht, 109 West 28th street, is receiving fine Cattleya gigas, a good stock of peonies and a variety of other stock, including lilies and lily of the valley.

One of the heavy buyers in the wholesale district is M. Rovatzos, who has two retail stores in Pennsylvania—one at Scranton, the other at Wilkes-barre.

Sweet peas have taken a great drop. Some inferior stock that recently came in, went to the dump. It is now hard to get 75 cents, wholesale, for the best.

Attention is called to the announcement of James Coyle, in another column. He is an experienced wholesaler and deserving of patronage.

Frank H. Traendly, wholesaler, and Alfred T. Bunyard, retailer, were two of the judges at the recent show of the International Garden Club.

William P. Ford is now headquarters in West 28th street for peonies. He has them in quantity, and in variety to suit all tastes and fancies.

Pilot & Macres, of 144 Columbus avenue, have opened a summer store at Long Beach, L. I., with Jack Siegel as manager.

Joseph S. Fenrich, 51 West 28th street, is handling fine roses, Spanish iris and a good general stock of other cut flowers.

At the stores of Paul Meconi and Herman Weiss we have recently noticed fine stock of outdoor lily of the valley.

The Henshaw Floral Co. is handling fine roses in variety and shows many other good features.

CLUB MEETING.

Members of the florists' club at the June meeting decided to take part in the "Preparedness" parade to be held in this city, June 14, Flag day. A special meeting of the club was called for the evening of June 8 at the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, at which details were discussed. The club expects to be represented by a delegation of 50 or more, some of whom will be from out of the city. On motion of Edward P. Tracey, of the Rosery, the president at the June meeting named a committee of 10 to wait upon the board of education with a view to securing a revision of the rule in regard to the presentation of flowers to pupils at the graduating exercises in the public schools. The board some years ago decided that the flowers cannot be presented to the graduates on the stage, but must be given to them in the wings following the regular programme. The local florists want the ruling amended so as to permit of the presentation during the exercises, preferably following the presentation of certificates of graduation. The amended rule would, the florists believe, be a great help to the retail business. The committee named by President Thomas F. Tracey is made up of Edward P. Tracey, Frederick A. Danker, Byron Holmes, A. D. Wemple, William C. Gloeckner, Harry Riggs, John L. Travison, John J. Berberick, P. A. Yauch, and President T. F. Tracey.

The club voted to give $10 to the Society of American Florists fund for Mothers' day and to mail the same to John Young, secretary, New York. The invitation of Frederick Goldring to hold the July meeting at his place at Font Grove was accepted.

NOTES.

Frank J. Whaley, 117 Lexington avenue, has been named city forester at a salary of $1,300 a year. Mr. Whaley was selected from a civil service eligible list compiled after a competitive examination. He will have charge of city trees and shrubs under the direction of the park department.

Walter N. Lockrow, of Norwich, florist, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District court at Utica. His schedule shows liabilities of $1,286 and assets of $834.

MARKET HEAVILY STOCKED.

The local market is piled high with all kinds of flowers, mostly peonies, carnations and roses. Warm weather and lots of strong sunshine are largely responsible for the glut, but we still are having some rather cool nights. Business for Memorial day was largely effected by the warm weather with the result that not nearly so many flowers were sold as was expected. There were plenty of peonies and carnations for this day, but the warmth had its effect on them by the time they reached the retailers in most cases. We have been having plenty of rainfall of late and outdoor vegetation is in the best of condition. Outside lilac and lily of the valley are entirely done, but rose bushes are beginning to show color. The plantsmen are still as busy as ever and the sentiment voiced by all is that this has been the banner year for this department of the flower business.

NOTES.

W. P. & S. L. Gallaher have opened a new retail shop at 204 Fifth avenue, in the Bash building. W. P. Gallaher was until recently a member of the firm of Gallaher & Franks of the Fifth Avenue arcade.

The monthly meeting of the florists' club is scheduled for Tuesday, June 5, at the Fort Pitt hotel. "Peonies" will be the subject of discussion.

EXCELLENT MEMORIAL DAY TRADE.

Memorial day, 1916, has left a good record for amount of business done, with fairly satisfactory conditions as to prices, supply and quality of stock, etc., although there is the usual complaint as to the uncertainty of quality in carnations for these special occasions. The volume of business was a little the best ever, with the shipping trade holding its own nicely.
Peonies, carnations, jessamines and roses were the leaders in supply and demand in about the order named.
Prices were about as usual, the best peonies bringing $1.50 per dozen. The week preceding showed a good plant trade and helped in the final clean-up of bedding stocks, as June 1 is about the end of the spring bedding season.

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20-22, 1916.

DUTCH reports of May 12 indicate bulb crops generally looking well.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, June 7, were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $8.50 per 100 pounds.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—George E. Hayes, president of the Louisville Seed Co., has been elected vice-president of the local Rotary Club.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., has opened his cottage at Northport Point, where the family will spend the summer.

RECENT weather in the Chicago district has been quite wet and fairly cool, ideal growing conditions for onion sets except on low water-soaked ground.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Charles J. Bolgiano, of J. Bolgiano & Son, has donated a mess hall and kitchen for the Y. M. C. A. boys at Camp Conoy, costing $1,200.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—D. I. Bushnell has returned from an Arizona trip where he added to his anthropological collection. R. W. Pommmer will make an eastern trip in June.

CORN is rotting in the ground on account of the cold, wet, weather, and it will be necessary to replant a large area. Where the corn is up weeds have made a rank growth and it is impossible to cultivate.

SEATTLE, WASH.—The Chas. H. Lilly Co. advises that this has not been a favorable year for the seed specialties grown here. The spring has been very late, rather cold, and only a small acreage has been planted.

TRAVELERS in the southern France bulb districts report jobbers there as saying that certain bulb merchants from other countries make their purchases on the basis that bulbs shall be undergraded to secure lowest possible prices.

THE Illinois Seed Co., Chicago, will maintain a temporary office at the Sherman House during the convention of the American Seed Trade Association, pending the completion of the office at its new location, 349-369 East North Water street.

W. ATLEE BURPEE & Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., write as follows June 1: "This has been an exceptional year with us, a long drawn out season, resulting in a business that is very satisfactory, particularly so in summer flowering bulbs. We have had a demand for these that has never before been experienced by this concern. The demand for many varieties of seeds has been far beyond our expectations, and on the whole 1916 will prove a most satisfactory year in every respect."

FARMERS' BULLETIN No. 690, under the title of "The Field Pea as a Forage Crop," has been issued by the United States department of agriculture. It consists of 24 pages with illustrations and treats of the plant principally from a forage crop standpoint, as the title indicates.

KENTUCKY BLUE GRASS. — J. Chas. McCullough, of Cincinnati, O., who has just returned from a trip through the Kentucky blue grass fields, says the crop is very uncertain at this time. A short time ago the fields looked very discouraging, but since the recent rains they have improved a good deal and it is believed there will be more blue grass to offer than was expected some time ago. There has been some complaint that white clover has taken a great many fields, and Mr. McCullough found this to be the case.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—Condon Bros., who report a splendid business for 1916, recently purchased adjacent to this city the old McFarland farm in Guilford township, which will be known as Rock River Valley Seed Farm, on which they are conducting a very extensive trial ground and in addition, breeding and perfecting stocks of beans, corn, onion, peas, beets and radishes. In passing it is worthy of note that in the original transfer of this seed farm from the government in October 1839, the value was $1.25 per acre and today the price is $250 per acre.

NEW ORLEANS, LA. — Chris Reuter says the spring of 1916 shows an increase of approximately 30 per cent in his mail orders and a decrease of 15 per cent in sales of bulk field seeds. The extended drouth throughout the south during the spring months has interfered considerably with the movement of seeds, particularly in sections of Texas and Louisiana. Truck crops have proved profitable to the grower, principally cabbage, onion, potatoes, beans, etc., and an increased acreage of these crops will be planted this fall. He is looking forward to a good fall business.

French Bulb Crop.

A correspondent writing from Toulon, France, under date of May 12 says: "Regarding Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora, we must take into account the uncertainty of the harvest which may be mediocre, and the further fact that workmen are becoming more and more scarce. Under these conditions dealers will do well to make their contracts with reservation as to poor crop. Workmen are scarce and must be paid the wages they are worth, which are certainly high. We consider ourselves very lucky when we find men who are able to do the work."

"There has been no further action since the meeting of the syndicate, and both grower and merchant await the result of the harvest, which can not be foreseen."

Wisconsin Peas.

Wisconsin annually raises and cans, ready for household use, 37 per cent of the nation's supply of green peas, or eighty-three and one-quarter million cans. Some one has figured out that if these cans were laid end to end, in a straight line, they would reach from Madison to San Francisco, thence to Los Angeles, from there to New Orleans, and then back up the Mississippi to Madison again. And all this in spite of the painful increase of blight, which of late years has done much to lessen the state's annual income from pea production. During the past four years the experiment station has been investigating the troublesome malady, which wilts and blackens the pea vines in a short time, especially on land where peas have been raised for a number of years. Specialists in plant diseases have been cooperating with farmers and canning factory owners seeking effective means of combating the malady. Different cultural methods have been tried and a variety which might prove to be resistant to blight has been sought. From this cooperation certain facts have been learned relative to the control of pea blight, and among them: 1. That lack of suitable rotation of crops favors the development of pea blight. 2. That thorough drainage of the soil helps to check the development of the disease. 3. That plowing and harrowing immediately after the removal of the crop will be of great benefit in reducing the blight. 4. That ensiling the pea vine tends to destroy disease spores by fermentation. Many of the newer factories have built silos to convert the vines into highly nutritious stock food. This at once lessens the spread of the blight disease and utilizes the vines for a better purpose than formerly, when they were spread upon the land.

The Reynolds Preserving company, of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., together with 79 other pea packers in the state, were notified during the last week by the Wisconsin industrial commission that factories this year must operate without permitting women to work in excess of the limits laid down in the law. This notification follows the supreme court's decision on the law limiting hours of labor of women, which makes it impossible for canners to operate on the extended limitation of woman's hours which has been their privilege since the legislature of 1913, recognizing their peculiar needs, made provision for them. Under the law women may be employed not to exceed 55 hours in any one week, and not to ex-

Snow's June Crop Report.

Snow's report of June 1 says: "Condition of winter wheat 75.5, the lowest with one exception in more than 10 years and a decline of 3.6 points during May. Heavy loss is in Kansas, Oklahoma and on the Pacific coast, resulting from Hessian fly in Kansas and dry weather in Oklahoma and California. Decline in prospect is also shown in Tennessee and Kentucky and in Illinois and Missouri. The present crop indications are for 489,000,000 bushels, against 492,000,000 on May 1.

"Spring wheat acreage is reported at 17,813,000 acres, or a decrease of eight per cent, equal to 1,522,000 acres. The crop is very late, has been seeded under unfavorable conditions and the June 1 condition is reported at only 89.5. This is the lowest June 1 condition since 1907, and it is significant that in the last 25 years no crop that started with a June condition below 90 has ever made a good yield per acre. The present conditions indicate a yield of 13.8 bushels per acre, or a crop of about 246,000,000 bushels."

Cantaloupes From Imperial Valley.

Brawley, Calif., May 26.—The biggest cantaloupe deal in the world is now on and each day will see a big increase in shipments. The first car left by Wells Fargo express May 16; one car on the 17th; one on the 18th; two on the 19th; four on the 20th; four on the 21st by express and one by freight; seven by express and three by freight on the 22nd; six by express and six by freight on the 23rd; and seven by express and seven by freight on the 24th; with the estimated shipments for the 25th at about 20 cars. According to the estimates there are about 8,500 acres. All shippers agree that there will be a heavy yield. Some patches will run as high as 275 crates to the acre, some about 200. Figuring on an average of 225 crates will make the output about 6,000 cars; at 200 crates it will make it over 5,000 cars.

Staking Tomatoes.

We have in these columns repeatedly commented upon the merits of training tomatoes to posts, strings or wires in field culture. We are fully aware that this method of production has been condemned by experiment stations and growers; while, on the other hand, there are plenty of growers who would not produce tomatoes any other way. The fact remains that local conditions have a great deal to do with the method to pursue—wherever a market demands a perfect product at a good price, staking will give the result. Last year was a disastrous one for the field tomato crop in our locality (Ohio), the excessive rains producing leaf instead of fruit; blight followed, and the fruit resting on the ground was worthless. These conditions have caused a general increase in stake culture. There is no doubt but another factor has entered—the greenhouse product. Our greenhouse growers have educated the public up to a higher standard—where formerly the outdoor early tomatoes were eagerly bought at fancy prices, they would go almost begging for a buyer unless quite perfect. This is a question that the market alone can decide; we would prefer a general reduction in area planted and an increase in quality of product.

In regard to cultural methods, there are several. A favorite distance for rows is four feet apart with the plants 24 inches apart in the rows. These are trimmed to single stems, removing all side shoots as soon as they appear. The common practice is to set a pole for each plant; these poles may be from four to seven feet long. Some growers aim to get only two or three clusters of fruit; they top the plant after enough fruit has set, and can get along with a shorter pole than those who carry the plant through the whole season. Another method is to set heavy stakes every eight feet and run a strong wire overhead. A strong twine is fastened to the plant below and to wire overhead, and the plants are twisted to the strings same as under glass. This is an excellent method except that it puts an enormous strain on the posts, wire and end posts if the crop is good.

Compromise between the two is to use a light stake for each plant and tie these to an overhead wire. By using pipe posts and running wires square across field to cross-brace the rows, a pretty solid job is possible. As an offset for the cost of staking and suckering we have a decided saving in picking labor, besides a much finer quality of fruit. MARKETMAN.

Condition of Truck Crops.

The bureau of crop estimates, United States department of agriculture, has received from a special list of truck-crop growers in 30 states reports relating to various crops on May 1. Estimates are based on 100 per cent as representing a normal condition. The result of the tabulation of replies, together with comparative figures for May 1, 1915, where available are as follows:

COLUMBIA, Mo.—The Missouri State Florists' Association at its annual meeting held here May 25, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: J. A. Kaupp, Nevada, president; Edward Denker, St. Charles, vice-president; W. S. Wells, St. Louis, secretary; C. C. Sanders, Clayton, treasurer.

Poisoned Bait For Cutworms.

Cutworms usually begin to damage crops about the time in spring when the grain first sprouts. Between this time and late June or early July they often prove disastrous to the farmer. The worm, however, so closely resembles the color of the soil in which it rests during the day that the cause of the crop injury is not always apparent. In such cases a careful examination of the soil surrounding the damaged plant will probably reveal the worm curled up in a little ball. When cutworms are abundant on corn land, the use of poisoned bait is recommended in Farmers' Bulletin 739 of the United States department of agriculture. The poisoned bait may be prepared by mixing 50 pounds of wheat bran, two pounds of Paris green and six finely chopped oranges or lemons. Low-grade molasses is added until the whole mixture attains the consistency of a stiff dough. Water also may be added if necessary, and middlings or alfalfa meal may be substituted for the bran. This bait should be distributed over the infested field in small lumps, and sprinkled sparingly around each hill. In cases where the field is known to be infested, this bait should be distributed as soon as the corn appears above the ground and before the cutworms have had an opportunity to do much damage. It is best to apply the bait during the late afternoon or early evening hours, as the cutworms do most of their feeding at night. A narrow band of the poisoned bait placed around the edge of the field will also assist in protecting the field from an invasion of the worms from adjoining grassland.

BUSINESS HOLDS UP WELL.

Memorial day business this year was the best in the history of the trade in this city. Peonies took the lead, but much of the stock had to be shipped in, the local crop being late. Carnations were fine in quality and were readily disposed of at $1 per dozen, the peonies bringing from $1 to $2. Roses were plentiful and the stock was good, with prices normal. Bedding plants sold well and boxwood was never in better demand. June business has started in well and from all indications the florists will have a good month before them. The finest of weather prevails.

NOTES.

Rosenfield's Peony Farm is at present the attraction of this city. It is a wonderful sight and a credit to Mr. Rosenfield and the community, a constant stream of autos taking visitors to see the wonderful display. Peonies are especially fine in this section this year, due to the moist season last year. In fact, everything in the way of outdoor stock is looking fine.

A severe hailstorm visited South Omaha, May 28, the principal sufferers being Louis Zadina, who lost about half of his glass, and Louis Henderson, who had about 2,500 feet broken.

GRIPPE.

American Association of Nurserymen.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;
John Watson, Newark, N. Y., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.

Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 28-30, 1916.

NILES, MICH.—C. O. Youngstrand and the Niles Nursery Co. have consolidated and will grow a complete line of hardy plants in addition to nursery stock.

GENEVA, N. Y.—William L. McKay, proprietor of the Van Dusen Nurseries, died of heart trouble May 25, aged 61 years. He had been engaged in the nursery trade for nearly 35 years.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF.—Chas. A. Chambers, formerly secretary of the Fresno Nursery Co., has established an agricultural information bureau with experiment grounds in connection in this city.

BALDWINVILLE, N. Y.—Russell Bros., who have a range of four houses, four miles from this city, have incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000 and will immediately build four additional houses, each 40 x 125 feet.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Mayor Hoan has intimated that he will re-appoint James Currie, of the well-known firm of Currie Bros., seedsmen, as member of the board of park commissioners of this city for the term of five years.

Cottage Gardens' California Branch.

The Cottage Gardens Co., of Queens, L. I., has an important branch at Eureka, Calif. This branch includes 400 acres of land, 35,000 feet of modern glass structures, five acres of lath houses and two acres of frames. The plants grown here embrace a complete assortment of nursery stock for landscape work, also Azalea Indica, rhododendrons, berried hollies, conifers, broad leaved evergreens and a general line of florists' forcing stock. Holland bulbs, peonies and lilies are grown in a wholesale way, mostly narcissi and tulips, bedding and forcing, in the first named. Some extensive experiments with Dutch hyacinths have thus far proved successful.

Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen.

A very interesting programme has been arranged for the fourteenth annual convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen which will be held at Medford, Ore., June 20-22, among the papers and discussions to be presented being the following: "Systems of Financing the Nursery Business," "Quarantine Regulations," "Fundamental Principles Governing Correct Methods of Salesmanship," "Fixed Charges Including Inspection and Disinfection," "Improvements in Methods of Selling Trees and Plants" and "Care of Orchards to Insure Quality and Quantity of Product." An excellent opportunity is offered delegates in attendance to visit one of the greatest fruit belts of the Pacific coast as well as virgin forests and the famed mountain and valley scenery of the Rogue River district. Among the social features will be visits to a number of the deciduous fruit orchards in the vicinity.

Exochorda Giraldii Wilsonii.

The Chinese Pearl Bush (Exochorda racemosa) has long been a familiar and much admired shrub in many American gardens on account of its showy racemes of large, pure white flowers. Old specimens assume an open and not a very attractive habit, and lose much of their early beauty. The variety (E. Giraldii) which was discovered by Wilson in western China and named for him, although in its native country it is a wide-spreading shrub, in cultivation here grows like a tree with a single straight stem and comparatively short branches which form a narrow pyramidal head. The flowers are much larger than those of the old-fashioned pearl bush, and this new introduction promises to be a better garden plant. It is now well established in the arboretum where several plants are now in flower, and in other Massachusetts gardens. The Chinese exochorda is best known as E. grandiflora, but the older and correct name is E. racemosa. On Hickory Path, near Centre street, E. macrantha, an interesting hybrid between the Chinese E. racemosa and E. Korolkowii from central Asia is in flower. The flowers and foliage resemble those of the Chinese plant, but the branches, like those of its Turkestan parent, are much more upright in growth.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 27, 1916.

(This subject will be rated as to form, style, matter, penmanship and general neatness.)

Write a letter, properly addressed, to the Superintendent of Parks, St. Paul, Minn., giving a complete specification for the preparation, and sowing with grass seed, of a 100-foot square plot.

Subject: Arithmetic (Wt. 10).

Weather conditions were favorable, stock was plentiful and the Memorial day trade this year proved much better than that of a year ago. Prices were good and the strong demand for magnolia wreaths was a feature.

NOTES.

The Flick Floral Co. had a splendid Memorial day call for wreaths, cut flowers and plants. The hydrangeas displayed here were exceptionally fine. A very striking window decoration for centennial week is attracting much attention. The forces at both the store and the greenhouses are kept busy with June weddings and planting.

A. J. Lanternier reports a splendid trade on Memorial day. At present his force is busy cutting thousands of carnations. He will have a booth at the Industrial exposition, in charge of Miss Irene Lanternier and an attractive display of bouquets, decorative plants and cut flowers will be made.

Many of the florists have arranged striking window displays for centennial week, one of the most attractive being that of the Doswell Floral Co. Miss Rhoda Doswell of this firm also had the order for the decoration of the bird room at the Woman's building, a very elaborate arrangement.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey report a very satisfactory Memorial day demand. They have been rushed for several weeks getting out an enormous amount of planting. They are now cutting a splendid lot of Cattleya gigas.

H. K.

Providence, R. I.

Trade during the past week has been brisk, stimulated by several funerals and a number of large weddings. Stock has been plentiful, but prices have been low on all lines. Carnations and roses are moving at low figures. Tulips are about done for.

Olney Williams is making some large cuts of carnations, but cleans up daily.

MADISON, N. J.Hail at Fort Smith.

We are indebted to J. F. Johnson & Co., well-known florists of Fort Smith, Ark., for additional details of the severe storm which visited that city, May 20, a brief report of which appeared in our issue of May 27, page 1010. The writer reports that the storm, which was the most severe in 20 years, caused damage in the locality which will run into many thousands of dollars. Tomatoes and cabbage suffered heavily. Three thousand John Baer tomato plants at the Johnson establishment were damaged so that further pickings could not be made for three weeks. The following glass loss is reported: J. F. Johnson & Co., 1,080 lights; Geo. Rye, 610 lights; Burley Johnson, about 25 per cent; Brockman's Flower Shop, 200 lights; Electric Park Greenhouses, about 25 per cent; Freeman, $20; Cooney Wonch, $30.

Hail at Kansas City.

A severe hailstorm, which visited the south and southeastern sections of this city, June 2, caused considerable damage to glass and to growing stock outside. Among the sufferers were the Bunker Hill Greenhouses and William Poith, who lost 300 lights and 250 lights respectively. Five hundred lights of glass were broken at the Martin Greenhouses at Shawnee, Kan. Considerable damage to vegetables is also reported.

EDGERTON, WIS.—B. C. Wilson has opened a flower shop at Main and Fulton streets.

BANGOR, ME.—Samuel R. Prentiss has been appointed park commissioner for this city.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—H. R. Mitting, proprietor of the Morningview Floral Co., has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities are listed at $6,729; assets growing stock on rented land.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Pot Grown Roses.

The hybrid perpetual or rambler roses after blooming if desired to force another year, in order to bloom them early should be grown in pots during the summer. They can be pruned back after blooming and lifted, or if in pots should be repotted. This will require a good, strong soil, composed of two-thirds loam and one-third manure. When potting be sure to give good drainage and pot firmly, ramming the soil down hard. It is impossible to grow roses successfully in a loose soil. The plants should be plunged to rim of the pot outside where they can be freely watered. Avoid, if possible, placing them against the greenhouse or other building or against a fence, but plant them where they will have a free circulation of air and can be sprayed from either side. If planted against a building or in close quarters, they frequently become infected with red spider during the hot weather and it is nearly impossible to get rid of them.

Asparagus Plumosus and Sprengeri.

It is a good time now to plant, reset or renew the soil of asparagus beds, either plumosus or Sprengeri. If the beds are to be set out with young stock preparation should be started at once. Asparagus plumosus does better in solid beds, well drained, with a good rich compost about two feet deep. The plants should be set 12 to 15 inches apart and the shoots be given strings upon which to climb as soon as they begin to grow. But little cutting should be done the first year as it is necessary that the plants become well established. The old beds should be given a good mulch of half-decayed manure, and if possible, without injury to the roots, removing the top soil. Asparagus Sprengeri can be successfully grown in the bench, but also requires a good rich soil. The young stock the first year should be planted 10 to 12 inches apart, and will produce many stems that can be cut. The beds that have produced this year will require a renewal of the soil. It is better to replant than to try to renew the soil in the bench. The plants are great feeders and the bench is generally full of roots after a year's growth and it will be found difficult to keep the bench watered during the spring of the second year. If the plants are too close together they can be given more space in resetting. Good large plants will do better if set about 15 inches apart. If a mulch is attempted, care should be taken to use no fresh manure, but manure that is well rotted. The ammonia that arises from fresh manure will affect the plants, turning the foliage light, and in severe cases the foliage will become nearly white, making it worthless.

Mignonette.

To be able to cut fine spikes of mignonette in early winter will require an early start, and although it demands care and attention to germinate small seeds during hot weather, yet it will be necessary to sow seed early in July in order to have a cut in by the holiday season. A north propagating house is one of the best locations for the sowing of seeds in summer. Mignonette does not transplant from the seed flats successfully, so it is better to sow it in 2½-inch pots, five or six seeds to a pot, which can be thinned out to one or two plants as soon as they are large enough to select the strongest. Some growers prefer to sow the seed in hills in the bench, but to grow the large spikes of this flower requires a soil very heavily manured, and the constant watering often sours the soil before the plants have pushed out roots enough to absorb the water. As soon as the plants have attained a height of two or more inches the tip should be pinched or rubbed out, that the plant will branch, and again later these branches will have to be pinched off, until there are six or eight good, strong shoots. The plants will grow in most any kind of good soil, but to get the best the compost should be about one-half partly decayed manure well mixed in the soil and this will produce splendid spikes of bloom. After the plants begin to form their leaves a careful watch must be kept for the cabbage worm; these worms are very fond of mignonette and are voracious eaters, and soon denude the plant. They are a little difficult to find, being of the same color as the leaf, but are generally found along the midrib of the leaf or on the stem. Growers who cultivate large quantities of this crop screen their ventilation with mosquito netting to keep out the moth which lays the eggs. The plants should be set about one foot apart in the bench and staked or tied in some suitable manner to keep the stems straight and erect.

Cyclamens.

The plants of cyclamen should now be growing rapidly, especially those which were grown from seed sown last fall. These plants should now be in four or five-inch pots and the foliage growing full and strong. If the plants are plunged in a frame, they should be lifted out of the soil occasionally to see that the drainage is not stopped up. There is nothing that will ruin a young growing cyclamen any quicker than to have the drainage get closed and have the soil become sodden with water. Angle worms will often cause this and if they are detected should be removed. It is very easy to find whether they are in the pots. If the soil on the top of the pot is rolled into small lumps it is a sure sign that there are worms in the soil. If there are but a few the plants can be knocked out of the pots and the worms removed; if there are many a watering of lime water will soon rid the soil of the worms. The plants that are in small pots should be potted up as fast as they require it that they may be as large as possible for the holiday season, but do not go to the other extreme and pot in too large pots. As soon as the roots get around the side of the pot shift them into the next size larger. If the plants are in the greenhouse a close watch for thrips must be kept during the summer. If the foliage is twisted when the leaf begins to unfold it is sure to be caused by insects and the plants should be sprayed with a nicotine solution. To have good plants for the holidays in full bloom they must be constantly watched and well grown.

Bougainvilleas.

The plants of bougainvilleas that are through blooming should be cut back into shape and potted in preparation for the next season's growth. Much depends upon the summer care of all hard-wooded stock if nice specimens are to be grown. They should be plunged outside in a frame or placed in full sun in a light airy house. Outside culture is far preferable for all this class of stock in order that a good strong growth, well furnished with foliage, may be assured. Be sure that they never get too dry. The great danger of all hard-wooded stock is letting it dry out, for it does not show it as quickly as the softer growing plants, but the check is more severe and the plants seldom fully recover from it. The young stock rooted earlier should be placed in a similar location, and kept well pinched back into shape, until enough shoots have been obtained to insure a good shapely plant, when they can be allowed to grow freely, but any extra strong leaders are better cut back during the season. Any chance flowers that show should be picked off at once, that a good strong stocky plant may be obtained and the strength all retained for that purpose.

Fancy Leaved Caladiums.

It will soon be found difficult to obtain the quality of flowers necessary to maintain a fine window display, so attractive plants will be required, and the show houses leading from the store or office will need something with bright color to attract attention. The fancy leaved caladiums are beautiful plants for this purpose, and should now be nice plants in four or five-inch pots. Nice plants can be grown in these sizes and they are easily arranged in a bed of green sheet moss and are very attractive. For the young stock now coming on a very light house is an absolute necessity to obtain the highly colored leaves, and almost a full exposure to the rays of the sun. While the plants delight in a moist atmosphere, this must not be obtained by heavy shading, but by frequent syringing and damping down the walks and under the benches. The temperature should be kept warm and close, never dropping below 60 degrees at night, even if a little fire heat is required. They will require copious watering to keep the beautiful leaves in good condition, and considerable feeding to bring the high colors and large, full leaves. Should flower buds form they should be immediately removed, for they will check the growth of the leaves.

Compost Pile.

The extra help that is so often employed during the spring trade can be utilized for a few days before they are let go, in getting together a good compost pile, and there is no better time of the year than the present to do this. The sod can be taken off now after the mowing with no great amount of grass upon it, and if stacked at this time the warm summer days will soon rot the sod and make the pile fine and mellow. So many growers will spend their money for coal and labor and skimp on that most necessary thing for good product, the soil upon which the plant depends for its culture, and again put the matter off until the fall when the days are cold, the soil too often full of moisture, and the hauling poor, which makes the work more expensive and in the end not having as good an article for the succeeding year. It is not necessary to stack the manure with the pile at this time, but if ground bone is to be used it is better to sprinkle it into the pile now. Bone dissolves slowly and the earlier it is incorporated in the soil the better, and it also helps the rotting of the sod. Take advantage of the slack time with both the men and teams and get the compost pile up at once.

THE ROSE.

Planting.

It is very essential to finish up about all of the planting during the month of June. If the stock is to be planted on raised benches, the houses should undergo a thorough cleaning, especially if the tables have been used. After removing the old plants and soil, clean out under the tables and then wash off the bench boards with the hose, after which give them a good coat of whitewash. Of course, the necessary repairs should be made, removing any of the doubtful looking material that apparently would not last through another season. The benches should have a depth of six inches, and when filling them, if they are filled level full, and the soil firmed, it will bring the depth of the soil to about five inches, which will be found about right. Do not plant in wet soil, for it will not get into the proper condition afterwards. The soil should be fairly moist, just enough so that it will pack nicely. Be sure that there is sufficient drainage by placing the bottom boards three-quarters of an inch apart.

One of the most durable benches and a very satisfactory one in every way is made as follows: Place two rows of bricks, four feet apart running the length of the house, resting on the grade line. They should set back four inches further than the outside of the finished bench, as the bottom boards of the bench should have a four-inch overhang, the boards being placed crosswise the bench. Place a row of feel assured that it is so far superior to the latter method that when used once it will be used always.

But to return to the planting. Great care should be used when knocking out the plants to look over each plant (especially the grafted ones) and see to it that the union is perfect, and when selecting the own root stock do not plant any "black legs" (stems that have black spots or circles around them), nor the streaked foliage plants. One should always have sufficient stock of each variety to make the selection of good stock a certainty. After the benches or beds have been filled with soil even with the sides, they should be tramped down by merely walking on the surface; walk naturally and do not try to pack it by exerting any extra pressure with the feet. After tramping, level off the surface carefully with the hands and then lay off the rows lengthwise the bed. To do this properly take a stick 1x2 inches and about 10 inches longer than the width of the bed and place a 10-penny wire nail five inches from one end. This will act as a guide and should be on the outside of the bed and held there when drawing the strip along as a marker. The other nails to be spaced one for each row. The two outside rows should be about five inches from the outside edges of the beds. The distance between these rows is equally divided. With a man on each side of the table or bed, the marker can be drawn the full length of the bed laying off 3x4 or three rows at one time. We strongly advocate the three-row and four-row to the bed system; five rows make a very unhandy bed to care for, and the center row is usually a very poorly developed lot of plants throughout the season. Nearly all of the indoor forcing roses can be planted about 15 inches apart in the row, except American Beauty or Radiance. The former should be about 20 inches apart and the latter about 18 inches. When planting the grafted stocks, see that the union or splice will be covered by the soil when the beds are leveled off. We have always found it an excellent plan to pack the soil firmly around each plant, leaving a saucer-like depression at each plant; this makes it possible to water each plant individually if necessary, and it also leaves a quantity of absolutely fresh soil between the plants for the formation of new roots when the soil is finally leveled, which usually takes from two to four weeks from the time they are planted. If the plants take hold good, the saucers can be filled in, usually after the second weeding of the beds. Do not let the soil between the plants become dry, but allow enough water daily to keep the surface moist; otherwise there will be too little humidity in the house for a good growing condition, and very often the foliage will burn. Stake the grafted plants immediately after planting, or many will become separated or partly so by syringing, and it is a good plan to stake all of the stock as soon after planting as possible as the only means we have to keep them clean is by spraying with the hose. They can not be sprayed properly if lying around wallowing on the soil. When watering the young stock allow them just enough so they should require a little daily. Do not keep them too wet at the start. E.

Wages Paid on Danish Farms.

The leading industry in Denmark is agriculture. The general average in money payments to the workers during 1915 was $121 per annum to the men and $72 to the women. Board and lodging are furnished by the employers. These wages are the highest ever paid in Denmark for farm labor and the year may be considered to have been a banner one for wage earners living on farms. During the last five years wages paid to male and female farm workers have increased about 15 and 20 per cent, respectively. Day farm laborers receive on an average $0.93 per day and women day workers $0.69. These figures are about 20 per cent higher than five years ago. The hours of labor are about 9.6 a day during the spring and summer. In the fall 9.9 hours are the rule, while in the winter only 8.1 hours are demanded. As compared with five years ago the day's labor has been shortened one-third of an hour.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Specimen Plants.

These plants should now be ready to be given their final potting, the size of the pots to be governed according to the present size and condition of the plants. Chrysanthemum plants require a large size pot for growing into very large specimens, but unless the plants have been grown along with the object in view of making large plants, and have now attained size enough to need a large pot, it will be safer to use a smaller size. Overpotting is a detriment in more ways than one: First, unless the plants are large enough to get control of the soil quickly, there is danger of the soil becoming sour, causing the roots to rot and making an end to the plant as a fine specimen. Secondly, when the roots have an overabundance of soil to work in, the shoots become too long-jointed so that it is hard to keep the plants dwarf and of good form. Thirdly, too much root space delays the ripening of the wood, preventing the taking of the buds on time, consequently the flowers will be late in maturing as well as being under size and not true to the form of the variety. It is the same with these large specimens as it is with the single stem plants for cut blooms; the wood must be well ripened to get the best out of them that is possible.

SOIL.

Chrysanthemums grown in pots, whether as specimen bush or standard plants, need a rich soil, not too light, but heavy enough to give the roots strength to work through it—a coarse soil is also better suited to them than a fine one. Make up a compost of one part well rotted manure to three parts loam sod soil, add to this some coarse bone and lime rubble and a four-inch pot full of Clay's fertilizer to each wheel-barrow load of soil. If there is one thing more particular than another frequent syringings until the soil shows the need of watering again. As soon as the roots have taken well hold of the soil the plants will need frequent waterings, but one of the secrets in growing fine specimen chrysanthemums is to allow the soil to dry out well between each watering and then water thoroughly.

STAKING AND TRAINING.

The staking and training out of the branches should start with the final potting of these plants. A main support should be given the main stem of the plant, then support the other branches as they need it until the plants attain size when it becomes necessary to put on the wire rings or other supports. Plenty of room must be given the plants to enable the grower to work around them at all times as well as to allow a free circulation of air to keep the plants in good health and foliage. C. W. JOHNSON.

Prospect Park, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Visitors to New York, if they are not entirely dazzled by the allurements of the "Great White Way" and Coney Island, should visit Prospect park and June is a good month for a visit. The horticultural attractions are many and varied and there are other attractions that may be hereafter noted. The topography of the park, with its gentle declivities rich in trees and flowering shrubs, its beautiful grassy vales and dells, and its miniature lakes form many scenes worthy of an artist's brush.

At the time of our last visit, June 8, there was a grand display of blooming rhododendrons. In the planting, these have been distributed in various sections of the park. The most prominent display was on the slopes of a dell which has been named the "Vale of Cashmere." Here were thickets of rhododendrons from two to ten feet in height, well branched and beautifully flowered. Near at hand is the "rose garden," which is well laid out and contains the best varieties. In an-

to be sure about when potting these large plants, it is to allow them plenty of drainage, so that the water will pass freely through the soil. Pot firmly, using a ramming stick for the operation. After potting the greatest care must be exercised as regards watering, so that the soil does not become sodden before the roots have a chance to get hold of it. Water so as to settle the soil, then apply moisture by other section of the park the "flower garden" is located. Here is found a very great variety of hardy herbaceous flowering plants, and at the time of our visit the peonies and irises were very attractive.

Near the flower garden is a valley, that of itself is a noteworthy attraction. At the foot of the slopes leading to it there was a great wealth of rhododendrons of smaller growth than those previously mentioned, but showing great masses of bloom. We would call a part of this valley a happy combination of natural and formal gardening. The natural features are a number of large oriental sycamores, almost giants in fact, with trunks two feet or more in diameter. These great trees shade a smooth and grassy lawn.

The formal feature is in the form of a square, around which have been placed statue-busts of Mozart, Beethoven and other men noted in music and poetry. There is also near at hand a fine statue of Abraham Lincoln. This garden was not at its best when we visited it, as the cold season had prevented the planting of tender stock in the beds and vases. There was, however, a fine display of pansies and English daisies.

A noteworthy feature of this park is the number and variety of fine trees. Prominent are the red and silver maples, the white and black oaks, hickories, sweet birches and Cladrastris lutea or yellow wood, the gracefully drooping flowers of which are attractive in any location. In another section there is a pastoral scene, a flock of sheep guarded by a Scotch shepherd.

There is also a menagerie. It is probable that the unfortunate animals condemned to captivity are as well off in a park as they would be, confined in any other place, but they are not happy. While it may be revolutionary doctrine, we would be glad to see all menageries abolished. "Studying the habits" of animals in captivity is a stock phrase that has no meaning. Trying to get out is the most noteworthy habit of most of them, and who can blame them? A. F. F.

THE CARNATION.

Care of the Plants.

The field plants are now in good growth, being stronger than usual at this early date. It has been a good growing season for them, and unless the weather becomes extremely hot and dry, we ought to have some fine plants for housing by the end of July. The fight is on to keep the land clear of weeds and last year's experience of many growers should be a guide to get the best of the weed crop early enough in the season to prevent them choking out the plants, then if the weather continues to be very wet the weeds will not have a chance to overgrow the carnation plants as was the case last year on many places.

The Planet, Jr., hand cultivator, is one of the most useful implements used in the field culture of carnations; especially to the grower who grows a moderate number of plants its continual use saves a lot of hoeing as well as keeping the surface soil of the land open, which is very beneficial to the plants. After the land has been hoed over a time or two to clear it of the weeds, it should be cultivated at least once a week and as soon as it dries out after heavy rains by doing this, the surface soil is kept open and the moisture conserved at the roots of the plants.

Next winter's crop depends greatly on the careful attention given the plants as regards the topping of the growths during the summer months, especially while the plants are in the field and every shoot that they can be encouraged to make, means additional flowers when the season for blooming comes around. From now on until the plants are lifted for housing, it will be necessary to attend to the topping once a week or oftener; all the shoots cannot be topped at one time—some that are not ready one day may need looking after a few days later. Always be sure and make a clean pinch of the topping so that the remaining shoot on the plant is not damaged.

Any of the plants in the houses that are through blooming and are no longer profitable enough to be cared for, should be cleaned out to prevent them becoming infested with red spider or thrips. The plants that are worth caring for should receive the necessary care to keep them in good condition; daily watering and syringing will have to be the rule during hot, bright weather as well as full ventilation both night and day. A little extra shade on the glass will help to keep the flowers of good quality for a few weeks yet. Benches where the plants are finished can be cleaned and repaired in readiness for the time of lifting again.

The grower to be successful with indoor culture must get his plants planted into their permanent quarters without delay. The preparation of the houses and benches should be as thorough as for the field plants and the best carnation soil provided, making sure that it does not contain green animal manure—well rotted material only should be used. Plant 10 inches apart each way or as close as the support rings will allow. Indoor grown plants do not grow as bushy as those from the field, consequently they will stand closer planting. Plant firmly and pay close attention to the watering, which should be done with the aim of allowing the roots some fresh soil to work in all the time until thoroughly established. At first water the soil at the base of the plants only, syringing two or three times a day during hot weather to form a damp atmosphere, then as the plants become more established a more general watering of the soil can be given. The plants require full sunlight from the start, with plenty of ventilation day and night and close attention to surface scratchings of the beds to keep the soil open and sweet. C. W. JOHNSON.

WITH THE GROWERS

Gude Bros. Co., Inc., Washington, D. C.

One of the largest establishments in the east for the growing of cut flowers and plants is that of the Gude Bros. Co., Inc., at Washington, D. C. They have two ranges; the first was started in Anacostia, a suburb of Washington, in 1887, and the Mount Olivet extension, a place of nine acres, was purchased from the Strauss estate, about five years ago. On the latter were the houses of the American Rose Company, but so far gone that new and more modern structures took their place. The entire amount of glass is about 350,000 feet, all of which, with the exception of one of the original Anacostia sections, which is to be torn down and renewed this summer, is filled with stock that for the season of the year is in splendid condition. Almost everything in cut flowers and plants that is used in a retail store is grown here and sold at both wholesale and retail through their immense store at Thirteenth and F streets. One marvels at the variety seen here and the quantity in which some of the stock is grown. Roses may be said to be the feature and American Beauties are cut the year round, but the plants are never allowed to go more than one year, renewals being made from the last of May on, until the houses are all replenished. The first house was set out about May 20, and they will commence to cut from these in August. Black spot is their worst enemy; a new house with fresh beds, all fine plants, given in charge of their best American Beauty grower, at one time developed one of the worst cases of this trouble they ever had. Too much water in dull weather, and carelessness with heat and air, is supposed to cause black spot, but this time they were at a loss to account for it and had to nurse the plants along until they recovered. Twenty-five thousand American Beauties, 10,000 Mock and about the same of Radiance, in addition to Sunset, Ophelia, Mrs. Ward, White Killarney, double and single, Cecile Brunner, Richmond, Maryland, and a house of John Cook's Enchantress, a fine pink not generally known, and others were seen here. Mr. Gude says Radiance is their best money-getter, with Mock a close second. Red Radiance, which sported with them, is also thought to be a good one.

Carnations are the next quantity crop, some 40,000 plants, and all appear to like the soil and climate, they do so well. Sweet peas are also a feature; they are given houses to themselves and grown along with carnations. They are planted in rows across five to six-foot beds and a light, fence-like scaffolding, the length of the house, either side of the walks affords support for a moveable board used by the men when picking. This is more stable than a stepladder, and being in between the rows, every flower is in sight and easily reached. Orchid varieties only are grown and pickings are made from the same plants commencing in November and continuing until after Easter. Plenty of fire and air was the remedy for buds dropping. New stock for summer picking was well up; as many as 80 varieties were grown last season. Gardenias are grown here in quantity and do well. There was no particular secret about this—they should have heat enough and not subjected to too violent changes of temperature. It is hard in dull, dark winter days to hold all the buds, but until the sun can be controlled, and there being no Joshuas in sight, losses from this trouble will occur.

Violets are also one of the staples, quantities being required when in season, but they were now making way for inside asters and pot cyclamens, which they will follow in the fall. Chrysanthemums take the place of the sweet peas—this firm's business calls for an immense cutting in all grades. Nelrose snapdragons and Machet mignonette are their varieties of these popular flowers—they are the "cut and come again" kind. What might be called novelties were a few large plants of a double white jessamine, which gave them "orange" flowers and sprays nearly all the year around. Stephanotis, a house of lovely vines, full of flowers, was also a feature. This was on a pipe frame support some four feet in height, the vines making a top covering of about four feet in width; there was possibly 75 to 100 feet of it, from which a bushel or more of flowers could be cut at any time during summer. Ferns, whole houses of them, including all kinds of nephrolepis, and cibotiums, both for sale and decorating, also palms galore and houses of asparagus for cutting, were in evidence. Christmas and Easter plants are specialties in their season; just one item, 18,000 pots of Easter lilies were just right for last Easter and everything else for these seasons is done in proportion on the same gigantic scale. Begonias, cyclamens and poinsettias give color to the Christmas holidays. Callas are seen all winter, any quantity of them, and for cutting now, as fine gladioli as seen anywhere are here.

The new houses at the Mount Olivet establishment are well worthy of mention. They have cement walls, continuous side ventilation from windows hinged at the top; they are three-quarter span, 18 feet to ridge, 23 at back, 40 in front and all are 56 feet wide and 360 in length, built economically, but strong in all essential parts—they should last a life time. A field of peonies has been a money-maker this year, as on account of the backward spring, an eager northern market took all they did not need for the store. A block of white altheas for summer blooms was found very useful—the loose flowers were sent in by the bushel, while cut sprays, like miniature hollyhocks, were very desirable for sprays and decorations.

Adolph Gude is the genius in the greenhouses. A splendid system prevails here, the various blocks of houses being given in charge of men best qualified to get results from the different plants in their care. Adolph Gude first sold his stock in the Center market, but as the business grew, he took in his brother, William F., who has so ably managed the selling end. On opening their F street store, the business took on a boom that has kept bounding along, gaining each year, until now they require a force of 40 employees in the store alone to try and keep up with its momentum. Hybrid Lilies.

The appearance of a good hybrid lily (Amos Perry) at the recent Holland House show is sufficiently rare to call for a few general remarks on hybrid lilies. Some very fine and interesting crosses have been obtained, but the bulbs, in a few cases at least, have been wanting in constitution, so that instead of becoming permanent occupants of our gardens, they have in time died out.

A case in point is furnished by Lilium Parkmannii, a hybrid lily, which in its day aroused a great amount of interest. It was raised in the United States of America by a Mr. Parkman, and is said to have resulted from the crossing of L. auratum and a deep-colored variety of L. speciosum, the latter being the seed parent. Some 50 seedlings were obtained, but only one proved to be distinct from L. speciosum. This one, which first flowered in 1869, partook greatly of the character of L. auratum, with a good deal of the color of the best form of rubro-vittatum or cruentum. To this fine lily the name of Parkmannii was given, in honor of the raiser thereof. Working up a stock was, of course, a slow process, so that it did not cross the Atlantic for some years. When it did so, however, the entire stock passed into the hands of Anthony Waterer of the Knap Hill Nurseries, whence it was several times exhibited, and August 24, 1880, was given a first-class certificate by the Royal Horticultural Society. It would, however, appear to have inherited some of the erratic character of L. auratum itself, for it gradually weakened, and in time died out altogether. I have a note of seeing it at one of the meetings of the Royal Horticultural Society in 1890, but do not remember seeing it since. Some years ago, on application to the firm, I was courteously informed that, as far as they knew, it was quite lost to cultivation.

L. kewense is another hybrid lily that must, I think, be now spoken of in the past tense. This was an exceedingly interesting lily, though not particularly showy, at least in the same sense as L. Parkmannii. The parents of L. kewense were L. Henryii and L. Brownii Chloraster, this last being the seed bearer. Strange to say, the flowers were a good deal like those of a small L. auratum, being of a creamy white, becoming paler with age, and having a suspicion of yellow down the centre of each petal. This was raised from seed, the result of a cross made in 1897, and the first flower opened three years later.

Of hybrid lilies that have come to stay, and which are now well distributed in gardens, may be mentioned L. Marhan and its improved form Ellen Willmott. L. Marhan is the result of crossing L. Martagon album with the Japanese L. Hansonii, both of which are among the most desirable of our garden lilies. In L. Marhan the flowers are of a clear orange yellow, with reddish brown spots and streaks. An older hybrid, in the production of which L. Hansonii played a part, is L. Dalhansonii, the other parent being the dark-colored form of Martagon known as dalmaticum. In this the main characters of the parents are blended in a curious way, the color being yellow, heavily clouded with reddish brown. This has certainly become scarcer of late years. Though the early history of one of the finest of all outdoor lilies, L. testaceum, known also as L. excelsum, is unknown, it is commonly regarded as a hybrid between L. candidum (Madonna lily) and L. chalcedonicum (Scarlet Turk's-cap). It appears to have made its way to this country from Erfurt in the forties of the last century, since when it has become a permanent occupant of our gardens. It is a vigorous-growing yet exceedingly graceful species, whose color is well expressed by its popular name of the Nankeen lily. The bright red anthers afford a marked contrast to the rest of the flower.

L. Beerensii is a very pretty hybrid lily that I saw in flower at Messrs. Ware's just 20 years ago. It was the result of a cross between L. chalcedonicum and L. testaceum. The flowers were about the size of the last named, but of a brighter tone of color. I have not seen L. Beerensii since, but a friend tells me he flowered the same cross last year, and that it quite agreed with my description of two decades since.

There is but little doubt that the members of the Isolirion, or upright-flowered, group cross with each other. At all events, some of the garden forms appear to me to be of mixed parentage.

L. Golden Gleam, which came to us from across the Atlantic, is said to be the result of a cross between L. tenuifolium and one of the Martagons. Though showing a considerable leaning to L. tenuifolium, it is more floriferous and robust, while the elegantly reflexed flowers sold are of a pure apricot yellow color.

Under the name of L. Burbankii a mixed lot of lilies was sent here from America about 15 years ago. Traces of L. pardalinum, L. Parryii, L. superbum and L. Washingtonianum may be found among them. Some are really good, but they should have been selected before they were put into commerce.

The last to refer to is that mentioned at the head of this article, namely, Amos Perry, which was raised from L. Parryii and L. Humboldtii magnifica. It shows, perhaps, more of the influence of the last-named parent, but the part played by L. Parryii is also markedly evident. The flowers are of a rich golden yellow color, spotted inside with crimson. In the whorl-like arrangement of the leaves this hybrid resembles L. Humboldtii.

The foregoing does not profess to be a complete account of the different hybrid lilies, but simply a few disconnected notes on some of the most important of those that have at one time or another come under my notice. —H. P. in the London Garden.

The Late Nicholas Kruchten, Jr.

Nicholas Kruchten Jr., member of the firm of John Kruchten Co., wholesale florists, 162 North Wabash avenue, Chicago, was killed and two of his friends were severely injured, Tuesday evening, June 13, about 8 o'clock, when the automobile, in which they were riding, struck a small piece of timber which protruded from the east approach of the Lawrence avenue bridge. The car turned in a half circle and overturned with a crash which was heard by many of the residents in the vicinity. Officials and children of the Harrison orphanage home near by heard the cries of the men under the car and went to their aid and took them immediately to the Swedish Covenant hospital, but Mr. Kruchten died just as he was being placed on the operating table. He was 29 years of age, married, and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Kruchten, the well known carnation grower at 5308 North Western avenue and a brother of John, Henry, Charles and Joseph. He was married a few years ago and leaves a widow but no children. He came from a family of well known and respected florists and had a host of friends in the trade who cannot seem to realize that he has passed from their midst. The funeral will be held from the home of his father at 5727 North Western avenue, Friday, June 16, at 2:30 p. m.

Is City Population Superior?

O. F. Cook, Bureau of Plant Industry, Washington, D. C., in the Journal of Heredity for June, 1916.

Instead of being composed of naturally inferior stocks, city populations are probably superior to the residual population of the rural districts. The general tendency in each generation is for the best of the rural population, the most energetic and capable, to be drawn to the city. If city populations average better in some respects, as statisticians have claimed, this does not prove that the city is a better place to live, but only shows the more definitely that the drain of the city is a menace to the race in sterilizing and destroying the superior elements of the population. The aggregate losses are probably much more serious than those caused by war, because more general and continuous.

If the time has really come for the consideration of practical eugenic measures, here is a place to begin, a subject worthy of the most careful study—how to rearrange our social and economic system so that more of the superior members of our race will stay on the land and raise families, instead of moving to the city and remaining unmarried or childless, or allowing their children to grow up in unfavorable urban environments that mean deterioration and extinction.

Until recently cities have been distinctly in advance of any of the rural districts, not only in holding out greater inducements in the way of income, but in many other ways. Not only schools for the children, but many other conveniences, luxuries, pastimes, and amusements are supplied in cities much more easily and abundantly than in the country. But it must not be taken for granted that all of these things are as desirable or as necessary as they seem to be to people who have become accustomed to city life. Comfort should not be confused with civilization, as Disraeli pointed out. Living easily is not necessarily living well, or in a way that will give the most satisfaction to the individual or contribute most to the progress of the race. Most of the people who really want to live want to live in the country. Those who are intent upon some special pursuit of wealth or pleasure or freedom from responsibility must hold to the city as the only place to follow the courses they have chosen. But these professional urbanites are attempting to grasp a small part of life without feeling the need or accepting the responsibility of a complete existence. Certainly they do not represent the permanent nucleus or germ plasm of the race, the seed of the future that should demand the primary consideration of the eugenicist.

The Houston Convention.

The southern florists are alive to the importance of the meeting of the convention of the S. A. F. in the south this summer. We will avail ourselves and take advantage of the opportunity of discussing such questions as will promote horticulture in general. We realize the great possibilities that lie before the southern horticulturists for development of our profession. We also realize the wonderful amount of good to be derived from the members of this organization in our midst, which will be a wonderful stimulant and of great help to the southern florists in discussing such matters as will tend to promote the cause of horticulture in the south.

On the other hand, we believe that the coming of the many members of the S. A. F. from other sections to the south will be of great interest to them, as they will have an insight into the possibilities that lie before the southern florists, and will, therefore, lay their plans to co-operate with us in the development of this section of the country.

But, why should we lay aside the important business of this society at the Houston convention? We will have a large delegation from other sections, together with a record-breaking delegation from the south, who have the interest of this society at heart and are thoroughly familiar with the detail work of this organization, and are thoroughly prepared to vote on such matters as are of interest to the society. Time is not so short but what we will be able to take up these questions and vote upon them intelligently. The membership will be a representative one, and there is no doubt in my mind but that it is only right and proper that these questions should be taken up at this time as they are scheduled.

There was a feeling at the time the convention went to San Francisco that possibly the western members would take matters in their own hands, and vote upon such matters as would be to their own interest, and possibly not to the interest of the society as a whole. It was demonstrated at the San Francisco convention that the "western boys" had the interest of the society at heart, and did not make any attempt at railroad matters to their own selfish interest. You may expect the same at the Houston convention.

The society may expect the southern members to use their best judgment, and will all vote in such manner as will be of interest to the society as a whole. I want to state here that insofar as I am personally concerned, I expect to work diligently to this end, and I believe there will be no opposition from the other members along these lines. Any attempt to table such questions as are scheduled for this meeting will certainly be fought to the limit.

THE date selected for the annual exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society, at Bar Harbor, Me., is July 15-16 with a very fine schedule, copies of which may be had on application to Secretary Harry A. Bunyard, 40 West Twenty-eighth street, New York.

Personal.

J. F. Sullivan, of Detroit, Mich., attended the political conventions at Chicago last week with his brothers, Mark Sullivan, the well known editor of Collier's Weekly and Thomas Sullivan, dye merchant of Philadelphia, Pa.

Prof. Arno H. Nehrling, of the department of horticulture at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, and Miss Ada Kathryn Joseph, of Jasper, Ind., will be married at South Bend, Ind., June 29.

Ithaca Rose Test Garden.

The rose test garden established at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., will be opened for judging by the American Rose Society, Thursday, June 22. Members of the society are invited to assemble in the offices of the department of horticulture in Roberts hall and go from there to the rose garden. The Syracuse Rose Society is making plans to attend in a body. A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present. BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

Washington Representative Busy.

William F. Gude, Washington representative of the Society of American Florists, chairman of the executive committee of the preparedness parade to be held in the national capital on Flag day, June 14, has secured the passage through the senate of a bill making Flag day a national holiday in the capital. He also secured the passage through the same body of a bill giving the committee the right to erect stands and rope off Pennsylvania avenue for the parade, which will be reviewed by President Wilson, who informed Mr. Gude that he would be glad to review the parade and will march at the head of the column from the Peace monument to the reviewing stand.

National Flower Show Dividend.

We have received the following from Chairman Asmus, of the National Flower Show Committee, June 9, with check for amount paid on guarantee fund call and dividend for the amount subscribed to the guarantee fund:

"The very gratifying results of the recent Fourth National Flower Show at Philadelphia have enabled the committee, in behalf of the Society of American Florists, to return to the guarantors a 10 per cent profit on the full amount of money subscribed to the guarantee fund, instead of 10 per cent of the amount paid as per call.

"The immensity of the National Flower Show was such that we feel that thanks are due you as one of its supporters, and surely the object is being achieved when 100,000 people view the fruits of skill and labor of America's most prominent growers and merchants.

"Philadelphia has received a horticultural benefit, which could not be had by any other means. One half million lines of reading matter were published in the newspapers and magazines, besides the paid advertising. More people paid admission to this show than at any two flower shows ever held in this country."

Carnations in England.

With reference to Market Grower's selection of carnations, I quite agree with most of the sorts recommended, but there are a few points that no market grower, still less a private gardener, should overlook, says a writer in the Gardeners' Chronicle, of London, Eng. For instance, your correspondent says that May Day is the best of its color, but I think that it would be difficult to find first quality flowers of this variety after, say, the middle of December and from that time until March, I consider Enchantress Supreme a much better variety. An improved May Day is illustrated in the Gardeners' Chronicle, Dec. 18, 1915, p. 383. It is, however, in the matter of white varieties that I chiefly disagree with your correspondent. By universal consent White Wonder is the best white, taking habit into consideration. Individual flowers of White Perfection are sometimes of a little better quality, but this variety is not so free, and produces a number of second quality blooms. The pure white strain of White Enchantress comes a good second. Snowstorm is worthy of attention on account of its delicious perfume, and a two-year plant gives excellent blooms. For a private grower Mrs. Lloyd Wigg is eminently desirable on account of its large size and delicious perfume. I would place the selection of your correspondent, viz., Wivelsfield White, behind all these. I have found it soft, and it produces too many second quality blooms. As to mauves, I believe that the best all-round variety is Circe. This makes a good plant, is free, and very large. It is very reliable in mid-winter.

Mothers' Day Prices.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

In your issue of June 3, page 1040, I note the short article under the above head, taken from the Minneapolis Tribune of May 22.

I believe there is a great deal of truth in the statement and the trade would do well to take due notice of that phase of the Mothers' day question. I can speak from experience. I sent to one of our growers for two dozen carnations and he asked $3 for a dozen, or 25 cents apiece. He said he could get the price and would not sell for less. This undoubtedly is an exceptional case, but if the growers and florists in general should be inclined to follow such examples of commercial greed, the white ribbon theory of the correspondent of the Tribune will surely find support, not only to the loss of the florists, but also to the disgrace of the trade.

All the donations to Miss Jarvis, deserved and numerous as they may be, will not be sufficient, I believe, to compensate for such injury to the noble purpose she had in mind in creating and advocating the observance of Mothers' day.

THEODORE WIRTH.

New York To Houston.

Secretary John Young, 53 West 28th Street, New York, has been named as chairman of a committee to make plans and receive reservations for those who care to make the trip by water from New York to New Orleans for the Houston convention. This is considered an ideal trip and all those going to the convention from the east should take advantage of this opportunity and write Mr. Young immediately, advising him of their intention of making the trip by water. All members will go on the same boat, and a most enjoyable time is assured those who can spare the time to make the trip this way. R. C. KERR,

Vice-President, S. A. F.

Dandelion Extermination.

Ft. Dodge, Ia., June 8.—Twenty-eight hundred pounds of dandelions, or nearly 1½ tons of the weed, were picked by members of the junior league of the Women's club city beautiful department in a contest that has just closed. One lad picked 480 pounds of the pest. The city was divided into 17 districts and enrolled hundreds of youngsters. The same plan will be followed again next year.

Cincinnati.

SUPPLY HEAVY WITH MODERATE DEMAND.

Business during the past week was inclined to be quiet. The supply is very heavy, and while the demand is steady, but it is only an ordinary one. Prices are not very high. Roses are plentiful, with Taft, Ophelia, My Maryland and Sunburst the best as far as quality is concerned. Carnations are also plentiful and the cut of Easter lilies is large. Gladioli are in fair supply and have a good market. Lily of the valley and orchids are also among the favorites and move well at times. The first named is short of actual requirements. Snapdragons meet with a fair sale. Water lilies, callas and coreopsis are also included in the offerings.

NOTES.

Florists helped materially to increase business in the probate court last week in the shape of marriage licenses. Miss Rosalia Gillett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett, was married to Wm. F. Mayhall. After the ceremony at Holy Name church a wedding breakfast was served at the Hotel Sinton and the couple left for an eastern trip. Others who were married during the week are: Arthur Becker of the Avondale Floral Co., and Miss Hannah M. Baer; Neil Forster, the Hyde Park florist, and Miss Lilian A. Ward; B. J. Slaughter, Jr., and Miss Muriel J. Murphy, daughter of the late George Murphy.

Theodore Cobb of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., spent several days here last week. Among other things he made strenuous efforts toward getting the Seedsmen's Club started on its way.

C. E. Critchell reports a strong demand for lily of the valley.

Visitors: I. Bayersdorfer of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Fred Brueggemann, New Castle, Ind.; H. Ehrhardt, Sidney, O.; M. Legander, representing A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. H.

DULL MARKET RALLIES.

Business has been very poor during the last week, prices dragging on nearly every line of stock. Roses have been selling poorly, many large lots having to be sacrificed at very low figures. No particular variety was in very much demand, it being the object of growers and salesmen to turn goods into money without much regard as to the actual value. Carnations also were very plentiful and went at abnormally low prices. The sweet pea crop is shortening and flowers are of poor quality, making the demand rather good on the large varieties. Prices run from 25 cents to $1 per 100. There is a large supply of Longiflorum lilies and prices are low, in some cases $2 per 100. Peonies are coming in, local grown being in fair demand at from $4 to $8 per 100, while the flowers which come from southern markets are inclined to be soft and sell at about three cents apiece. There is a good supply of hydrangea plants which move none too well, but is about the only thing obtainable in the plant line.

Greens, such as plumosus and Sprengeri, sell very well, as the crop is inclined to be short. The market, June 12, showed signs of advancing in general, as several lines of flowers have shortened in supply, owing to the dull weather. Carnations brought two and three cents, while there were practically no sweet peas obtainable. Business as a whole seems to be more active than last week, owing to graduation and wedding orders, which retailers report as coming in very good.

NOTES.

David Welch and E. J. Welch have severed their connection with the firm of Welch Bros. Co. and have opened one of the most modern and best equipped wholesale establishments in New England at 280 Devonshire street. The new location is all that could be desired, as it is in the heart of the wholesale flower district of the city, and is convenient to both the north and south stations. The store itself is large and roomy, having two entrances. There is a large ice chest, 12x40 feet, and plenty of packing counters placed in convenient positions. The firm will carry a regular working force of six experienced men, and feels confident that they can add more to their already large trade by even better service than they have been getting in the past.

At a special meeting of Welch Bros. Co., at its offices, 226 Devonshire street, the board of directors elected Henry Haas, well known to the trade of this city and vicinity, to the position of manager. Frank J. Reynolds, also well and favorably known to the trade of New England, becomes assistant manager. Patrick Welch continues as president and treasurer of the company. A more extended account of the re-organization will be found in another column.

Sam Wax reports a record breaking wedding decoration, which he says is "the limit" since he has been in business. The whole order amounted to 40 cents 25 cents for a bride's bouquet of sweet peas, and 15 cents for three carnations at 5 cents each for the bridesmaid.

B. A. Snyder & Co. are shipping some very well grown Hadley, Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Russell roses. They are having the interior of their store remodeled, one of the chief features of the new construction being a balcony around the interior.

The bowling league will hold its annual outing at Lake Boone, Sunday, June 25. This will be one of the most enjoyable outings the trade has had for some time, according to preparation.

Walter Holden, Harry Shedd, Louis Small and a party of friends have been spending an enjoyable week salmon fishing at Grand Lake Stream, Me.

Maywood, Ill.

The Albert F. Amling Co. has completed its new rose range, which, it may be added, is the largest range erected in Illinois in 1916 up to the present time. The entire range is now planted to roses, the varieties being Milady, Ophelia, Killarney Brilliant, White Killarney, Russell and Ward.

Albert F. Amling, president of the company, who has been threatened with a breakdown from hard work, is recuperating in a sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich.

Wm. H. Amling's new 75-foot chimney, built by the Heine Chimney Co., of Chicago, is finished. A new 100-H. P. boiler, ordered from the Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, is expected in a few days. Shipments of 20,000 Buttery sweet peas are made daily from this range.

Henry Wehrman and Hugo Luedtke made a trip to Lake Marie in the former's Moline-Knight last week. The heavy rains made the roads so bad that they had to leave the machine there and make the return trip by train.

A baby girl has arrived at the home of Joseph Ernst, night temperature man at the A. F. Amling Co.'s range. The population of "Amlingville" is increasing very rapidly.

Carl Hausermann, Jr., is busy planting chrysanthemums. The new range built for him by the A. Dietsch Co., Chicago, is now completed.

Herbert Amling, sweet pea specialist for Wm. H. Amling, is now the owner of a Ford. Hurrah for the "house."

The Weiss-Meyers Co. has installed a new electric pressure pump outfit. They are also building a new packing shed.

Wm. Wichtendahl had a new chimney erected by the Heine Chimney Co. It is a 50-footer. W. A.

Welch Brothers Reorganization.

At a special meeting of the board of directors of Welch Bros. Co., 226 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass., held June 1, Henry Haas, well known to the trade of that vicinity and a man of long experience in the cut flower business, was elected manager. Mr. Haas is considered one of the most capable men in his line in the city and will be remembered by many customers in the Boston Co-operative Flower Market where for several years he represented Morris F. Comley. Previous to this he was connected with Wm. H. Elliott, Frank J. Reynolds, who was elected assistant manager, is also well known to the florist trade in New England, New York State and Canada. He began his career about 20 years ago with the firm of Welch Bros. and continued with the firm until about eight years ago at which time he became manager for Wm. F. McCarthy & Co. For two years he represented a number of growers in the Boston Flower Market and more recently has been with McAlpine & McDonald. Both of the newly elected officers are eminently fitted for their respective positions.

Patrick Welch, president and treasurer of the company, in making announcement of the reorganization of Welch Bros. Co., expresses his appreciation of continued patronage of the many customers which has fostered the growth of the company to its present splendid proportions, and gives assurance that the new organization under his head will continue to make the same standard of excellence in service a predominant feature at all times.

PATRICK WELCH, President and Treasurer.

HENRY J. HAAS, Manager.

Reorganization of the Welch Bros. Co.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of Welch Bros. Co., held at 226 Devonshire Street, Boston, June 1, 1916, Mr. Henry Haas was elected Manager and Frank J. Reynolds, Asst. Manager. Patrick Welch retains the offices of President and Treasurer.

As President of the Company I wish to express my appreciation of the continued patronage with which you have favored us, and I sincerely hope that we will always be able to retain your business, as we feel confident that the merit of our goods and the excellency of our service in both the Cut Flower and Supply Department are of the best.

TRADE SHOWS A BIG IMPROVEMENT.

Business the greater part of last week was very quiet, owing to the rainy weather, but on Saturday there was considerable business done and the market took a change for the better. The department stores had special sales on flowers during the week, which relieved the market of a lot of junk so that when the weather cleared on Saturday there was only good stock left to fill the orders with and which accounted for the sudden stiffening of prices. Carnations suffered most from the unsatisfactory weather and reached the market in poor condition, consequently they sold in large lots at practically the buyer's own prices. Sweet peas also suffered and the receipts dwindled to almost nothing. Fancy sweet peas sold quickly, but there was such a large supply of inferior stock offered at low prices that the average was nothing to speak of. Peonies were plentiful and fancy stock brought good prices, but there never was such a big supply of inferior stock offered as last week. Wagon load after wagon load was dumped or sold to the street fakirs at remarkably low figures. Lily of the valley, orchids and American Beauty roses were about the only items that were scarce and brought anywhere near what the dealers would call high prices. Business since Saturday has been good, especially the shipping trade, which is keeping up remarkably well. Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia, Midway, Richmond, Rhea Reid and My Maryland roses are having a good call and are cleaning up well, considering the large quantity offered. All the other roses grown for the market are to be had in quantity, including all the old standard and newer varieties. Lilies are in good supply and the same holds good for callas. Candytufts, daisies, pansies, feverfews, snapdragons, irises, larkspurs, calendulas, cornflowers, statice and other miscellaneous stock is still seen in good supply and at times has a good call. goods are in good supply at this writing, but at times during the week certain items, such as adiantum and smilax, have been scarce. The expressmen's strike seems to be as far from settled as ever, but the special service inaugurated by the wholesalers is working so nicely that there are hardly any complaints to speak of. Out-

C. L. Washburn says that the recent rainy weather has delayed planting operations at Bassett & Washburn's greenhouses for fully a week, but that the work is again well under way and will be completed soon. Trade was unusually good Saturday, June 10, and everything cleaned up nicely considering the lull as far as the city demand was concerned all week and which took a decided change for the better on that date. Yellow roses are in brisk demand at this establishment for commencement exercises.

The Fleischman Floral Co. had an appropriate window display during the republican convention in which a small elephant played an important part. Business has been very good at this establishment right along and their large electric sign at the foot of Randolph street and North Michigan avenue attracted the attention of the visitors to the convention and was the cause of many large orders.

W. N. Hoot and James M. Dunn, of the American Mutual Cyclone and Hail Insurance Co., Muncie, Ind., are writing policies for the local greenhouse men this week and report good business in all the smaller towns visited during their present campaign.

Stielow Bros. Co., of Niles Center, is shipping a nice supply of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses to the Chicago Flower Growers' Association and where the receipts of Milady are also quite heavy from the Wellworth Farm Greenhouses at Downer's Grove.

Sinner Bros. are busy planting their roses and will grow the variety Mrs. Chas. Russell on a larger scale than ever this season. They were among the first ones in this vicinity to give this rose a trial and have had wonderful results with it.

N. J. Wietor says that trade at Wietor Bros. store has shown wonderful improvement this week and that stock of all kinds is cleaning up nicely each day at very satisfactory prices considering the general market conditions.

Oscar J. Friedman, 522 South Michigan avenue, had unusually good business last week, as the result of the republican convention, and his best seller proved to be the Hughes bouquet, one of Victor Bergmann's latest creations.

The Alpha Floral Co. always has a fine showing of seasonable cut flowers in its store windows, which Manager Andrew Chronis believes results in Erne & Klingel are handling a fine lot of fancy long stemmed home grown peonies, which are without question some of the best that have been offered in this market this season.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says that trade was very good Saturday, June 10, when the market took a decided change for the better and there was both a heavy local and out-of-town demand.

W. N. Rudd leaves on his annual fishing trip to Wisconsin June 19, accompanied by his daughter, Phyllis, who is home from Cornell University on summer vacation.

The date of the wedding of Miss V. Diamesis, 4448 Racine avenue, and John Canger, with Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, has been set for Thursday, June 29.

Michael Redden, 820 West Fifty-fifth street, is enjoying good business and has built up a splendid trade since he started there three years ago.

The A. L. Randall Co. received a shipment of gold fish this week that certainly contains some beauties and is a center of attraction at the store.

with a large number of funeral orders to keep the force busy.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is strong on Ophelia roses this week, which Max Ringier takes great delight in showing to the many customers.

J. A. Budlong's shipments of roses now include a good supply of Tipperary, Mrs. Hearst, Lady Alice Stanley and Francis Scott Key.

Simpson's, 3656 Ogden avenue, had an order for the Judge Burke funeral, June 12, consisting of a beautiful large eight-foot cross.

Herman Bruns has returned from Urbana, where he attended school, and is giving his father a lift at his West Madison street store.

L. Hoeckner, of the Peter Reinberg store force, is following the carnivals this summer, but will be back on his old job in the fall.

Chas. W. McKellar has recovered from his recent illness and is back on the job again every day at the store.

Chris Pederson and sister, Mrs. Theo. Callos, have gone to housekeeping at 4658 Lake Park avenue.

Percy Jones is handling a large quantity of fine candytuft, which is meeting with ready sale.

The following write-up, accompanied by a photograph of the beautiful young daughter of the well-known florist, appeared in the society columns of the Chicago Herald, Tuesday, June 13: "A few years ago, when she was a member of one of his English classes, Professor Ronald S. Crane of Northwestern University noticed that Miss Julia Fuller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fuller of 4526 Ravenswood avenue, was an attentive student. There was a rumor about the campus this spring that the professor and Miss Fuller, who was graduated from the university last year, were engaged. Yesterday it was verified. The engagement was announced by Mrs. Arthur Swanson of 522 Church street, Evanston, at a tea given in her home for the active and alumnae members of Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority. "Any romance?" Miss Fuller repeated a question. "Oh, I don't know. We just met and—well, that's enough for you."

C. A. Moss, of Spartanburg, S. C., was a visitor this week and was escorted through several of the leading retail establishments in which he was much interested by T. E. Waters, manager of Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Reinberg entertained the county commissioners and their wives at dinner, June 6, at their beautiful new home at 5643 Sheridan road, and it is needless to add that everyone present had a most delightful time.

Henry Wittbold is very busy with wedding decorations this week and has about all the work that he can conveniently do.

The expressmen's strike seems to be as far from settlement as ever and is causing the trade a great deal of inconvenience. Fred Lautenschlager, who is in charge of the special service, has every reason to be proud of the way things are running so smoothly, and it will no doubt be surprising to many to read that there were as many packages handled during the first two weeks of the present strike as there were during the entire strike of 1905, when 7,500 shipments were handled all told between the dates of April 29 and June 4. On top of this many incoming shipments were handled, and, considering the busy season that Kroeschell Bros. Co. are now experiencing, one can readily surmise how busy a man he is, and how anxiously he is awaiting a settlement. He is receiving whatever assistance he needs from E. C. Amling, who is always willing to help a good cause along.

The Chicago Florist, 17 West Madison street, of which George Rozakles is proprietor, will open a new store in the Lyon & Healy building at 35 East Adams street. Buchbinder Bros. have the contract for the entire set of store fixtures including a Buchbinder refrigerator which is the second outfit of the kind that they have furnished for new loop stores within the past six months. Mr. Rozakles will continue his old stand and will be assisted at the new place by his sons, George Jr. and Leo.

The Kruchten family has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of their son and brother, whose death occurred Tuesday evening, June 13, when he was killed in an automobile accident, an account of which appears in the obituary column this week. He was a member of the wholesale firm of John Kruchten Co., having recently joined his brothers, John and Henry, when they bought out C. L. Sherer's interest.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a splendid supply of roses in all the leading varieties including a large number of American Beauties from young plants. Both the local and shipping trade have been good this week and everything is cleaning up nicely in all lines. Orchids and lily of the valley are having an unusually good call and it is impossible at times to fill all the orders for these two items.

Peter Reinberg is cutting a good supply of White Killarney roses which is mostly from young stock and for which the demand is heavy. Emil Reichling has finished planting all the chrysanthemums at the Reinberg greenhouses and now has practically everything benched.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. received word this week from the Misses Cabannis, Jackson, Miss., that their greenhouses were destroyed during the heavy storm there recently and who mentioned in their letter that the McKay Floral Co. also suffered considerable damage.

White sweet peas are almost as scarce as lily of the valley, orchids and American Beauty roses, according to many of the retailers who have experienced considerable trouble in getting what they needed the past week.

Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, took in the auto races at Speedway park, Sunday, June 11. Trade at Zech & Mann's store is brisk this week and their receipts of Ophelia and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are unusually heavy.

Frank Gabler is employed in Hillman's plant department. Charles Klunder has resigned his position as manager of Hillman's cut flower department of which he has been in charge for several months.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are handling a large supply of fine local peonies which are selling well owing to the many wedding and funeral orders that the retail trade has been called upon to fill this week.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are handling some fine peonies from the Tonner farm again this season, which compare favorably with the other stock offered in the market.

M. C. Gunterberg still has a good supply of geranium plants to offer but will no doubt sell out completely in them, owing to the lateness of the season.

John Schrieber, of the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., is minus a Ford touring car which someone stole from him Monday evening, June 12.

Visitor: J. W. Rodgers, manager of the Miami Floral Co., Dayton, O.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Morrison, June 8. President Henderson in the chair. The attendance was small, due no doubt to the bad weather. New members were elected as follows: Chester P. Guion, 2730 North California avenue; W. E. O'Morrow, 558 Fulton street; Carl Eisemann, Maywood;

Thos. W. Head, Lake Forest, and John Canger, 17 East Monroe street.

The transportation committee reported that plans for the Houston convention trip had not been completed and that members will be advised as soon as there was any information on the subject to make public.

A communication was read from J. F. Ammann with reference to the proposed flower show of the State Florists' Association to be held at Bloomington next November, details of which will be found in our issue of May 27, page 992.

The regular meetings were suspended for the months of July and August and Allie Zech has promised to open a debate at the September meeting on a subject of much interest to growers and dealers.

President Henderson reported on local flower show, stating that the committee considered it too late to make the necessary arrangements for the coming fall.

The picnic was abandoned for this season.

Garland Mfg. Co., Des Plaines, Ill.

Lloyd E. Shirley, who has had considerable experience as a manufacturing mechanical engineer, is now identified with the Garland Manufacturing Company, Des Plaines, and holds the office of vice-president and general manager. Mr. Shirley comes well recommended and will devote all of his time to the Garland company, being ably assisted by H. W. Strietelmeier, designer of the big Garland house, 76x900 feet, for Davis & Steiner at Ottawa, and who will continue as chief engineer. Louis Wittbold, of the George Wittbold Co., is president of the firm, which is quite an asset, for he is so well acquainted with the greenhouse end of the business that he knows all the needs of the grower. The Garland Company operates its own foundry, machine shop and wood mill, which are running full blast, and among the orders now being turned out is that of the United States government, calling for greenhouse materials. Steel frame, trussed steel frame and semi-steel greenhouses, hot bed sash, boiler grates, gray iron castings and many other articles pertaining to the greenhouse are manufactured, the most important being the celebrated Garland cast iron gutter which has given entire satisfaction wherever it has been used.

STOCK PLENTIFUL IN ALL LINES.

Intense heat up to a week ago brought on an immense supply of cut flowers, and with local business rather quiet, for it's a bit too soon for commencement exercises, it was hard work to try and please everybody. The cool, wet weather the latter part of the week changed the tune, and it was then that most of the stock was cleaned out. There is no shortage of any one thing or a special demand; enough and plenty for all at all kinds of prices. Owing to the inclement weather the past week, for it rained and was cool from Tuesday to Friday night, there is still quite a bit of outdoor planting of flower beds, roses and porch boxes to be done. The Spirea Van Houttei flowers were also very short lived this season, as they just commenced to bloom before the rainy spell set in.

NOTES.

James M. Fox, head of the firm of James M. Fox & Son, Inc., one of the largest retail grocers in the city, died June 6 after being ill for several weeks, at the age of 65. Surviving his death are the widow, one daughter and two sons. Of the latter, James F. Fox conducts the floral department, which ranks among the foremost retail florists in this city. We extend our sympathy.

Robert Baerman, son of G. F. Baerman, florist at Spring and Burleigh streets, who was returning from a dance June 10, was run into by an automobile which was running at a high rate of speed; newspaper reports claimed a concussion of the brain and a possible skull fracture. His brother on Monday night stated that he was O. K. again.

According to the report of the entertainment committee of the florists' club, with A. Hare as chairman, the annual basket picnic will be held Sunday, July 9, at Kieppers Park on the Cedarburg plank road. The affair at that place last year proved to be such a success that it was again chosen for this year.

Hugo Locker & Sons, of Wauwatosa, had a large supply of especially fine vincas this spring, and as might be expected, were sold out some time ago. Their sweet peas are still in prime condition.

Hail at St. Louis.

Scarcely had the damage occasioned by a severe hail storm which swept the southern section of the city been repaired, when rain, hail and wind made a second destructive visit within a month, resulting in a loss of approximately 150,000 feet of glass and a heavy damage to growing crops in St. Louis county. The loss to florists alone is estimated at $20,000. Market gardeners were hard hit and cemetery greenhouses also are reported as suffering heavy damage. W. A. Rowe's range at Kirkwood received the full force of the storm, he being the heaviest loser with a loss of about $5,000. A. S. Cerny, O. C. May, Oakland Floral Co., W. J. Pilcher, H. & C. Gross, Frank Vennemann, Hootman Bros., Wm. Winter, John Steinicki, Chas. Meier, Phil. J. Goebel, Jr., and others in the same locality were also heavy sufferers. At Webster Groves, where the storm was also severe, the Cannon Floral Co. and Joseph Hauser ranges were badly damaged. Among those in the city the heaviest losers were Geo. B. Windler, F. J. Fillmore & Son, Wm. Schray & Sons, Meuer Bros., John Held, William Kruse, John Walther, Benj. Albers, J. G. Knoll, Jules Bourdet and the Missouri botanical gardens. The H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., at Nursery, Mo., also report much damage.

COMMENCEMENT FLOWERS BIG FACTOR.

Business in all lines has been good, and the orders for flowers for commencements have kept everybody busy, the bouquets being larger both in number and size than usual. Funeral work also has been heavy. There is still a good demand for plants for baskets and boxes. The greenhouse men are busy filling the houses with stock for fall.

NOTES.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports an excellent trade. This firm has been exceptionally busy with orders for commencement flowers and a record breaking business in wedding arrangements seems assured. Shipping trade is also good.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. is kept busy with funeral and wedding orders, in addition to several large contracts for commencement bouquets. Red roses and lily of the valley were used in quantities.

One of the most attractive displays of the week was noted in Arthur Newell's window—a clever arrangement of Ward roses and blue delphiniums.

H. Kusik & Co. report a good week's business. Two consignments of 3,000 gladioli and a large number of roses, together with other stock, cleaned up nicely.

Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports splendid trade in all departments. Stock at this establishment is plentiful and the quality excellent.

Commencement orders were a big factor in Ed. Humfeld's sales. Weddings and funerals also add to the rush at this establishment.

W. J. Barnes' force has been very busy with orders for commencements, weddings, funerals and spring planting of boxes and baskets.

Miss Lou Boggess is the busiest lady florist in the city. She handled an exceptionally large number of orders during the week.

Chas. Biederman & Son report a fine trade. They arranged a splendid decoration at B'Nai Jehudah temple, using much fine stock.

T. J. Noll & Co. disposed of large quantities of roses, carnations and lily of the valley for commencement orders.

SUMMER DULLNESS IN EVIDENCE.

Excepting for a goodly number of June weddings, business seems to have departed from Pittsburgh for the summer. Flowers of all sorts are dirt cheap, with lots of stock of all kinds available. The cooler weather we have been experiencing is probably responsible for a fair quality of flowers to be cut at this time of the year. Roses, however, are not doing as well as usual at this time. Peonies have practically finished their season, a bad season at that, we might add. There are plenty of other outside flowers being offered, such as candytuft, stocks, canterbury bells, variegated daisies and the several odd members of the lily family. Lily of the valley is about the only article that is hard to obtain and is commanding fancy prices. Much more in the green goods line could be used than is being offered, especially plumosus and smilax. Activity in the supply line has dropped off considerably, but one cannot expect much in this line until fall.

NOTES.

The stork has been kept quite busy the past week, presenting George Wehrheim and Abe Krongold with girls. The smokes, we might add, were enjoyed immensely.

Among those erecting glass this year is the Saxonwald Greenhouses at Castle Shannon, who are putting up a large addition to their big range.

The Liberty Flower Shop is the name of a new retail store doing business at Frankstown and Penn avenues, East Liberty section.

Rumor has it that George Mueschke may join the benedicts. George does not deny this himself, so we may look for a surprise soon.

De Forest Ludwig is back on the job again at his father's store greatly benefited in health by his recent visit to the southlands.

JUNE WEDDINGS MAINSTAY OF TRADE.

The June brides helped trade along considerably during the past week, for without the floral settings so indispensable to these wedding occasions, the situation would have been much worse, which some of the dealers say would have broken the record. There are quantities of flowers of all kinds. Peonies were very plentiful and realized little if anything to the growers, excepting in only the best grades; quantities were placed in cold storage in the hope of a better market later on. Carnations appear to be working overtime; they are very plentiful. Friday and Saturday were clean-up days in the commission houses; the fakirs hired wagons, gathering carnations up by the thousand at five to seven cents a bunch of 25 flowers. It was very fair looking stock and was sold on the corners in the shipping districts and business centers of the residence streets at 15 cents a bunch, two for a quarter. Oh! for another Mothers' day, when, only three weeks ago, the same grade of stock, much of it held for a week or possibly longer, brought $4 to $6 and even $8 a hundred, with not enough to supply the demand. There are quantities of roses of very good quality, the continued cool weather keeping them in fine condition. Russell is a great favorite—more of this rose will be grown for next season. Easter lilies are plentiful and the lily of the valley growers looked out for the weddings, and there is no scarcity of this bride's flower. Sweet peas are now coming from outside and these will be a great factor for the next two or three weeks.

SUBURBAN SHOWS

That there is an increasing interest being taken in flowers by the general public is evidenced by the number of exhibitions being held in many of the suburban towns in this vicinity. One of the most pretentious, although an initial effort, was that of the New Century Club of Chester, Pa., the large, well appointed hall being filled with a splendid array of exhibits. A number of enterprising firms, H. F. Michell Co., Inc., and Thomas Meehan & Sons, Inc., of this city; G. S. Carr and Macaw Bros., of Norwood, and the Wm. H. Moon Co., Morrisville, Pa., rendered generous assistance and made attractive displays. Several of Chester's wide-awake retailers made displays, noteworthy among which were those of Harry E. Bloom, Rosary Flower

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society held its peony show in conjunction with the Main Line Flower Show Association. It was the best exhibition of its kind ever held by the society, both in exhibits and general interest. Mrs. J. Lester Davis (Frank Coll, Gr.) made a number of entries and captured a number of blue ribbons. James Boyd was first for a collection of 20 varieties, and W. S. Ellis captured the honors in the 10 variety class. Another highly creditable show was that of the Aldan Civic Association. There were 100 entries in the rose section, 16 in peonies, 40 in garden flowers, and 39 displays by children under 13 years of age. This was the first flower show of this society, and the attendance and general interest taken was very gratifying. The judges were S. S. Pennock, Alphonse Pericat, W. McThompson and Frank Michell.

The Civic Association of Ridley Park scored another success at its ninth annual show, the Auditorium being completely filled with meritorious exhibits. Features of this exhibition were the displays of H. F. Michell Co., Inc., and Macaw Bros., the former arranging a splendid assortment of roses, over 75 varieties, all labeled. The Macaw display of ferns was very fine. C. W. Ketchum's showing of terra cotta garden pottery also attracted much attention. Narberth, another suburb, had its second annual show, June 10. There were a large number of exhibits and a good attendance. The displays were all arranged by private gardeners, there being no trade exhibits. Decorated tables and baskets were features.

NOTES.

Alfred M. Campbell has purchased the entire establishment—greenhouses, land, stock, cars, etc., of the Strafford Flower Farms of E. A. Stroud, Strafford, Pa. It is a splendid plant, up to date in every respect. There are 22 acres of ground with 60,000 feet of glass filled with high-grade stock. Mr. Campbell will use this in addition to his Collingdale greenhouses in raising carnations, chrysanthemums and other cut flowers for the Philadelphia market. He takes possession on July 1st.

E. R. Martin, who purchased the Vollers' House of Flowers business at 1725 Chestnut street, brought suit Monday, June 11, against S. S. Pennock, trustee for the creditors, alleging that misrepresentations had been made and demanding the return of his money. The purchase price was $5,000, of which $2,500 had been paid. The trustee denies any misrepresentation, the fullest opportunity being given to examine all books, papers, stock, etc.

J. W. Colflesh Sons purchased 19 acres of land at Glendolen a year ago, on which they are now erecting three houses, each 25x150 feet. They will gradually increase this and remove from their present location at 53rd and Woodland avenue. In this new location they will have greatly increased facilities. There are three brothers in this firm, all hustlers, who will make this one of the representative firms of the city.

W. H. Pike, Bryn Mawr, who has built up a thriving retail business, is offering this for sale, as he is about to return to England to go into the army. Here is a fine opportunity for an energetic man. Although only established two years, there has been a steady increase in the trade of this rapidly growing community.

The florists' club accepted the invitation of the Bell Telephone Co. to a luncheon given in the company's new building, June 9. More than 100 members attended. After a substantial lunch, the building was inspected, and an explanation given of the intricacies of the system, which was very interesting.

Edward Reid is interested in watching a crowd of the street gentlemen who gather opposite his store these days. He cannot understand why they snap their fingers so much. The stock of Russell roses and lily of the valley are features of his list.

The Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., are still cutting very good Prima Donna roses. They claim this is a very fine summer variety. Eugene Bernheimer is handling the stock in this city.

The Poryzees Flower Co., in the basement at 15th and Chestnut streets, has closed its doors. Mr. Poryzees has been ill for several months. There are liabilities of about $2,000 with no assets.

The Quality Florists, of Camden, have just put on the street a fine Overland car. Things are booming across the river since they celebrated their 100,000 population.

Felix Myers, the hustling Haverford avenue retailer, now covers his territory with a Ford car. Business, he reports, has been much better since the first of the year.

American Beauty roses, snapdragons and high-grade sweet peas are features of the Leo Niessen Co.'s stock. Cattleyas are also seen in quantity.

New York Florists' Club.

The club met in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on the evening of June 12. President Weston in the chair. Being the last meeting before vacation, the attendance was not quite as large as might have been expected. The leading feature of the meeting was a report from Secretary Young, for the flower show committee, which showed that the show of 1916 was a financial success. The total receipts from all sources were $41,727.76, the total expenditures were $10,305.55, leaving $31,421.19 to be divided, half of which goes to the exposition company and covers the rent of the palace and its profit, and half to be divided between the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club after the premium list has been provided for. Nearly $5,000 in special premiums was collected, and after the balance of the prize list is deducted from the share of the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club, there will be a substantial profit to both organizations.

George Cohen, Paterson, N. J., and Nicholas Butterbach, New Rochelle, N. Y., were elected members. Arthur Herrington, who is acquiring fame as a manager of flower shows, made an interesting address. Chairman Hildebrand and his staff of the house committee were active in providing the eats. A. F. F.

Teaneck, N. J.

At the Teaneck Greenhouses, of which Joseph Raffertzer is proprietor, we noticed many fine geraniums. He also grows good callas, but has taken them out to make room for a large stock of chrysanthemums.

Herman Encke has had a very successful season with sweet peas and is now planting chrysanthemums, of which he will put in 50,000 plants. His stock is sold by H. E. Froment, New York.

Teaneck, it may be stated, is on the Hudson River electric line, between the Hudson river and Hackensack. From New York this line is reached by the 129th street ferry.

John H. D. Sohnke is one of the pioneer florists of Teaneck, has a neat range and grows a variety of stock. A. F. F.

CHICAGO

QUIET TRADE FOLLOWS SCHOOL CLOSINGS.

There has been a slacking up in trade since the closing of the schools and the commencement season is now practically over. There is still a great deal of funeral work and the June weddings have kept business fairly good. Roses are not as abundant as they were, for the growers are cleaning up their benches and beginning to prepare for the winter season, and at all the establishments there is general hustling. Flowers are not scarce, however, and there is still a good cut with some of the dealers, although a comparative scarcity with others. There seems to be still plenty of Harrisii lilies, but carnations and lily of the valley are short.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Company is engaged in the work of remodeling and rebuilding, but will not build additional houses, as they already have an extensive range. They have torn out and replaced 40 benches which are being replanted to roses and carnations. Chrysanthemums will be put in later. They have a nice cut of roses but lily of the valley is scarce. They still have a fine lot of peonies, both white and pink. The families of each and all the Joys will spend the summer at their home places, as they cannot improve upon the suburbs of Nashville as a summer resort. Tom H. Joy will attend the Rotary Club convention in Cincinnati in July.

Gentry Bros. will not build any new houses, but are remodeling the old and making them practically new. In all the houses they are building new concrete benches and doing a general cleaning up. Their roses are off crop, but they have an abundant supply of lilies and other flowers. The brothers, Oscar and Leon, have purchased an eight room cottage at old Jefferson Springs, and will go there to spend the summer with their families.

Charles Green, another comer, brought in a fine lot of hydrangeas and made good sales on them. Both the latter are located in North Nashville.

Charles Trichter is coming on as a florist and has had many fine plants on sale at the Market house.

STOCK IN AMPLE SUPPLY.

The market is well stocked with everything from myosotis to Ophelia roses. Lily of the valley, however, is scarce and is priced at five cents. New ferns have made their appearance. Russell roses are quoted at from $6 to $25 per 100. There are no American Beauties. Carnations sell at from $1 to $2.50 per 100. Daisies go at 50 cents to $1. The supply of plants in this vicinity is about cleaned up.

NOTES.

The florists' club held its regular meeting and postponed all meetings until the first Tuesday in September.

The Minnesota State Florists' Association will hold its next meeting at the store of Holm & Olson, St. Paul, June 22. Theodore Wirth will give a lecture on "Minneapolis Parks," illustrated by stereopticon views. He will be followed by W. E. Meyer, who will speak on "Outdoor Rose Culture." Several other good speakers are also on the programme. Every florist, nurseryman, seedsman and gardener in the state is cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Will Bros. are cutting some extra fancy Ophelia and Milady roses.

The W. D. Desmond Co. is sending in some very fine Gladiolus America and Butterfly sweet peas.

Cal Rice of Rice Bros. is on a fishing trip at the northern lakes, accompanied by a party of friends.

Remedies For "Chiggers."

If a bath in hot water, or in water containing salt or strong soap, is taken within a few hours after exposure in shrubby and weeds infested with "chiggers," or "red bugs," no ill effects will be experienced. After a long exposure, however, a bath has practically no effect, and direct remedies are necessary.

After irritation has set in, and small red spots appear, the application of a moderately strong solution of ammonia to the affected parts is recommended by the United States department of agriculture's entomologists. A supersaturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, or common cooking soda or saleratus, will afford relief. Liberal applications should be made until the irritation subsides. If the suffering is severe, a dilute tincture of iodine or collodion should be lightly applied.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Tri-City Florists Club was held at the residence of H. Pauli, June 8, with a large attendance. President Ludwig Stapp presided. A. F. Longren and Max Rasmussen were visitors of the evening. The Sunday closing movement was taken up and it was decided to close all greenhouses at noon on Sundays and to make no deliveries in the afternoon, all members to conform with this rule. The annual picnic will be held on Rock River, July 13.

War Note.

"I observe," said Bildad, "that these German submarines are paying all their attention to steam vessels. I haven't seen any record of their sinking any of our big schooners."

"No," said Dubbleigh. "The schooner is a symbol of sentiment with the Teuton, and he doesn't like to think of it in connection with a watery bier."

Lawn Making.

"This is a fast age we're living in." "Yes, indeed. I can remember when we used to grow lawns from grass seed; now we kick if the men laying sod take over half a day to do the job!"—Detroit Free Press.

COOL WEATHER AND STEADY TRADE.

Business is holding its own very nicely. The weather continues cool and this is no doubt in a measure responsible for the steady trade that the florists are enjoying; usually at this time of the year the weather becomes so warm that the demand for flowers assumes a summery and quiet mood. There is an occasional June wedding to be provided for, but none of large proportions have developed lately.

NOTES.

The coming convention of the S. A. F., which will be held at Houston, Tex., August 15-17, is already beginning to receive attention from members of the craft and it is expected that there will be a delegation of good proportions from this city, the distance to the convention city being but 500 miles, so long mileage can hardly be put forth as an excuse for non-attendance.

There is a whisper abroad that a wholesale market is to be established in this city. It is intimated that both flowers and plants will be handled and growers in all parts of the state will be induced to become stockholders in the organization. Such an establishment would be a great benefit to both the city and state, and we say "go to it"—by all means.

Counter trade has been poor due to inclement weather, but the call for graduation flowers and wedding decorations has been good. The demand for bedding plants continues good.

NOTES.

The Flick Floral Co. is exceptionally busy with June wedding decorations for both city and out-of-town points. A fine display of boxwoods and window boxes are attracting attention at the West Berry street store.

The board of park commissioners have been doing some exceptionally fine work in planting the boulevards and parks, the shrubs and bedding plants coming from the city greenhouses.

Flag day, June 14, was the occasion for an elaborate celebration in this city. The window decorations of the florists in honor of "Old Glory" were especially worthy of mention.

Judge W. J. Vesey and daughter, Margaret, and W. J. Vesey, Jr., and wife, are visitors at Delaware, O., this week.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fourth annual convention, Chicago, June 20-22, 1916.

FRENCH shippers claim that the cost of bulb cases this year will be 3.25 francs.

SWEDESBORO, N. J.—Edgar F. Hurff will not be able to attend the seedsmen's convention this year.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—The A. J. Brown Seed Co. will close its year July 1 with a 15 per cent increase.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade June 14, were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $8.50 per 100 pounds.

THE Mills Seed Co., Washington, Ia., filed a petition in bankruptcy last week. The firm has been practically insolvent for a year.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. T. Ferrell, of A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich.; Adolph Corneli, of the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., St. Louis, Mo.

CINCINNATI, O. — J. Chas. McCullough says the summer seed trade has been very good and is holding on late with a good outlook for business.

THE decision of the British government prohibiting the importation of Dutch bulbs is not likely to be changed, according to prominent men in the English trade.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—R. W. Pommer, of D. I. Bushnell & Co., left June 10 for the east, having shipped his car to Buffalo and starts on an auto tour from that point with a party of friends.

THE A. T. Ferrell Co., makers of seed cleaning machinery for the seed trade, reports that it now pays for the zinc used in its machinery 32 cents per pound against a former cost of six cents per pound.

MOORESTOWN, N. J., June 9.—The Stokes' Seed Farms Co., says the total volume of business for the year will be approximately 50 per cent ahead of last year. Collections do not start until July 1, but present market conditions are firm and farmers' money should be freer than for three years past.

WHILE the seed trade of Chicago has been officially notified by the national organization that there is to be no entertainment during the annual meeting next week, convention city seedsmen feel that they must do something to break the monotony of business routine, but there has been no decision in the matter as we go to press.

SEEDSMEN in the west and north-west who made extra preparation for a good supply of medium and early seed corn, mostly of 1914 crop, are complaining of the slow demand. The average corn grower seems at last to have profited by several years' experience and has saved or otherwise supplied his needs early for this planting season. It is somewhat doubtful whether the 1914 corn carried over again will hold its germinating power.

Quality In Seeds.

The admirable article by Will W. Tracy, which appeared in THE AMERICAN FLORIST of June 3, page 1064, upon the subject of merit as to quality in vegetables is in full accord with the spirit pervading the minds of all really progressive market gardeners who now insist upon inherent qualities rather than as shown in impossible pictures and as given in deceptive printed descriptions.

Market gardeners fill a distinct position as compared with private gardeners who can take chances, as the latter are not dependent for their living upon the crop results. Market gardeners, on the contrary, must plant those seeds which will bring them the greater volume of those dollars which are the object of their summer's work. They do not want new sub-varieties just because they are sufficiently distinct in some particulars as to warrant a new name, possibly new in some minor qualities, but altogether impossible as money makers or at the best, if worthy of culture in one locality, entirely unfitted for culture in another locality. Descriptions seldom tell on what soil such new sorts will be found most profitable, still less under what conditions of rainfall or solar heat, or period of maturity for table, respecting other more profitable sorts, which come into bearing at the same time. The thoughtful market gardener can not afford to take chances as is clearly evinced by the growing indisposition to take up with new garden vegetables until they have been tested as to their various qualities of hardiness, productiveness, and attractiveness in the basket or on the market stand, for all the while the market gardener must look for his cash returns, he must please the buyer if he expects to pile up the coveted dollars.

Our business experience is that within the past few years far greater attention is rightfully given by market gardeners to the quality of vegetables than to the price per pound for the planting seed. This latter, while it must be considered, is of little consequence if the quality of the vegetables prove to be all right, the comparative cost of the seed being just nothing compared with profitable or unprofitable crop returns.

The market gardener, without any silly speculation in seeds of unknown qualities, has enough else to fight when he bucks up against nature, the droughts and deluges, the heat and cold, the hail, the bugs, the fungus, and the slump values after he gets the stuff to market.

Iowa Seed Dealers' Association.

The annual meeting of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association, held at Des Moines, Ia., June 7-8, was attended by about the usual number, as named in our issue of June 10, page 1113, a very enthusiastic gathering, and the meeting was very instructive and profitable. Former President Charles N. Page gave a very interesting address outlining the history and origin of the association. Addresses were also made by Prof. Hughes, of Ames College, and Mr. Redfern, of the Iowa State Food and Dairy Commission.

The matter of the non-warranty clause was discussed and it was the opinion of all that it should be retained just as it is, that non-warranty was important, and that without it the seller of seeds would not be properly protected. A committee was appointed to advise the American Seed Trade Association at the Chicago meeting of the action taken and urge the members to stand pat on non-warranty.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: W. C. Grote, of the Younkerman Seed Co., Council Bluffs, president; E. M. Cole, of Pella, vice-president; A. M. Eldridge, of the Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, secretary; Hon. John T. Hamilton, of Cedar Rapids, treasurer, who by the way, was elected to that office for the tenth time.

Des Moines was named as the permanent meeting place of the association.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The store and warehouse of Chas. F. Saul was saved from destruction recently only by prompt action of the fire department when fire broke out in an adjoining building. Some loss was caused by smoke.

Crops in Massachusetts.

Boston, June 7.—The late spring and the excess fall of rain this year will cause a loss of about $5,000,000 to the farmers of the State of Massachusetts. This is the opinion of Secretary Wilfrid Wheeler of the state board of agriculture, who says that the owners of farms were passing through one of the most trying periods in years. "The loss in crops," said Mr. Wheeler, "will probably average $5 an acre over 1,000,000 acres of improved land in this commonwealth. If the season makes up later on, however, and runs along well the loss may be reduced."

The principal cause for the serious conditions is the exceptionally late spring and the excess fall of rain.

The labor problem is growing more and more serious. Both the market gardeners near the large cities and the farmers in the more rural communities report that it is almost impossible to hire help. The only result is that in such instances the farmers are not planting the ordinary crops, although they have no difficulty in finding a ready market for almost anything they can raise.

Large growers of corn say that the planting has been unsatisfactory. The asparagus crop is the poorest known in years, due to the cold weather.

Reports from the Connecticut Valley are to the effect that the onions are doing well. This is a crop that can stand considerable water. The strawberry crop is promising. There was a heavy blow and the berries are forming well.

The hay crop promises to be one of the best in years, providing, of course, that the harvest time is dry and fair. Mr. Wheeler would not be surprised if the value of this year's crop would be $3,000,000 in excess of the record of $11,280,984 in 1909. It has been an exceptionally good season for dairying. The pastures everywhere are green, the cattle having all the grass they can eat. Generally speaking, green feeding in the barn is unnecessary.

The apple crop promises to be good. Seldom has there been a better bloom than this spring.

President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky.,

Next annual convention will be held September, 1916.

CARTHAGE, MO.—A vegetable house, 84x500 feet, is being added to the range of the Fairview Greenhouses.

BALDWINVILLE, MASS.—Two houses, each 100 feet long, have been purchased by Frank Cogswell, and will be planted to cucumbers.

THERE was continuous rain throughout New York on June 7 and 8, which was favorable for planting, except on heavy land. Tomato plants are now in demand and the prospects are that the planting season on account of the late spring will be extended well into June.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The Vegetable Growers' Association of America may hold its annual convention here this year, some time in October or November. Officers of the association are meeting with interested local people at the Hotel La Salle, June 15, when a formal invitation will be extended.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 13.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 85 cents per pound; lettuce, cases, 10 to 17½ cents; radishes, 50 cents to $1.00 per 100 bunches; celery, $1.75 to $2.00 per crate; tomatoes, six baskets, $2.25 to $4; cucumbers, per doz., 50 cents to 80 cents.

New York, June 13.—Celery, per 12-inch crate, $1.00 to $2.00; cucumbers, 75 cents per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.50 per 4 pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 20 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.00; lettuce, per strap, $1.50 to $2.50; rhubarb, per dozen bunches, 25 to 35 cents.

Cucumber Mosaic Disease.

A new disease of cucumbers, known as the mosaic disease, has appeared during the past few years in commercial greenhouses and in fields where cucumbers are grown for pickling purposes. The disease is now most widespread and severe in the middle west, where the industry of growing cucumbers for pickling is centered. In greenhouses the disease was reported from Illinois as early as 1908, and is known to occur to a more or less limited extent in New York, Louisiana, Pennsylvania, and other states.

APPEARANCE OF DISEASED PLANTS.

The mosaic disease is commonly known in Michigan, Indiana, and Wisconsin as "white pickle." In Minnesota it is commonly called "nubbins." The disease is characterized in the field by definite plant, fruit and leaf symptoms. The leaves of diseased plants are dwarfed, often curled and wrinkled, and usually have a mosaic or marbled appearance in which areas of light and dark green alternate. In some cases the leaves brown and die back from the tip. The fruits are very conspicuously affected, being dwarfed, more or less mottled or blotched with areas of darker green on a background of light green, greenish yellow, or almost white. In the most decided cases the green areas are raised and appear as definite warts or protuberances, sometimes of considerable size, and the fruits take on many abnormal shapes. In some cases the fruits are almost white, hence the name "white pickle." The discoloration and warty condition of the fruits, which often appear on cucumbers not more than an inch or two long, render them unfit for pickling purposes, so that in addition to the great reduction in yield caused by the disease, many, if not all, of the fruits produced by diseased vines are unmarketable. In the greenhouse the disease appears to be more virulent, many of the plants wilting and dying.

NATURE OF THE DISEASE.

The mosaic disease has recently been studied by the Michigan experiment station in co-operation with the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, and by the University of Rochester in co-operation with the Cornell University agricultural experiment station and its nature discovered. It belongs to the same class as the other mosaic diseases of tobacco, potato, tomato, poke weed, and other plants, which have been known for some time. The exact cause of this class of trouble has not been discovered, but it is considered to be what is known as a filterable virus, an agent of infection which is so finely divided that it will pass through a porcelain filter and still retain its ability to reproduce the disease when injected into healthy plants.

CONTROL MEASURES.

Judging from the nature of the disease and from the preliminary experiments thus far carried out, the remedial measures indicated are (1) the eradication or control of insect pests which act as carriers of the disease, and (2) the application of sanitary measures to eliminate the sources of infection. To be most effective, these methods must be carried out by all the farmers of a community. Rigid insect control measures should be started as soon as the plants are up and continued throughout the season. The fields should be gone over repeatedly, especially previous to the beginning of picking and all mosaic diseased plants pulled and destroyed, as well as plants with which they have come in contact. Owing to the fact that greenhouse conditions are much more completely under control than field conditions, it would seem an easier task to control the disease there.

Twenty Million Dollar Strawberry Crop.

Twenty million dollars' worth of strawberries are being passed from the place of production to the consumer in the current strawberry year. This statement is made by the lecturer on commerce in the educational department of the National City Bank of New York in his discussion of the fruit trade of the world and its relations to banking. The strawberry crop of the United States, he said, seems a comparatively small matter, but it illustrates the importance of this single feature of our industry, the fruit crop, to the banking interest; for a strawberry crop, which represents $20,000,000 at the place of production and must be marketed within a comparatively few weeks' time, requires of itself a very considerable financial aid during its busy season.

Foreign Notes.

The annual consumption of potatoes in Argentina is approximately 55,000 tons or a little over 150 tons per day. In 1915 important shipments came from the United States.

To assist worthy workmen to combat the increasing cost of living, the authorities of St. Etienne, France, have set aside 70 acres of tillable soil and applicants with families will be allotted plots of 360 square yards. The produce must be for the use of the worker's family.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;
John Watson, Newark, N. Y., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 28-30, 1916.

ALBANY, N. Y.—A plan is under foot to buy ten million dollars' worth of land in the Adirondacks and the Catskills to add to the forest preserve. A bond issue is to finance the proposition.

HOUSTON, TEX.—C. L. Brock, superintendent of parks in this city and in charge of the Convention Garden, is one of the organizers of the Young Men's Business League, which will prove a factor in the entertainment of visitors to the S. A. F. convention to be held here, August 15-17.

Dewberry Plantations.

The dewberry, which has proved profitable in many sections, as it ripens earlier than the true blackberry, which it resembles greatly in some respects, is discussed in Farmers' Bulletin 728 of the United States department of agriculture. At present the dewberry is grown most extensively in North Carolina and New Jersey, but there are also plantations in Maryland, Texas, Michigan, Missouri, Colorado and other states. In the south where the growing season is long, the canes, both old and young, are usually cut off after the fruit is picked. In northern regions where the season is too short to secure a large amount of new growth, the old canes only are removed. The duration of a plantation will depend on the attention it receives. In North Carolina plantations 15 years old are still productive.

American Association of Nurserymen.

The nurserymen of Rochester, N. Y., are endeavoring to secure a special train from that city to the forty-first annual convention of the above association at Milwaukee, Wis., June 28-30, but in order to have this train 100 tickets are required. If interested and intend making this trip, members are requested to communicate with E. S. Osborne, 448 Cutler building, Rochester, N. Y., at the earliest possible moment in order that arrangements can be made with the representatives of the New York Central Lines. Mr. Osborne will consider it a favor if members of the association will indicate whether or not this feature of a special train and special service appeals to them or not, so that he may be governed by the replies received.

The New York Central Lines have agreed to run special sleepers from Boston and New York, leaving Boston at 7:35 p. m., Sunday, June 25; leaving Springfield 10:28 p. m., leaving New York 11:30 p. m., picking up nurserymen along the line, and arriving at Rochester the following morning, June 26, at 8:13 o'clock. It is planned to spend the day in Rochester, and leave for Milwaukee late in the afternoon or early evening, June 26, picking up Ohio delegates at Cleveland, and the Michigan delegates at Toledo. If sufficient nurserymen can be interested coming from other points, special cars will be run for them also.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.
President American Association of Nurserymen.

Connecticut Horticultural Society.

After the routine business had been transacted, the summer flower show to be held June 27-28 was brought up for discussion. Various plans were voiced as to the best method to pursue to interest the public of Hartford in the promulgation of horticulture in all its ramifications. The special prizes offered by the firms named below will be awarded as follows:

The silver cup contributed by Knight & Struck Company, of New York, will be awarded to the exhibitor of the best three spikes of Delphinium Bella Donna. Stump & Walter Company, New York, also offer a silver cup, which will be awarded to the best general exhibit. Joseph Breck & Sons Corporation, Boston, offers $10, and will be split, $6, first, and $4, second, for the best general collection of roses. Arthur T. Boddington Co., Inc., New York, also offer $10, and this also will be divided into a first and second of $6 and $4 for the best general collection of sweet peas. It will be noted that these specials may be competed for by professionals and amateurs.

Over $250 will be offered in prizes, and the exhibition committee anticipate a show of unusual merit. There are three sections: in the rose section there are 19 classes; in the hardy perennials, 23 classes, and 14 in the sweet pea department. In the rose class, for the best collection of hybrid perpetuals there are two prizes, $5 and $3, and other substantial premiums. For the best collection, arrangement for effect, in the hardy perennials, there are two prizes, $7 and $4. In each department there are premiums of like amounts, which should bring out some fine exhibits, making one of the leading shows in New England. It is hoped to have members of the Ladies' Garden Club of Hartford, and also members of the Ladies' Garden Club of Middletown, exhibit in a department set aside for this purpose, and the society will award diplomas to such exhibits as merit such action.

In the past the society has given a dahlia show each fall, but this year we are departing from the beaten path to new, and what proved to be last year a successful change. It is hoped that the venture will prove to be equally as successful this year as it was last year and more so.

ALFRED DIXON, Sec'y.

Holyoke and Northampton Club.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held at the Smith College botanic garden, Northampton, Mass., June 6. Before the business meeting the members found many objects of interest in the herbaceous garden and greenhouses. In the latter the visitors were especially interested in the displays of Zonal and Regal pelargoniums, canterbury bells, Peach Blossom gladioli and Clerodendron fallax. The principal business transacted was the adoption of a schedule for the annual flower show, which will be held in Northampton, November 1-2. George Strignell read BUSINESS GOOD IN ALL LINES.

The local trade are feeling jubilant over business, which continues good in all lines. Stock is looking well, and due to the perfect weather conditions, everything is keeping up in good shape. Sweet peas, notwithstanding the fact that it is late in the season, are still in splendid condition. The nurserymen, while their trade has shown an improvement over the past two or three years, and while there are some fine homes of the better class going up right along, for every order there are a dozen after it, do not feel quite as good over conditions as members of the other branches of the trade. The small cash orders, ranging from $10 to $20 for the home of the working man are missed, and until the building of small houses resumes, the nursery trade will be more or less dull.

NOTES.

Business at the Orchid Flower Store has never been better and prospects for the future are good. The attractive windows at this establishment are always sure to receive attention. Ornamental stock plays an important part and a recent arrangement included everything seasonable. The display of cut blooms represented quite a neat sum in itself.

Campbell Seed Store, Inc., report a good counter trade since the first of the year and still going strong. This firm has an extensive trade among flower lovers who own their homes and anyone knowing this city is not surprised that trade in this line is good.

The Pasadena Nursery reports a good trade, although sales might be better. Thomas Chisholm, the proprietor, believes that better conditions will prevail before another season rolls around.

Eldred's Flower Shop reports good business in all departments. Graduation flowers for several private schools in this city added to the rush.

S. H. Allerton has returned from an Eastern trip. He called on the seed and nursery trade in a number of the principal cities.

John Frauhuf, who, about two years ago, located at Hudson Heights, has recently made many improvements about his range. He has had a good business in bedding plants and is now planting chrysanthemums.

JUNE WEDDINGS HELP BUSINESS.

Were it not for the many June weddings, business here would have been stagnated by the incessant rains and cool weather of the past week. However, with the weddings, commencements and funerals, florists have been kept quite busy. The market is well supplied with all kinds of seasonable stock, particularly peonies, which are flooding the market now. Carnations are not finding as ready a sale on this account. Roses are plentiful but not quite up to the standard. Spring planting is late and florists who make a specialty of this work, still have great stocks of geraniums, salvias and other bedding stock. The demand continues lively, however, and with the right kind of weather, a good clean up is confidently expected.

NOTES.

Metz & Bateman, in the Ohio building, have found their quarters too cramped, owing to a great increase in business and have signed a lease for 2,500 square feet of additional floor space in the basement. These rooms will be extensively altered, and when completed will give this enterprising firm one of the most commodious and modern salesrooms in this locality. June weddings are keeping them busy.

The Lindley Floral Company, formerly located on St. Clair street, next to Keith's theatre, has discontinued business. Miss Lindley, who managed the store, found the work too strenuous for her and ill health forced her to retire.

Hackensack, N. J.

Lehnig & Winnefeld, who have a fine reputation as plantmen, have several houses filled with fine stock of young cyclamens; also, a fine stock of ferns. They continue to ship out geraniums and a variety of other bedding plants.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Pansies.

For winter blooming the seed of pansies should be sown early. Procure a strain of seed that will produce large flowers, and unless they are to be grown in considerable quantities mixed colors are to be preferred. To obtain plants enough for winter blooming it will be better to plant the seed in flats and place them in a cool shady location in the house, where they are much more easily cared for than out in the open. If such a location is not to be had they can be sown in a cold frame and a sash that is quite heavily shaded placed over them until the plants begin to grow. As soon as large enough they should be planted in a cold frame until the bench is made ready, about the middle of September, in the house. The soil for winter growing should be good, and of the richest, in order to obtain large flowers, and the house in which they are planted should be maintained at a cool temperature, about 45 degrees at night, after settled fall and winter weather commences. Pansies are not, as a rule, troubled much with insect pests, but sometimes in the fall in the houses they are attacked by green fly and they are quickly checked in their growth if the aphids gets a good hold upon them. A careful watch should be maintained and if they are found to be infested with aphids constant spraying with nicotine solutions will keep the insects down.

Office Housecleaning.

Nearly all growing establishments at the present day have what is termed the office, and during the busy season, in many places, but little attention is given to keep it in a tidy condition.
Now is the time, after the carnations are housed and before the fall work commences, to have a thorough cleaning up of the office and workroom and get them in readiness for the coming season. Get all the papers filed away in proper shape and fix up all accounts as far as possible, and thereby get rid of much of the worry and trouble.
Clean up the workroom and give it a clean coat of paint, and straighten out the supplies. If the stock of baskets has grown dirty get a little gold paint and give them a coat of this, which will certainly make them more attractive than the dingy supplies too often seen hanging on the walls or standing around. The florist too seldom appreciates how the customer likes to trade in a clean, up-to-date place, and often endeavors to excuse the dirty appearance by remarking: "It is impossible where so much dirt is handled to keep the place clean." Such a one is only fooling himself. The present-day customers, of whom many are ladies, know better; they see other places that are kept neat and clean, and they cannot be imposed upon with such tales.

Now is the time to get everything shipshape for the fall and winter trade.

Roman Hyacinths.

The first bulbs to arrive will be the Roman hyacinths, and everything should be in readiness to properly care for them as soon as received. When the cases arrive the bulbs should be placed in a cool, dry place; if packed in bags they should be spread out either in flats or shallow boxes and placed where they will neither be too moist nor yet in too dry and warm a location. While it is too early to plant for the winter blooming, still a succession of plantings may be made every week until cool weather, when the balance can be planted up. Almost any soil will grow bulbs successfully but fine results are obtained with soil that has been thrown out from the carnation or rose benches and has lain out over winter to allow it to sweeten a little. When a fall pot plant is wanted a few of the hyacinth bulbs can be planted in bulb pots, but in growing for cut flowers flats are to be preferred, for they are much more economically handled and do not require as much care. In planting the bulbs cover the bottom of the flats with about an inch of soil, placing the bulbs on this quite closely together, yet not touching, as can be done with other bulbs. The flat should then be filled with soil, which should be packed between the bulbs with the ends of the fingers. They should then be given a good watering, enough to wet the soil all the way through and settle it around the bulb. The flats should be placed outside and covered to the depth of about three inches with sand or coal ashes or something that will lie close enough to prevent drying out. A label should be placed at the end with the date of planting, so that the several plantings will be kept separate and can be readily moved into the houses. In four to six weeks they should be well enough rooted to bring them into the house, where they can be placed under a bench until they begin to throw up their flowering spikes.

Delphiniums.

This perennial has become quite a popular cut flower for summer use and is very decorative and showy. Those that have a stock can increase the plants of the better varieties by propagation at this time. When the plants bloom those that produce the best spikes and are of the best colors should be marked. After the blooms are cut the small growths that break from the stem are very easily rooted. Prepare a bed in a shaded frame and insert the cuttings, watering heavily when first put in. They will need frequent syringing during the hot weather and will root in three to four weeks, when they can be either potted or planted in a frame where they can be given attention. As soon as well established they can be planted in their permanent location, but should be given a little protection during the first winter by throwing a little old straw or some such material over them.

Anemone Japonica.

One of the most useful perennials for the fall is the Anemone Japonica. It blooms at a time when flowers are very scarce, and if planted where it can be protected from the early frosts will produce quantities of bloom that can be made of use in all classes of floral work. The successful blooming of this plant depends much upon its summer culture. If the season is dry it will require constant watering, in fact, a good soaking. It is a good plan to place the hose in a bed of this and let the water run until the ground is thoroughly wet, and do this as often as may be required. It will amply repay in the long strong shoots, full of blooms, that will be produced in the fall. The florist not possessing a good stock of this beautiful perennial should procure some of it and plant a bed for fall cutting.

Asparagus Baskets.

There is always a good call for hanging baskets of Asparagus Sprengeri and there is nothing more decorative in a store or greenhouse than these beautiful baskets when well put up and when they are growing nicely. The young 3-inch stock will make nice basket work. The wire basket frame should be of good size, eight inches in diameter at least. Line the outside with green sheet moss, which makes a much better appearance than sphagnum, and then fill with good rich soil and plant the young plants in this. The basket, after planting, should be placed in a warm, moist house to encourage rapid growth; a house with a temperature such as palms are grown in is about right. They should be frequently syringed, and as soon as the long fronds have made a good growth they can be removed to lighter and cooler quarters.

London's Wartime Flower Show.

THE CHELSEA EXHIBITION.

This year the Royal Horticultural Society's show in the grounds of the Royal hospital, Chelsea, was held under war-like conditions, although to see the throngs of people in the tents and in the grounds, one would never have thought that a great war was raging within one hundred miles or so of the exhibition. Owing largely to the railways being unreliable for the carriage of heavy material and also the fact that many gardeners were serving in the army, the show this year was on a more restricted basis than before. Even the band—that adjunct of every exhibition of note in England—was dispensed with this year, "in order that the character of the Chelsea show may be in full sympathy with the times and to give emphasis to the educational and scientific objects of the exhibition"—as it was euphemistically put, on the cover of the catalogue. Music evidently interferes with science and education, according to some enlightened beings.

Taking the show as a whole, while it was not so large as usual, it was excellent in every way. The most noticeable missing feature was the rock gardens that formed the leading attraction of former years. These were missed by the multitude of alpine and herbaceous plant lovers. Nevertheless, the display of roses, clematis, orchids, rhododendrons, carnations, lilacs, sweet peas, snapdragons, begonias, dahlias, caladiums, ferns, clipped yews and boxes, ornamental leaved maples and other shrubs, Japanese pigmy trees, tulips, irises—to mention only a few of the leading groups of plants—were in every way remarkable and displayed the cultural ability of nurserymen in all parts of the kingdom, including even Ireland, which has so recently gone through some stirring times. With few exceptions the exhibition was mainly a trade one. A new feature, or rather one more conspicuous than hitherto, was the number of lady artists who were displaying water and oil colors of beautiful landscape and garden views. Most of these were really works of art, and prove that the art of laying out gardens for scenic effect is taking a greater hold on the painter year after year.

Horticultural sundries (by which is meant everything that a gardener uses to bring his plants to perfection—from a layering pin to a huge hot-water boiler, mowing machine and garden roller) had a tent to themselves and contributed not the least interesting part of the exhibition.

Taking a few of the leading floral features, orchids may be given perhaps a leading place. The display, however, was by no means so extensive as in former years, and with the exception of the group from Sir Jeremiah Colman, of Reigate, was purely confined to the trade. The great displays of Sir Trevor Lawrence and Sir Baron Schroeder will be seen no more. Nor will the extensive area that used to be allotted to the Veitch firm again be filled from the dismantled greenhouses and ground of Chelsea, Coombe Wood, Langley and Feltham. The Chelsea firm is no more, but its mantle seems to be shared by several, each contributing one or two specialties.

The most noteworthy orchid exhibitors were Armstrong & Brown, Tunbridge Wells, who obtained a gold medal; Charlesworth & Co., Haywards Heath, and J. & A. McBean, to both of whom the Williams' Memorial medal was awarded. Charlesworth & Co. had a wonderful Odontoglossum Brewi cupreum with coppery scarlet flowers, which obtained an award of merit. Odontoglossum crispum Aldworthi in McBean's group won the Davidson annual cup for the best odontoglossum. The flowers are very large, heavily blotched with deep red, the frilled margins being conspicuously rimmed with pure white.

Sander & Sons, St. Albans, had a fine display of general high merit, including the best hybrids and species of most noteworthy genera. The same may be said of Mansell & Hatcher, Randon, Leeds; J. Cypher & Sons, of Cheltenham; Flory & Black of Slough; Stuart Low & Co., of Enfield; Waters, of Balcombe, Sussex, and E. Dixon, of Wandsworth Common. The hybrid odontiodas; Laelio-cattleyas, sophrocattleyas, with the miltonias, renantheras, cyripediums, cattleyas, dendrobiums, oncidiums, etc., now constitute the principal sections that are shown. Frequently, however, some rare and choice "botanical" morsels are to be found in the collections of Charlesworth & Co. and Sander & Sons, and they always seem to find purchasers.

Next to orchids the American carnations are always a popular and extensive feature of the show. This year the principal exhibitors were Allwood Bros., Haywards Heath; R. H. Bath, of Wisbeck; Burnett of Guernsey; Stuart Low & Co.; Price & Tyffe (lady gardeners), East Grinstead; Wells & Co., Merstham, Dutton; Iver & Douglas, Great Bookham, the last named making a specialty of the border varieties.

Roses are always a glowing and attractive feature and this year were quite up to the standard. Groups came from R. J. Barnes, Malvern; Brown, Peterborough; Burch, Peterborough; Ben Cant and Frank Cant, of Colchester; Alex. Dickson & Sons, of Newtonards, Ireland; E. J. Hicks, Twy-bord; Hobbies, Ltd., Dereham, Norfolk; Geo. Paul & Sons, Cheshunt; Wm. Paul & Sons, Waltham Cross; Geo. Prince, of Longworth, Berks, and Chas. Turner, of Slough. These are a host in themselves and would take some beating, so far as display, culture and varieties are concerned.

Herbaceous and alpine plants of all descriptions were much in evidence, the most conspicuous genera being irises, phloxes, lupines, pyrethrums, trolius, peonies, poppies, primulas, lilioms, anemones, larkspurs, geums, violas, columbines, etc., in great variety. The principal exhibitors in this section were J. C. Allgrove, Langley (formerly of Veitch's); Artindale & Son, of Sheffield; Baker's, Wolverham-

Blackmore & Langdon, Bath; and Ware, of Feltham; to the hippeastrums of R. P. Ker & Sons, Liverpool; to the clematis of Geo. Jackman & Son, Woking; the caladiums of Peed & Son, West Norwood; the hardy and exotic ferns of H. B. May & Son, Edmonton; the Azalea Mollis from Cuthbert, Southgate; the fine lilacs from R. C. Notcutt, Woodbridge, Suffolk; W. and I. Brown, Peterborough; and Chas. Turner, Slough. Rhododendrons were remarkably finely shown by Waterer & Sons, Bagshot, in bush and standard form, the unique and still unsurpassed Pink Pearl being a great attraction.

Japanese maples were beautifully displayed by Fromon & Sons, Chiswick,

The only lot of vegetables in the show was a fine exhibit of Sutton & Sons, Reading. This included early peas and beans, tomatoes, radishes, lettuces, spring cabbage, etc., so clean and well arranged that one was almost tempted to try to eat them in the raw state. It is to be hoped the next Chelsea show will be held in happier and better times.

American Sweet Pea Society.

SAN FRANCISCO SHOW.

The second annual exhibition of the Pacific coast branch of the American Sweet Pea Society was held in the concert room of the Palace hotel, San Francisco, Calif., June 9-10. The show was larger than that of last year and the superior quality of the flowers throughout was commented upon by all who attended. The number of visitors during the opening day was disappointing, but the following day the exhibition was attended by crowds. The entries were much more numerous and filled the room almost to a point of overcrowding. It is unfortunate that the finances of the society would not permit of more publicity but when it is realized that the detail work of the show falls upon the shoulders of a few who are the least able to give their time at this season of the year and that the entire expense will be borne by a few local growers and seedsmen, it will be readily seen why more could not be done along these lines.

C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, had an exhibit of about 200 square feet comprising the leading varieties of Spencers with a choice selection of seedlings from their noted "workshop." Three large uprights formed the main background of their display, the varieties used being Miriam Beaver, Scintillator and Henry Ohn. Scintillator is one of this firm's novelties for 1916-1917 and is a brilliant salmon orange, striped on cream ground and is particularly beautiful in the sunlight or under artificial light. Other novelties which will be offered are Celubra, which is a mauve, striped on white ground, but is a truly duplexed flower. Henry Ohn is a pink on cream, also duplexed and is among the most promising novelties of recent introduction. The new sun-proof Scarlet will be welcomed by all growers. The entire display was much admired.

ton; Barr & Sons, Covent Garden; Bees, Ltd., Chester; Bunyard & Co., Maidstone; Cheal & Sons, Crawley; G. & A. Clark, Dover; John Forbes, Hawick; Clarence Elliott, Stevenage; Guildford Hardy Plant Nursery, Guildford; Godfrey & Son, Exmouth; Jackman & Son, Woking; B. Ladhams, Southampton; G. W. Miller, Wisbech; Amos Perry, Enfield; Maurice Prichard, Wimborne; Reamsbottom & Co., Geashill, Ireland; G. Reuthe, Keston; Wallace & Co., Colchester; T. S. Ware, Feltham; Waterer Sons & Cripp, Bagshot, and Whitelegg & Page, Chislehurst. In connection with this section special mention may be made of the fine sweet peas from Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh; Bide & Sons, Farnham; R. Sydenham, Birmingham; J. Stevenson, Wborne, and I. Piper & Son, Bayswater.

The snapdragons, in spikes two to three feet long, from Dobbie & Co., were specially attractive and it is likely these flowers will become still more popular. The tulips, chiefly Darwins & Rembrandts, from Barr & Sons, Hogg & Robertson, Dublin; R. H. Bath, Wisbech; Sutton & Sons, Reading; Wallace & Co., and Alex. Dickson, Newtownards, constituted a very glowing and popular mass of color in various parts of the show. Considering the fine, hot sunny weather, the flowers lasted remarkably well, but were naturally somewhat blown by the end of the third day.

The three large and particularly fine groups of flowering plants—calceolarias, cinerarias, schizanthus, etc.—shown by Sutton & Sons, Webb & Sons, and Carter & Co., stood out by themselves as distinct features of artistic arrangement and superior cultivation. The same applies to the begonias of and a great variety of other ornamental shrubs came from L. R. Russell, Richmond, and Cheal & Son, Crawley.

Examples of topiary work were largely shown by Cutbush & Son of Highgate, and Japanese pigmy trees were very much in evidence from the Yokohama Nursery Co., Craven House, Kingsway; Ban & Sons, and Liberty & Co.

Of fruit there was a comparatively small display, the most noticeable being peaches, nectarines and cherries in pots from Rivers & Sons, Sawbridge-worth; some fine strawberries from Saxton Bros., Bedford; and melons, grapes, figs, peaches, red and white currents, from the Hon. John Ward, Chilton, Hungerford.

and sent a splendid exhibit from their Lompoc seed farm. The center of the display was occupied by a cross made up of their well known variety, Fiery Cross. The entire exhibit was well set up and showed tasteful arrangement at every point. A number of this firm's new early flowering varieties of Spencers were seen and the following were given awards of merit: Fordhook Pink and White, Fordhook Countess, Fordhook Hercules and Fordhook King. The exhibit was in charge of Harry F. Buckman of the Floradale Seed Farm, Lompoc, Calif.

The L. D. Waller Seed Co., Guadalupe, Calif., staged a delightfully fresh display that caused one to marvel at the condition of the flowers after their long journey. The large showing of R. F. Felton, Edward Cowdy and Dobbie's Cream made a striking Morse's New Early Spencer Sweet Peas.

C. C. Morse & Co., the well known California sweet pea specialists, are offering some attractive novelties in early flowering Spencer sweet peas this season as follows, the descriptions being supplied by the originators:

Early Morning Star.—We put this novelty at the beginning of our list be-did for packing and the flowers are borne on long stems in threes and fours. When in full growth it seems as though every stem carried four large blossoms. This was a wonderfully fine patch and most attractive because of the great quantity of blooms and the beautiful soft shade of pink.

Early Melody.—This is a deeper shade of pink than "Early Song Bird" on white ground, closely resembling "Countess Spencer" and near "Hercules." It might be described as rose pink on white ground. The effect when bunched is most pleasing. It is very floriferous. The flowers are borne on long stems and mostly four large well waved blossoms to each stem. This is sure to be a great favorite.

Early Spring Maid.—Those who are familiar with the late flowering Spencer, "Mrs. Hugh Dickson", will have a good idea of what a handsome variety this is. The color is light pink on a cream ground and the blossoms have the same splendid characteristics of "Mrs. Hugh Dickson" for a florists' flower. It is a most effective flower and like our other early flowering Spencers it carries a great wealth of blossoms borne in fours on long stems. There is no early Spencer cream pink which is as attractive as "Early Spring Maid."

Early Snow Flake.—This is the best early flowering white seeded white Spencer we have seen. The blossoms are very large and of the best waved Spencer form. The flowers are borne in wonderful profusion on long stems. The form is every bit as good as our noted strain of "White Spencer" and for this reason will be in great demand by all who grow for market.

Early Heather Bell.—This will be one of the most popular shades with all florists as it will be so useful for making up for any occasion. It is a little like the variety known as "Anita Wehrman," but vastly superior in every way. The flowers are very large, borne in fours and threes on long stout stems and are of beautiful bold Spencer form. The color is a rich but pleasing mauve, but after standing in water the color becomes a beautiful mauve lavender.

Burpee's New Sweet Peas.

At the San Francisco exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society, June 9-10, W. Atlee Burpee & Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., and Lompoc, Calif., were awarded a certificate of merit for Fordhook Pink and White, Fordhook Countess, Fordhook Light Pink and Fordhook King. background. This firm also showed a new cream under the name of New Buttercup. The depth of the color was remarkable. Waldo Rohnert, Gilroy, Calif., also had a meritorious exhibit of all the standard varieties of Spencers. The whole showed high quality of stock and was displayed to excellent advantage. The judges were Eric James, president of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, and John McLaren, superintendent of Golden Gate park. The decorative displays were judged by Mr. Sanborn, Jr., of Oakland and Miss Evelyn McLean of San Francisco. The awards follow:

Best vase of Fiery Cross—Chas. W. Haas (John M. Aitken, Gr.), 1st; S. M. Spaulding (David W. Slade, Gr.), 2nd.

Six vases Spencers, six distinct varieties (amateurs and gardeners only)—Chas. W. Haas, 1st, with Constance Hinton, Mrs. Hugh Dickson and Capt. Travers; Mrs. Louis Stern (David Bassett, Gr.), 2nd, with Wedgewood, Doris Usher and Scarlet Emperor.

Twelve varieties of scarlet Spencers—Chas. W. Haas, 1st, Frank C. Thompson, 2nd; Emile Ralston, 3rd.

Nine vases Spencers—Chas. W. Haas, 1st; Mrs. L. Stern, 2nd.

cause we think it the best and most distinct. The color is a deep orange scarlet or flame color in standard with rich orange pink wings. The flower is practically the same color as the late flowering Spencer "Dobbie's Thomas Stevenson." It does not burn badly out in the open and under glass will be magnificent. The flowers are large and of best Spencer form and borne in threes and fours in wonderful profusion. This will be as popular a market flower as the old "Miss Willmott" grandiflora and under artificial light is superb.

Early Song Bird.—We are sure this will be the leading pale pink for florists. The flower is the same color as "Florence Morse Spencer" and "Lady Evelyn Eyre," and a bit lighter than "Elfrida Pearson." It has the same excellent form and features of Mrs. Hugh Dickson but is on white ground. The placement of the flowers is splenly note these early-flowering Spencers now being placed on the market as in some localities they are surely going to displace the later strain for outdoor planting. In California the early-flowering Spencers break into the bloom in from 90 to 100 days and continue flowering throughout the same season, as the late strain which does not commence blooming until five or six weeks later

THE ROSE.

Control of Rose Diseases.

When the editor of the American Rose Society's 1916 annual was getting together material for that notable volume, he discovered that there had never been made in America any orderly study of the diseases of roses. It was found that even the up-to-date Bailey Standard Encyclopedia of Roses, in its second volume (1914), listed but one other rose disease than the familiar mildew, and that the other books and the rose catalogues either skipped the subject or glossed it over. Knowing how serious to rose-growers was at least one of these diseases—the all-too-familiar "black spot"—the editor then canvassed the various colleges and experiment stations, and the department of agriculture at Washington, only to learn that the rose had never had the attention given to carnations, cabbages or cut-worms, to apples or potatoes. Prof. H. H. Whetzel, the noted plant pathologist of Cornell University, wrote that none of his brethren had ever studied the diseases of what he termed "man's oldest and most widely cherished ornamental," and that therefore no means of control of some of these destructive rose diseases had been worked out.

The American Rose Society believes that this condition is a disgrace. It has therefore undertaken to organize a careful inquiry into rose diseases, which if supported by those interested ought to result in the proposal of methods of prevention and control as efficacious as those that, through similar study, have given fruit-growers courage to proceed profitably in defiance of brown rot and similar diseases. Much correspondence, following authorization at the recent Washington meeting of the society, has developed an exceptional opportunity to have the proper study begun and carried through at a small part of the expense—Cornell University sustaining most of the cost. Professor Whetzel states the situation thus:

"What is needed first is a rather careful study of the rose disease situation as represented in the gardens and houses of the members of the American Rose Society . . . a survey, in order that we may determine just what the chief diseases of the rose are. . . We propose that Mr. Massey, who has worked on florists' crops, and who is, in my opinion, the man for this job, should be employed by the American Rose Society under my direction, to spend three months of each year for two years in rose disease survey and investigation work, traveling as may be required; and that during the remaining nine months of each year his special line of investigation with us would be the diseases of roses. That is, if the American Rose Society can support him while in the field one-fourth of the time, the Cornell department of plant pathology will have him make rose disease investigations the chief line of his work as florist disease investigator for the remainder of two years.

"We would provide such ordinary laboratory apparatus as he may need, and also give him professional aid and counsel, together with our hearty interest in the American Rose Society's activities. This would give the society the services of a thoroughly trained investigator of florist crop diseases at a cost small in comparison with that required to finance the work independently.

"The cost would not exceed $1,000 each year upon a two-year arrangement, of which sum $500 the first year and $250 the second year would be for traveling and other special expenses. If the American Rose Society desires to avail itself of this opportunity, I must know of it before June 30, 1916, in order to properly arrange with Mr. Massey."

It is the belief of the executive committee of the American Rose Society that the opportunity thus presented is one which rose-growers generally will be willing to support by the special contribution necessary, information as to which must reach your president, as noted, before June 30. Let us act together to help put rose-growing in as safe a condition as is carnation-growing or apple-growing.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Bench Stock For Cut Blooms.

The best time to bench the commercial varieties of chrysanthemums is the early part of June, consequently there should be no delay in getting these plants into their permanent quarters. The first part of the work will be to get the houses and benches in good condition before bringing in the soil. A thorough cleaning and the making of the necessary repairs should always be considered a part of the work of changing the soil, preparatory to replanting. Should it be necessary to do any painting of the woodwork, now is the time to do it; if not the sides of the house ought to have a scrubbing to remove the slime and dirt. After the benches are emptied of the old soil, clean out any rubbish from underneath them; then give the insides a thorough washing out, after which apply a good heavy coat of lime-wash, making sure that all the cracks are well penetrated.

Good soil is just as essential for growing commercial chrysanthemums as any other greenhouse crop. While the chrysanthemum is a comparatively easy plant to grow when the conditions are right, at the same time there is not another plant that will show the effect of poor soil and adverse treatment to any greater degree. The same soil as advised for growing exhibition cut blooms should also be used for the commercial varieties, but the application of fertilizers, after the plants have become established, need not be carried to the extreme as with stock being grown for exhibition purposes.

A little judgment in arranging the planting of the different varieties in sections according to their height and season of blooming will aid a great deal in making the crop a success. The tall growers of the early varieties can be given space by themselves where there is ample head room for the proper development of their blooms. The dwarf growers can be planted where there is less head room and the tall growers will not over-shadow them. The same course should be followed with the mid-season and late varieties.

Do not over-crowd the plants—every grower aims to get as much as possible out of every foot of bench room, but it is poor policy to plant too closely. There should be ample air space around each plant for it to develop its growth properly; varieties with small foliage, like Ivory, grown to single stem, can be planted 5x7 inches apart, while varieties with growth similar to Pacific Supreme should be planted 6x8 or 7x9 inches apart, according to the location of the benches. As before stated plants on a center bench, where it is possible to work all around them, can be planted a little closer than on the side benches, but there is no hard set rules about this; it is a question for the judgment of each individual grower to decide. Most growers follow the plan of growing their commercial chrysanthemums to single stem, but there are some who find the method of training the plants to two or three stems the best and most profitable for their purpose, but when the plants are expected to develop two or three blooms they must be given more room and 9x10 inches apart is not any too much. Every chrysanthemum grower knows the value of getting the soil in a firm condition as soon as possible after planting; the plants make a much more sturdy growth in a firm soil than it is possible for them to do when the soil is light and spongy.

It is important that the work of supporting the plants be done as soon as the plants get to where they need supports. They will make better growth after being supported. The syringing and the necessary attention to the plants can also be better taken care of. It is a hard fight from start to finish to keep the chrysanthemum plants free from insects of every description, the young succulent growths being prey for all kinds of aphids as well as many other pests and the only way to keep them in check is by regular attention to the fumigating or spraying. During the summer months spraying with insecticides, according to the directions accompanying the material used, is the means followed by most growers. There are several good insecticides to be had, all of which are effective, and it is not so much the kind used as it is the regular attention to the work. Set an afternoon each week for spraying certain benches and then attend regularly to the work—there will then be very little damage by insects.

As soon as the early and midseason varieties have been planted, the pompon and singles should be benched; early propagated plants ought now to be nice branchy stock with three and four shoots, which is enough for a plant to carry. It will be necessary to pick out the side growths from these shoots and train and support them along if long stem sprays are wanted. When the object in view for the pompons is short sprays for bunches and basket work, smaller stock and plants grown more natural will do, but there is just as much or more work connected with growing a long stem pompon spray as there is in growing a fancy large bloom.

Manufacture of Agricultural Implements.

A summary of the manufactures of the agricultural implement industry as shown by United States department of commerce census of the output of 1914, issued June 21, 1916, shows the total products of the year were valued at $168,120,632 from returns received from 772 establishments. In the census of 1909, 854 establishments reported products to the value of $149,318,544. The value of the annual production therefore increased $18,802,888 or 12.6 per cent during the five year period. A summary of the increase or decrease in the value of the various implements manufactured during this period follows:

Implements of cultivation increased from $37,410,595 to $39,632,903; planters and seeders decreased from $12,306,207 to $12,268,156; harvesting implements increased from $35,250,840 to $40,561,472; seed separators increased from $11,588,986 to $13,986,184; other agricultural implements other than those referred to in the four main classes mentioned increased from $49,619,354 to $60,211,327. Receipts from repair work during the five year period decreased from $3,142,562 to $1,400,590.

OBITUARY.

William F. Kasting.

The announcement of the death of William F. Kasting, president of the Wm. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and postmaster of that city, which occurred at St. Louis, Mo., Thursday, June 15, following an attack of heart trouble, will be received with the keenest regret by the trade from coast to coast. Mr. Kasting was attending the democratic convention and also the meeting of the National Postmasters' Association, of which he was chairman of the executive committee. For eight years he had been a sufferer from diabetes and high blood pressure, according to his family physician. Since Wednesday Mr. Kasting had not been feeling well, so he confided to friends. An hour before his death he told a friend, who called at his room, that he felt improved and would attend the democratic convention. Dr. Robert E. Keaney, house doctor at the Maryland, had been treating Mr. Kasting since his arrival Monday. Mr. Kasting's name was to have been presented to the democratic convention as elector from the forty-first New York district. One of Mr. Kasting's last acts was the sending of flowers to all Buffalo women at the postmasters' convention. The convention adjourned in the afternoon out of respect to him. Resolutions of regret were at once adopted by the executive committee. A memorial hour will be set aside at the next convention in Washington.

William F. Kasting was born in Saxenhausen, Waldeck, Germany, son of John Kasting, a building contractor. His father died when the deceased was five years old, and after attending the school in his native village, he came to America when 14 years old and made his home with a sister in Buffalo. It was here that the florist trade first claimed his attention and became his life work, his first employment being with John Miller, who had the flower stand in the Niagara hotel. It can truly be said he was a self-made man. Dependent upon himself, he realized that before he could achieve anything, he must master the English language, and this he accomplished by attending night school. He developed peculiar aptitude in the florist business, and after two years went to St. Louis, Chicago, Cleveland and Erie, Pa. In each of these cities he acquired much valuable experience. Later he returned to Buffalo and took a position with D. B. Long, the first wholesale florist in that part of the country, and it was in this establishment that he mastered the important details of the wholesale trade. So great were his enterprise and skill that in 1896 he bought his employer's business. Five years later the business was moved to 383-387 Ellicott street, the present home of the concern. Later greenhouse branches were established at Erie, Pa., and Akron, N. Y.

Mr. Kasting was strongly identified with the practical work of many trade associations. He was one of the organizers of the Buffalo Florists' Club and in connection with that body promoted many successful exhibitions in his adopted city. He was a former vice-president of the national rose and carnation societies. In 1905 he was elected president of the Society of American Florists, having previously served as vice-president and in 1909 was chosen for the important office of treasurer. He was deeply interested in the politics of his state and city and in 1914 President Wilson appointed him postmaster of Buffalo. Last year, representing the New York Federation of Florists' Clubs, he was instrumental in securing a stated appropriation of $60,000 for ranges of floricultural and vegetable greenhouses, to be established at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., for the use of students in those lines. He served several terms as park commissioner of Buffalo.

The remains had been escorted by friends from St. Louis to Buffalo and the funeral services held at the family residence gave ample testimony of the high esteem in which Mr. Kasting was held by all classes of the community in which he was best known. The residence and special tents provided for the occasion were wholly inadequate to accommodate the thousands who thronged the scene to offer a last tribute of respect to their beloved friend, and while the streets for many blocks were lined with autos, the sidewalks and lawns were packed with people. The public buildings carried their flags at half mast and everywhere throughout the city the departed merchant and representative of the government was the topic of the day, the stories of his political struggles freely interwoven with those of his benevolence and thoughtfulness for others. The Masonic bodies and the Rev. C. G. Haas, of St. Paul's Evangelical church, carried out the services and the numerous societies in which Mr. Kasting held membership were well represented in the attendance. The postoffice was represented by various officials and about 300 letter carriers in uniform. Music was rendered by the Orpheus Singing Society, of which Mr. Kasting was a prominent member. The active pallbearers were W. J. Palmer, S. A. Anderson, Charles Schoenhut, J. B. Wiese, Felix Alberts, Charles T. Guenther, Joseph Sangster and W. A. Adams. The honorary pallbearers represented the city's leading business men, together with many florist friends from far and near, the out-of-town trade being represented by Arnold Ringier, George Asmus, W. J. Keimel and M. Barker, Chicago; George M. Geraghty and Fred Miller, Toronto, Ont.; F. Brown and H. Bate, Cleveland, O.; Chas. H. Vick, George B. Hart, N. Keller, F. Schlegel and George Boucher, of Rochester, N. Y.; Dr. Earl Bates and W. F. Bultman, Syracuse, N. Y.; Steven Green, Philadelphia, Pa. The beautiful floral tokens filled five auto trucks and represented the trade of all important cities throughout the United States and Canada.

In 1901 Mr. Kasting married Miss Laura La Tour, daughter of Wm. La Tour. Mrs. Kasting died about four years ago. Three children survive, Laura Louise, John Roland and William L., the eldest, who is about 14 years of age, also a sister, Mrs. Mary Bixon.

FROM H. B. BEATTY, OIL CITY, PA.

"I am greatly shocked by the news of the death of William F. Kasting. I numbered him among my loyal friends and greatly admired him for his sterling qualities and for his devotion to the S. A. F. and the city of Buffalo. The society loses one of its most active and earnest officers and workers and the city a devoted and loyal citizen. To his sorrowing family and friends I send my heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement."

FROM WALTER F. SHERIDAN, NEW YORK.

"I feel a deep sense of personal loss in the passing away of William F. Kasting, whom I had known for many years. He died while enjoying the fruits of successful endeavor. A good friend and a genial personality is gone!"

FROM A. J. GUTTMAN, NEW YORK.

"It was my pleasure to have known William F. Kasting since the S. A. F. convention held during the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo in 1901. There I first became attracted to this robust, sound principled builder. He was of a type that belongs to the new school which adopts for its motive and guide the principle—'If I help to make another prosperous, I will also be prosperous' rather than the principle so prevalent, 'If I can make another man poor, I will make myself rich.' In these times, when strong men—real builders—are none too plentiful in our midst and greatly needed, his passing away is a great loss to his family, to horticulture and to the country."

FROM FRANK H. TRAENDLY, NEW YORK.

"It seems hard for me to realize that our friend, William F. Kasting, (whom I have known for more than 20 years) has passed away. I have never known a more lovable man. His whole ambition seemed to center in what he could do for others. Those of us who were privileged to work with him for the interest of the Society of American Florists knew the sacrifices he made of his time from his own business, so that the national society would have the benefit of his experience. This is only one instance of the sacrifices he made, as his time was given to a great many other home organizations. But to know him in his home life is where he appealed to us most; and I know that it was with great pleasure that Mrs. Traendly and myself, and a pleasure shared by all of the members of the S. A. F. looked forward to meeting him and Mrs. Kasting at our conventions, and in his death the florists of this country will lose one of the best workers—and all of us, a very dear friend."

FROM JAMES M'HUTCHISON, NEW YORK.

"William F. Kasting is dead—'Billy' Kasting as his friends knew him—and his hearty open-face manner made it natural for one to call him by his first name. The grim reaper overtakes all of us in time, but Kasting's time came too soon; only 46 years of age but vigorous and active, one would think that many years of usefulness were ahead of him. Those who had business relations with him knew him as an aggressive, straightforward man, bluff and blunt sometimes, a fighter often, but always square and forcible by nature, he was quick to see both sides of any case. His rugged honesty made him an ideal S. A. F. treasurer. I would as soon hand over trust funds to him as to a bank—and his word was as good as his bond. We will miss him at many organization gatherings. He was a man's man—always ready with a vigorous handshake and a broad smile."

FROM HARRY A. BUNYARD, NEW YORK.

"I have known Wm. F. Kasting for nearly 30 years—a friend of everybody and beloved by all. His death is a tremendous loss to the S. A. F. and the horticultural world. He was a national figure in all phases of life and destined for greater things. Vale."

FROM JOHN B. NUGENT, NEW YORK.

"If there ever was a man in the florist business, it was William F. Kasting."

Julian Duquette.

Julian Duquette, for several years superintendent of the floricultural department of the state fair at Syracuse, N. Y., and for more than 20 years engaged in the florist business at Albion, N. Y., died at his home June 18, aged 72 years. He has been in failing health for some time, and while eating supper complained to the nurse that he was suddenly stricken blind, and expired a few minutes later. The deceased was born in Clarkson, N. Y., and when a young man went to Lockport, where he resided for about 20 years, and at the end of that period removed to Albion to enter the florist business on the death of his father. He was recognized throughout the state as an expert in his line. Mr. Duquette was a veteran of the civil war, a member of the G. A. R. and the Masonic and Odd Fellow fraternities. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Marguerite Duquette. The funeral was held from his late residence, June 19, and was largely attended.

Mrs. Katherine Stiefel.

Mrs. Katherine Stiefel, for the past 35 years in the retail business at 1932 Third avenue, New York, died June 16 at the residence of her niece, Mrs. Josephine Mossel, aged 58 years. Her funeral was held at the residence of Mrs. Mossel, June 18. Mrs. Stiefel's husband, who was an accomplished musician as well as a florist, was associated with her in the business until his death, four years ago. A leading wholesaler who had known Mrs. Stiefel for many years, recently stated: "She is one of the finest women that ever lived." She left no children, but another niece, Mrs. Granano, has been in charge of the business for some time, and will continue it.

OMAHA, NEB.—J. J. Hess, who has just been appointed treasurer of the Society of American Florists, expects to leave for Wisconsin on a fishing trip before July 1.

GREAT BEND, KANS. — In the hail storm of May 28 Stoke & Stoke lost 4,000 square feet of glass and the stock was badly damaged; total loss nearly $1,000, fully covered by insurance in the Florists' Hail Association.

THE two most striking novelties at the recent Chelsea exhibition of the Royal Horticultural Society were Wm. Paul's Scarlet Pillar rose and Jackman's Crimson King clematis.

Personal.

Commodore John Westcott, of Philadelphia, Pa., will open the clubhouse at Waretown, N. J., June 23, for the season.

James J. Karins, the well-known representative of H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia Pa., is at the German hospital, that city, for an operation.

Eugene Dailedouze and wife, of Brooklyn, N. Y., stopped off at Chicago a short time June 15, enroute to Alaska, going as far north as Cordova in the copper mining region, and returning by way of Seattle to reach home about August 1.

Society of American Florists.

President Daniel MacRorie directs me to announce that he has appointed J. J. Hess, of Omaha, Neb., to serve as treasurer of the society to fill out the unexpired term of the late Wm. F. Kasting.

HOUSTON CONVENTION ITINERARY.

At this early date great interest is being shown in the thirty-second annual convention and trade exhibition to be held in Houston, Tex., August 15-17. It would appear that there will be a very creditable attendance from the east. Rates and particulars as to the different routes may be obtained by application to the secretary.

One favorable route will be by Southern Pacific Company, via steamer to New Orleans, train to Houston, then all rail returning. The best obtainable rate from New York to Houston by this route would be $83.00. This will include berth and meals on steamer to New Orleans and first class rail transportation beyond, returning from Houston via St. Louis and New York Central lines. Steamers sail semi-weekly from pier, 48 North River, foot of West Eleventh street, New York, every Wednesday and Saturday at 12 o'clock noon and are due in New Orleans the following Monday and Thursday. Connections can here be made for Houston, leaving on the Sunset Limited leaving New Orleans at 11 a. m., which will arrive at Houston at 10 p. m. the same night. This will allow of a beautiful ride through the Louisiana sugar and cotton belt, which is a very scenic route. If the party desires to stop over at New Orleans for a day or so, connections could be made with train No. 9 leaving at 11:30 p. m., due in Houston next morning at 11:30. Sleeper rates between New Orleans and Houston are $2.00. Trip if made from New Orleans by daylight could be made in large commodious coach unless party preferred to use parlor cars.

S. S. Momus will leave New York August 9, arriving at New Orleans Monday, August, 14, in the morning; by taking rail service there party would arrive at Houston 10 p. m. same night. Any of our members desiring to leave earlier may take the S. S. Creole leaving New York August 5, and arriving New Orleans August 10. If arrangements for the trip are made promptly we will plan so that the delegates and visitors will have "the time of their lives." Our southern brethren are making every effort to have this convention one of the most successful in the history of the society not only from a business standpoint, but also from the great amount of pleasure and valuable information derived from our visit to the south. Some of the leading firms of the country, alert to the opportunity of the southern market, have made early bookings for large blocks of space in the trade exhibit. Among them we find John A. Evans Co., M. Rice Co., A. L. Randall Co., Burlington Willow Ware Works, J. A. Peterson & Sons, H. C. Doescher and the Lord & Burnham Co. Intending exhibitors should not delay in securing space.

MOTHERS' DAY FUND.

Replies are coming in freely to the appeal sent out by the secretary for contributions to the testimonial or fund to be presented to Miss Anna Jarvis, founder of Mothers' day. The list of donors will be published shortly. Those desiring their names included in this list should make remittance now.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Public notice is hereby given that as no objection has been filed, the following registration becomes complete: Freesia Splendida by Rudolph Fischer, San Gabriel, Calif.

June 16, 1916. JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

British Imports Amendment Sought.

Following the order in council which was signed by the king May 10, prohibiting the importation into the United Kingdom of bulbs and plants, as announced in our issue of June 3, page 1040, the Horticultural Trades association of Great Britain and Ireland at a special general meeting, May 24, adopted a resolution to be presented to the board of trade asking for an amendment of the order favorable to the importation of Japanese bulbs. The board of trade is also asked to include cut flowers in the order in council. The order applies to importations from the Channel Islands and it is believed that Guernsey will comply with the government's demand, in which case bulbs from that island will probably be allowed to come in.

New Plants.

One of the finest things in roses I saw at the Washington garden was the hybrid rugosa, Nova Zembla. For garden purposes it will make a valuable addition. Rose Hugonis is a beautiful new species, with single yellow flowers. This should be fine for garden embellishment.

The most striking new shrub is Le-moine's Philadelphus Bouquet Blanc. It would be worth a trip to Richmond to see our old imported plants at present time in full bloom. It measures up to the best shrubs in cultivation.

Gude's Sport of Radiance is darker than the rose which is being disseminated under that name. E. G. HILL.

Florist Victimized.

A New York lawyer, known to the Bowery as "J. b. Gee", was arrested recently on a charge of appropriating $18,000 of a client's money. Frederick Bauer, the well known florist of Middle Village, L. I., complained that he had given that sum to the lawyer to invest in government and New York Central and Pennsylvania railroad bonds at the market price, but that the bonds never had been forthcoming. The lawyer, who has rooms at the Bowery branch of the Y. M. C. A., was locked up at the First Branch detective bureau.

Pot Makers' Credit Association.

A brand new credit association was organized at Atlantic City, N. J., June 17, with the makers of 90 per cent of the pots used in this country in attendance. The vital subject of credit was the drawing card and the meeting resulted in the new credit association being formed, to be known as the Pot Makers' Credit Association. P. M. READ.

BRITISH nurserymen and plantsmen are vigorously agitating increased prices for their stock, stating that everything needed in connection with their business has advanced and will go higher. One writer on the matter says, "Better quietly withdraw and sell out, and put all your push and energy into the seed trade, as this department is having a glorious time, like the farmers."

STORMS FAIL TO STOP BUSINESS.

We have just passed through a week or so of unusual activity from the elements. The Canadian river is about a mile wide within the city limits, and some of the wind storms have played havoc with shade and fruit trees. The damage to the trees, however, is not so severe as was experienced last year in the month of June. Business does not seem to have been affected in any way by these untoward weather conditions, for the florists say that trade is exceedingly good; better than usual for the last half of June. Outdoor flowers are coming in abundantly; stock being cut at this time, includes gladioli, sweet peas, dahlias, candy-tufts, coreopsis, and from Arkansas heavy supplies of Magnolia grandiflora are being received. Storemen are complaining about the carnations they are getting from the Northern markets and growers; for two weeks, they aver, every carnation received has been sleepy on its arrival.

Carnations in the field are progressing unusually well. Furrow & Co. at their Guthrie establishment have the finest lot this year they ever had.

Wheeler Park is under from four to eight feet of water and all the bedding is ruined for the time being.

S. S. B.

Boston.

DEMAND VERY SATISFACTORY.

Business was very good during the past week, the large wedding orders and various graduations and conventions which have taken place creating a good demand for flowers, far better, in fact, than usual for the season. Roses sold very well, there being a good supply and prices moderately good; from $2 up to $16 per 100 was received for them. The wet weather damaged the crop of lily of the valley and made it very scarce just when the call was at its height, therefore making a high price. Carnations were also in demand, from $2 to $3 per 100 being the price on average grades. On Monday, June 19, the demand for dark red carnations was especially good on account of the Harvard class day, which took place June 20. Some extra fine blooms sold for $6 per 100. Peonies are coming in larger quantities, Festiva Maxima being the most popular variety, 8 cents being the average price. Sweet peas are quite scarce and of poor quality and do not form a large factor of the business. Gladioli are coming in larger quantities and good spikes sell fairly well at 8 cents to 12½ cents. All in all the business for the week has been very satisfactory from all sides, but it is expected that the trade will from now on decrease to its usual summer volume.

NOTES.

The King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., have contracted to build a new range of greenhouses for Walter B. Hunnewell at Wellesley. This is one of the largest contracts for private work in this vicinity for some time and is expected this will be the most model and complete private range of glass in New England.

Thomas Cox, of Dorchester, who was one of this city's pioneer growers and has always been well known among the trade, has leased his establishment to Thomas Powers, who has been in Mr. Cox's employ for the past 15 years. Mr. Cox will retain his dwelling house and retire from active business.

Henry and Charles Robinson and Wm. Penn spent an enjoyable week end at Geo. Sutherland's place at Athol. The object of the trip was trout fishing, but not much has been said about the fish.

Robert Montgomery, Jr., of the Thos. J. Grey Co., had a narrow escape from injury when his car was run into at York Beach, Me.

STOCK PLENTIFUL; REASONABLY PRICED.

Roses are at present the most staple feature of florists' stocks, the chief varieties being Sunburst, Ophelia, Maryland and Russell. They are very fine and in good supply. Prices range from $1.50 to $2 a dozen for the usual run, but with some fancy blooms selling at $3. With carnations it is a sort of mid-season, the main crop having become exhausted, leaving for the present only small blooms. The price of 75 cents shows a tendency to break under this condition, as demand has slackened up. Sweet peas bring 50 cents a bunch. Garden flowers bought at the local flower market and worked up into basket effects have been a profitable feature of trade. The June wedding season was quite up to expectations, particularly in the preliminary entertainment of brides. Colonial bouquets were a large favorite in this kind of trade. Florists who give attention to bedding have only one complaint, and that is that they were sold out before the season was over.

The Art Floral Company is now in its new location, 57 East Gay street, in the same neighborhood with their old quarters in the Keith's Theatre building. Mostly new fixtures were installed. They are finished in a rich shade of gray. The shop is very attractive and up-to-date in appearance. S. Graff, the manager, is well pleased with the manner in which his trade is following him to the new home.

J.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Extensive preparations are being made by the craft of this city for the entertainment of all florists and their friends who will stop here en route to the S. A. F. convention at Houston, Tex., August 15-17.

SKANEATELES, N. Y.—Archie Patrick has purchased the business of the late J. G. White, which has been conducted by his widow since his death. The new proprietor has been for many years connected with his father, A. Patrick, veteran florist of Auburn, N. Y.

Lancaster County Florists' Club.

At the June meeting, which was attended by 20 members of the club, the number being later augmented by the appearance of several others, including our faithful friend, Dennis Connor, enroute to New York, the feature of the evening was a peony symposium, the essayist being B. F. Barr, of Wyomissing, Pa., whose paper was both encyclopedic and cultural. It was well received, and in the discussion which followed, it was brought out that the flowering period could be advanced by using a diluted solution of nitrate of soda every three or four days. The flowers can be held in cold storage by cutting them when only partially open and putting them into water of a temperature of about 45 degrees for about 24 hours, then packing them in boxes or better in jars of wet moss with the heads wrapped in tissue paper and then placed in a temperature of 30 to 35 degrees. In this way it is claimed they can be held for 10 to 14 days. It was also brought out that the peony could not be expected to give full results until about three years after it had been planted. The essayist claimed that Gen. Washington was the nearest to red in existence today. The exhibition table contained a fair display staged by him among them being the following varieties: Albatre, Gen. Washington, Parnard, Pallissy, Asa Gray, Mme. Baquet, Couronne D'Or, Wilhelmina, Festiva Maxima, Eugene Verdier, Princess Beatrice, Marie Lemoine and Souvenir de l'Exposition Universelle. M. Barr was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for his excellent paper.

The flower show committee has been increased and now stands as follows: Harry K. Rohrer, chairman; M. J. Brinton, A. F. Strickler, Elmer Weaver, Lemon Landis, David Rose, Rudolph Nagel and B. F. Barr. The date fixed by the former committee was November 9-11, but the new committee thought this time too close to presidential election and also that it was barely possible that there might be a snow storm that week. The picnic committee reported progress, but no date has been fixed. B. F. Barr's meadow will be the place and the attendance will be limited to florists and their friends. Out-of-town florists will be welcome to attend and can get full information by applying to the secretary, Elmer Weaver, Ronks, Pa. The programme committee made no report for the July meeting, assuming that the picnic would take the place of the regular meeting and suggested that the August meeting be an aster meeting at the establishment of Elmer and Charles Weaver, the largest growers of this flower in this vicinity.

There is a possibility of the club taking up the planting of a rose garden in one of the local parks. The appeal for contributions to the Miss Anna Jarvis fund was carried over for a voluntary contribution from the members of the club at the picnic and the meeting at Weavers' and it is hoped that the club will be able to turn over a substantial sum.

TRADE CONTINUES GOOD.

Trade continues good and while there is a large supply of stock reaching the market it is moving nicely at fair prices and there is no great surplus except in one or two items to speak of. Lily of the valley is still in brisk demand and in such short supply that several of the dealers have advanced the price on their best grade to $6.00 per 100. Orchids are scarce as ever and command high prices. American Beauty roses in the longer grades are having a good call, but there is very little stock obtainable. Short stemmed American Beauty roses are in good supply but clean up well right along at satisfactory prices. Roses in general are in good supply, especially Ophelia, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Sunburst, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Killarney, Killarney Brilliant and White Killarney. Richmond, Rhea Reid, Hoosier Beauty, Milady and Hadley are selling surprisingly well and the same holds good for My Maryland, of which the supply is rather limited. Carnations are plentiful and notwithstanding the fact that they are showing the effects of the warm weather there is a large supply of good stock available. Peonies are to be had in quantity and some very fancy stock in all the seasonable varieties is now obtainable. Gladioli are seen at several of the stores and at times have a fairly good call. Lilies and callas are in fair supply and the same holds true for sweet peas, which clean up quickly at good prices, especially in the better grades. Some exceptionally fine feverfew is offered and is finding a ready market. Candytuft, daisies, cornflowers, statice, larkspurs, calendulas, pansies, Double White narcissi and other miscellaneous stock is included in the shipments and are having their usual call.

Green goods of all kinds are plentiful and some unusually good ferns, both from Wisconsin and Michigan, are now reaching the market.

EXPRESS STRIKE SETTLED.

The expressmen's strike is not settled entirely, notwithstanding the rumors that some of the men have gone back to work. A meeting was held Sunday, June 18, when about 1,000 of the 9,000 strikers decided to continue the strike. The sentiment had been in favor of ending the trouble up to within a few hours of the meeting when they suddenly changed their mind. The special service inaugurated by the trade will be continued until the express companies will be able to handle the situation in a manner satisfactory to all the members. While the strike is not exactly over, it appears as if it will be definitely settled in a short time, at least everyone hopes so. Later.—The strike was settled late Wednesday afternoon, June 21.

NOTES.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is distributing several carloads of sphagnum moss this week and are offering 12 bales for $10 as a special offer. Roland Poehlmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Poehlmann, graduated from the Western Military Academy of Alton last week. Mrs. Poehlmann and daughter, Virginia, and son, Earl, went down to attend the graduation exercises. Adolph Poehlmann has invested in a new Winton Six and Poehlmann Bros. Co. have added a Ford to use about the greenhouses.

Peter Reinberg is cutting a good supply of My Maryland roses, which are selling unusually well and clean up almost as quickly as the shipments reach the store. Herbert Hansen will leave on his vacation next week, which will be spent at Kansas City, Mo., and it is rumored that he will be married while he is away. No one knows who the lucky young lady is, unless it is Miss Orm, the celebrated bunco player.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are handling a fine supply of roses from the Pyfer & Olsem range at Wilmette, which includes very choice Killarney Brilliant. Peter Olsem is making arrangements to get things in shape at the Peter Nepper greenhouses which Pyfer & Olsem have leased and take possession July 1. The entire output, which will consist principally of carnations, will be handled exclusively by A. T. Pyfer & Co.

E. F. Kurowski, of the John C. Moninger Co., and wife, will leave July 1 with the German Club of Chicago, of which he is a member, for a four-day lake cruise on the specially chartered steamer, South American. Entertainment will be provided enroute and stops will be made at all important places on the east and west shores of Lake Michigan.

Robt. Blake, with Mrs. J. B. Freeman, Toledo, O., was a visitor at Zech & Mann's establishment this week, and took in the auto races at Speedway Park with Allie Zech, Sunday, June 18. His mission here was to buy stock for a large wedding decoration booked for June 28.

The George Wittbold Co. never had such a busy June business in the retail department as this year, and reports the sales considerably ahead of 1915. E. Doetsch, one of the designers in Wittbold's employ, made 80 corsage bouquets of sweet peas in three hours.

C. Claussen, with A. P. Bonvallet, sent a shipment of Myrtle gladioli to the E. C. Amling Co., from Wichert, by parcel post, June 17, which was his first cut of the season.

Greenebaum Sons' Bank & Trust Company report a loan of $90,000, in the form of a bond issue at 6 per cent, for a period of two to seven years, in favor of Joseph Trinz, secured by the West End Building, located at the southeast corner of Cicero and West End avenue. The property consists of a three-story brick building containing eight stores and twelve flats, in addition to a theatre, rental per annum being $18,000. THE AMERICAN FLORIST published the first report regarding the West End Building several months ago.

The funeral of the late Nicholas Kruchten, Jr., was held from the home of his parents at 5727 North Western avenue, Friday, June 16, at 2:30 p. m. and was largely attended. The floral offerings from the trade were many and beautiful and it took three large automobiles to convey them from the home to Graceland cemetery, where the remains were laid to rest.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are receiving a large quantity of choice peonies from several different sources, including fancy stock from the Des Plaines Floral Co.'s farm of which Harry Blewitt and John Prickett are proprietors. Miss Paradise, the popular cashier at their house, will spend her vacation at Denver, Colo., this year, leaving early next month.

Henry Wehrmann, Maywood, and Max Awizzus, with the E. C. Amling Co., had a delightful time fishing at Lake Zurich, June 18, when they succeeded in making a nice catch. A. C. Kohlbrand took a run down to Crown Point, Ind., June 17, to help Hans Yepsen catch a few of the finny tribe in the Kankakee river.

Mention the American Florist when writing

John Stuppy, with the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., was here several days last week, during which time he visited many of the leading greenhouse establishments in this vicinity. He left for New York, Monday, June 19, and expects to stop off here a couple of weeks on his way back home.

Dan Simonds, of the Ogden Floral Co., 1917 West Harrison street, will leave next week for Ojibwa Lodge, on French Lake, in the Flambeau reservation, northern Wisconsin, where the fishing is always good.

A. I. Simmons, 242 West Sixty-third street, recently appointed depot quartermaster of the commissary department of the Illinois National Guard, expects to leave with the state troops for Mexico this week.

Percy Jones is enjoying a fine shipping trade and is having a heavy call for fancy candytuft, which they are receiving in large quantities. This firm is strong on green goods of all kinds, particularly ferns.

Bassett & Washburn report a brisk demand for Ophelia roses, which they are cutting in large supply and which clean up early each day notwithstanding the large quantity of other stock offered.

Mrs. Carl Meier and daughter, Mrs. O. A. Schroeder, of Green Bay, Wis., visited friends here this week, returning home June 20 with Mr. Meier in his automobile, who joined them the day previous.

Miss Marie Risch, nineteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Risch, Evanston, graduated last week from the Academy of Our Lady at Longwood.

Erne & Klingel report a good demand for local grown peonies which they are handling in quantity in all the best seasonable varieties.

The McNeff-Swenson Co., making a specialty of designing and printing florists' circulars, is in financial difficulties.

George Pandell of Fort Wayne, Ind., was here on business this week. He reports trade as good with no let-up in sight.

E. H. Klein, secretary of the J. F. Amman Co., Edwardsville, and wife, visited friends here this week.

Adam Zender and wife will leave shortly to take in the sights at Yellowstone Park.

The regular meeting of this association will be held at the store of Holm & Olson, 24 West Fifth street, St. Paul, Minn., Thursday evening, June 22, at 8:00 p. m. sharp. The program contains the following:

Stereopticon views of the Minneapolis park system and lecture on same by Theo. Wirth, superintendent of parks. "Outdoor Rose Culture", by Ernest Meyer, and a general discussion by others. Committee on questions, A. Lauritzen, C. N. Rudlinger and Max Kaiser.

Bring your friends or anyone connected with the trade. Every florist, nurseryman or gardener, whether a member or not, is cordially invited. Refreshments will be served after the meeting. GOOD DEMAND FOR COMMENCEMENT.

Trade in general showed increased activity during the past week; this together with the cool weather which prevailed and kept the supply in check made it possible to report satisfactory results. Local peonies are in and prices vary, depending on the quality and the quantity taken. The week opened with a brisk demand for flowers for commencements.

NOTES.

The employees of the Holton & Hunkel Co., will be the guests of the firm. Sunday, June 25, at Brown Deer. For excitement in the line of pleasure, eating and drinking this event is always eagerly looked forward to long before it is due. This firm reports fine business.

Rain once every 24 hours is the order of weather during the past week and these rather unfavorable conditions are responsible for a great quantity of old bedding stock that will find "hard going" from now on.

Most of the downtown florists had their share of the orders for the commencement exercises at Downer college, calling for the best grade of stock as a rule.

Gust. Fusch, of the Gust. Rusch Co., reports a rushing (no pun) business, but took time to order a new Reo which is due to arrive in a few days.

The local trade was greatly shocked to hear of the untimely and sudden death of William F. Kasting at St. Louis, June 15.

Nic Zweifel and family have taken a cottage at Cedar lake for the month of June—"fish stories" later.

Gust. Pohl is cutting exceptionally fine sweet peas in large quantities these days.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports shipping trade as very brisk.

MID-SUMMER LULL ARRIVES.

The weather is getting warm again after several days of delightful coolness and the regular mid-summer lull appears at hand, and the florists' windows seem to put on that depressing appearance. There are still a number of June weddings to come and the call for funeral orders is ever with us and there is sufficient stock to take care of that much trade. Roses continue fair what there are of them and lilies continue to arrive. In addition there is an immense supply of summer flowers such as candytuft and alyssum. Gladioli are also plentiful and fill in nicely. Hydrangea plants are also seen in numbers and the sweet pea supply is abundant.

To stimulate the culture of flowers, and also vegetables, the city beautiful organization has offered prizes for the best displays shown three times during the summer, viz.: June 15, July 15 and August 15. The first showing has just been made, and in both interest displayed and the quality of the exhibits, exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine. Every variety of flower from daisy to lily and in vegetables from onion to well grown cabbage, all raised in the back yards of the city were in evidence. The attendance was large and the visitors were loud in their praise of the splendid work already accomplished in this movement. Even better results are expected from the two exhibitions to be made later. After the displays are judged the flowers and vegetables are sent to charitable institutions.

M. C. D.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Owing to the very late season the June show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society has been postponed until June 23. Entries should be made on blanks provided and sent to Ernest K. Thomas, secretary, Kingston, R. I., two days before the exhibition.

PREPAREDNESS.

WE are prepared to take care of your orders for Peonies, Roses, Gladioli, Carnations, Lilies, Callas, Snapdragons, Sweet Peas, Greens, Etc., for Weddings and School Closings. You will get satisfaction every time if you place your orders with HEAVY OVERSUPPLY IN ALL LINES.

"June, the month of roses" — and other flowers is with us, and the stock in nearly every seasonable variety and grade is most plentiful. America and Halley gladioli, delphiniums, snapdragons, columbines, daisies, peonies, feverfews and Easter lilies are all seen and are only a small part of the offerings. Carnations and roses are very plentiful and prices are low, lower in fact than any previous June we can remember. Large numbers are sold, however, and the total receipts will average about the same as last year. Sweet peas, swainsonas, etc., are plentiful and the call is good. The street fakirs are seen on all downtown corners, and the carnivals and flower games use large quantities of stock in open roses and carnations. Some very good Rhea Reid roses are arriving and they were much in demand during the past week for commencements. Red peonies also had a good call for the same purpose. One retailer received a small shipment of water lilies this week.

NOTES.

Peonies grown at Warrensville and other city farms were given away at the municipal markets this week, the fact being advertised in the local papers. The local florists have a "kick coming," and members of the florists' club are requested to register it at the next meeting. This is an important matter.

The annual outing of the florists' club is scheduled for the near future. A list of the events and date will be announced in these columns later.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

June weddings have been the feature of the trade during the past week with commencement orders a close second. The demand for funeral designs has also been good. Outdoor stock is arriving in good supply and that of the greenhouse varieties is plentiful, especially roses. The quality of all stock is good, and a splendid demand holds prices firm.

NOTES.

Mrs. Aaron Shive and Miss Mildred Flick of the Flick Floral Co. arranged a very elaborate wedding decoration at Decatur June 17. The flowers for the bride and her attendants were also supplied by this firm.

Miss Helen Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., visited her mother in this city last week, and left June 22 for an extended western trip with California her objective point.

BUSINESS HOLDS UP WELL.

With the approach of the hot season the trade has been anticipating a slump in business, but no falling off is noticeable as yet. The market is well supplied with almost every variety of seasonable stock, unless it might be greenhouse carnations. Gladioli are plentiful and asters are becoming more common, but the quality is not as good as will doubtless appear later. Dahlias are arriving and some new sorts are seen in this favorite flower. Lily of the valley is scarce. Two or three "would be" florists have closed up shop recently, proving that "the survival of the fittest" applies to the florist business the same as other lines.

NOTES.

A unique feature of the recent preparedness parade was the company of 450 Greeks, who were headed by a large flag made entirely of flowers. This was made and donated by D. Stathatoos, proprietor of the Broadway Florist. It was five feet long and four feet wide. The stripes consisted of red and white carnations and the stars of small white roses set in a background of blue corn flowers. The flag was bordered by a profusion of Mexican ivy. At the top of the flag rested a gilded bald eagle, from which hung huge streamers of red, white and blue ribbon. The flag was valued at $50.

At Darling's Flower Shop some splendid baskets, arranged for weddings and commencements were seen, dahlias and sweet peas being much in evidence. A unique feature handled here is boxes of candies trimmed with flowers. Fine northern grown roses and carnations also attracted attention.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., reports business good in all departments, and made a specialty during the week of arranged baskets for luncheons. The force at this store were the recipients of some mammoth trout, presented by Chas. Gutting, the popular nurseryman.

A predominant feature at the store of Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Golden-son was the rose display. Of the varieties most conspicuous were Mrs. John Laing, Killarney, Ulrich Brunner and Prima Donna.

The Redondo Floral Co. is much gratified with business, which shows improvement over former years. Shower bouquets are a feature here, and they are well supplied with excellent stock.

Seki Bros. & Co. report plenty of good stock and satisfactory business. A variety of well arranged baskets were noted at this establishment.

Paul J. Howard, horticulturist, is very busy these days, many new homes of the better class being erected in the vicinity of this city.

S. Murata & Co. had thousands of gladioli in for shipment in addition to asters and dahlias. They report a shortage of good carnations.

J. W. Wolters is showing some fine specimen branches of Eucalyptus ficifolia, also parkinsonia in flower. He reports good business. G. H. H.

Washington, D. C.

BUSINESS TAKES A VACATION.

Business took a drop during the past week. Stock is plentiful and the quality is good for this time of the year. Roses of all kinds can be had at prices varying from $1 to $8 per 100, the latter prices for stock of the finest quality. Carnations are holding up fine as are sweet peas. Some good peonies are still to be seen. Lily of the valley and orchids are inclined to be scarce. Some excellent gladioli find a ready sale and the prices are moderate. All the stores are now arranging their windows with summer effects and miniature ponds, fountains and rockeries are much in evidence.

NOTES.

L. Hoover, after looking over his sales for the year, is more than satisfied with the result. There was an increase of 30 per cent over the preceding year.

Z. D. Blackstone is now spending all of his spare time on his farm. Here he always takes his employees for a little vacation.

W. W. Kimmell, Jr., met with a painful accident while on an excursion recently, breaking his shoulder in two places. G. C. D.

WEDDING DEMAND LIFE OF TRADE.

Trade has slackened somewhat although there is a good demand for wedding flowers. The call for funeral work has fallen off. Outdoor planting is about over for this season. Cut stock is plentiful and is moving at practically buyers' prices. Some fine roses are seen and but few more than are required. Carnations are arriving in large numbers and sell at low figures, some of the department stores making leaders of them as low as one cent each. Sweet peas are now coming in and the growers look forward to a fine crop. Outside stock is playing a good part.

NOTES.

T. J. Noll & Co. are handling good stock in all lines and it cleans up well each day. The Colorado grown carnations seen at this establishment are excellent. This firm will shortly enlarge its establishment to give them a larger show room.

Ed. Ellsworth, of The Rosery, is cutting some fine sweet peas of his Independence range. He has his chrysanthemums all planted and is planning to spend a good part of his spare time this summer at Forest lake.

At the range of the Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. things are in tip top shape. Chrysanthemums are making a splendid start. Business at the store is reported very good. Some fine pot hydrangeas are a feature here.

A. Mohr is starting another house. He has 4,000 aster plants in the field and will plant his chrysanthemums next week. He will handle 3,000 begonias and about 500 cyclamens this year.

H. Kusik & Co. are handling fine roses, lilies and carnations. Gladioli are now coming in with quality improved.

S. Bryson Ayres is cutting good gladioli and delphiniums and his sweet peas are coming along in nice shape.

Mrs. T. A. Mosely, on the Kansas side, reports good business, especially in wedding decorations.

W. J. Barnes reports business good in all lines. He will shortly start repairs at his range. E. J. B.

EXCEPTIONALLY BRISK DEMAND.

The biggest rush of wedding and funeral orders ever experienced by the local trade was the characteristic of the past week's business, and there was considerable difficulty experienced in getting sufficient choice stock to meet requirements. Commencements brought a heavy call for roses and stocks were quickly depleted. There were a number of pretentious weddings and almost every florist of prominence had orders for one or more of them. Last week it rained every other day and the weather was cool, but between showers store trade was very brisk.

CLUB MEETING.

At the monthly meeting of the florists' club held in its new quarters in the Nicholas building, Emil Kuhnke brought up the subject of more hearty co-operation of the club with those interested in the city beautiful campaign. He called attention to the fact that the city parks and boulevards were laid out with utter disregard to the latest trend in landscape gardening and urged the club to register emphatic protest and take steps to remedy the situation. A committee was appointed to consult with the park board. It was decided by the club not to hold the annual picnic this year.

NOTES.

Miss Josephine Helmar of the new Helmar Flower Shop was in very good humor when seen by the writer, the reason being some very nice orders for wedding decorations during June. The business at this very attractive shop has been growing rapidly.

Miss Helen Patten, after a most successful season, thinks she is entitled to a vacation and has started on a western tour which will include California among other points. She will be absent about a month.

Rochester, N. Y.

JUNE BUSINESS IS LIGHT.

June business thus far has only been fair, and this condition can probably be attributed to the rainy weather of the past two weeks. The peony is queen of the market just now. They are seen in enormous quantities and prices are very low. Carnations are good in all colors except red. Roses are also of excellent quality but the supply is limited. The demand for stock for veranda boxes and bedding continues very good.

NOTES.

J. B. Keller Sons had the order for an elaborate wedding decoration at Oriskany, N. Y., June 14, which was executed with the usual good taste that is characteristic of the work of this firm.

The local florists' club was well represented at the funeral of the late William F. Kasting, and sent a handsome wreath tied with Rochester colors as a token of their esteem.

H. E. Wilson had an attractive display of peonies in a number of varieties last week. A great deal of garden work is being handled at the greenhouses.

Geo. B. Hart is remodeling his salesrooms on Stone street. A larger refrigerating plant is also being installed.

CHESTER.

Cincinnati.

HEAVY SUPPLY, BUT WEAK DEMAND.

As a whole, business is only fair. The supply of stock is large, but the demand for it is not very steady and low prices generally are the rule. American Beauties and other roses are in good supply. The first named, outdoor ramblers and summer roses are excellent. Carnations are plentiful, but include only a limited number of good offerings. Easter lilies continue plentiful, but the cut of other stock is so heavy that they do not meet with the demand their quality merits. Gladioli prove good property. Lily of the valley and orchids are selling well. Shasta daisies and larkspurs came in last week and met with a fair response from the buyers, because new. Other offerings include water lilies, irises, sweet peas and coreopsis. The supply of greens is more than sufficient for present needs.

NOTES.

Gus Adrian, Jr., and Miss Cora Pherson are the latest victims of Cupid. They were quietly married June 17 and on the following day departed for the Chenaux on a two months' honeymoon to be spent at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Adrian, Sr., at that place.

J. A. Peterson's pergola, on his grounds in front of his home, is attracting favorable comments and words of praise from the many who see it. It is covered with climbing roses in full bloom.

C. E. Critchell was the first in the market to have outdoor larkspurs this spring. He has been finding a big demand for lily of the valley and orchids during the wedding season.

Chas. A. Moss, who was connected with the Cincinnati park department under Reuben Warder, and is now of Spartensburg, S. C., was in this city last week.

Local florists were greatly shocked at the sudden death of Wm. F. Kasting and feel the loss that the trade has suffered by his demise.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange must give up its present location to make way for the Green Line terminals.

SUPPLY SHORT BUT AMPLE.

Business during the past week has been quiet in all lines except floral work. Stock has shortened considerably due to the dark, rainy weather. Outside flowers are coming slow and peonies this year are very late, but the quality, however, is very good. Carnations are poor, but have jumped in price. There appears to be little good stock of this flower as most of the growers have thrown them out.

NOTES.

Macnair has been showing his last French hydrangea; this week. The plants are the finest that have been seen in the city for some time. He is recovering his establishment with birch bark, which he finds satisfactory as a trade mark, distinguishing his store from others here.

From all indications the business in flowers for commencements was exceptionally good and more is looked for before the month is over.

The flower show scheduled for June 16 has been postponed to June 23, on account of the weather.

O'Connor had the decorations for the Whitman-Taft wedding and they were exceptionally fine.

TRADE BETTER THAN YEAR AGO.

The reports of business received during the past week express satisfaction, trade being considerably better than for the same period a year ago. There is a great abundance of stock, the cool weather which still continues being advantageous to all kinds of flowers. The leading roses are Russell, Hadley, Ophelia and eastern American Beauties. There are also good Mock and Mrs. Sawyer. Local American Beauties are deteriorating rapidly, the frilled edges of the petals being very objectionable. Carnations are also going out, getting much smaller. Indoor sweet peas are about done; the garden stock is coming in limited quantities, the earliest having had the advantage of cold frames for the first month or two. Easter lilies and callas have been too plentiful to count much in the returns, although the stock is fine. Cattleyas are much more plentiful, gigas and Mossiae being seen in all the wholesale houses in all their splendor; they are in good demand. Larkspur is one of the staples; it will now be seen nearly all the season round as it can be forced profitably. The garden stock is fine. Gaillardias, cornflowers, feverfews, candytufts and candidum lilies are other outside flowers that are very plentiful.

NOTES.

President S. S. Pennock of the American Rose Society has issued a call to all interested in garden and forcing roses to contribute to a fund to enable Prof. H. H. Whetzel of Cornell University and one of his assistants, Mr. McMassey, a specialist in florists' plants and their diseases, to make a careful study of black spot and other rose diseases. The money so collected is to pay but one-fourth of the expense, Cornell University providing the balance. The investigation to be complete is to cover a period of two years. Here is a splendid opportunity for rose growers to get something for almost nothing. Let everybody chip in and get the benefit.

Rupert Keinle suffered a painful accident Saturday evening, June 17. Stepping off a trolley car at 33d and York streets he was run down by an auto, which came along at a swift pace. Grabbing the top projection on the radiator as he fell, he supported himself until the car was brought to a stop. He is thought to have suffered a fracture of one of the bones in his ankle as a wheel passed over one of his legs. To avoid reckless auto driving one has to "stop! look! and listen!" at every street corner. Over 60 people have been killed in this city by autos since January 1.

The trade was greatly shocked to hear of the sudden death of Wm. F. Kasting. It seemed but yesterday that he was here working hard with the local committee in furthering the interests of the national flower show, and no one was more rejoiced than he that it was such a grand success. "Billy" Kasting was big-hearted and hospitable to a great degree. Although a very successful and busy man he could always find time to aid and counsel his brothers of the craft in anything pertaining to the interests

The Habermehls put over seven car loads of plants and accessories into the decorations for the car builders' convention on the million-dollar pier at Atlantic City last week. They also fitted up the French roof garden on top of the Hotel Walton; a very unique and practical setting for the purpose.

Mr. Sproul of the Locust Flower Shop, 227 South 60th street, has opened a new "Locust Flower Shop" at 1517 North 60th street. In furnishings and appearance it is a replica of his main store. It is in a good residential neighborhood and should do well.

Hadley, Ophelia and Mrs. Ward roses are seen in splendid shape with the Jos. Heacock Co. There was doubt about Hadley for a while last fall, but it has turned out to be the best bread winner of the lot. It is away ahead of any other red for summer.

Hadley, Ophelia and American Beauty roses are leaders with the Leo Niessen Co. Choice cattleyas are also a feature. June business is very good, particularly the past week, which showed a great increase over last year.

Powell Brothers, with considerable retail store experience, have opened a shop at 446 North 60th street, just below Haverford avenue. It is in a busy section and they are well satisfied with their initial business.

Victor Ridenour of Ridge avenue and Huntington street had a very successful season. His store, with its up-to-date appointments and the greenhouse in the rear, makes an ideal retail establishment.

The Forrest Flower Shop, on Broad, below Sanson, is well satisfied with the summer business. Very fine Francis Scott Key roses, with choice cattleyas, made an attractive window display.

At Burger Brothers' Central Market, Easter lilies, gladioli, special lily of the valley and Maryland roses are seen in good quantity. Business here has been very good for the season.

Wm. Ferguson & Sons, 1210 Spring Garden street, had a very busy week, commencing and funeral work keeping all hands on the go. Business is much better than last season.

Mrs. Shawyer, Mock and Kaiserin roses are features of the Reid stock. "The sage" points with pride to the Kaiserin, which he declares are the best in the country. K.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—An attractive feature of the Sunday Star of June 18 was a full page of illustrations, eight in number, of the United States botanic garden under the caption "A Beauty Spot of Washington." A portrait of George V. Hess, superintendent, is also reproduced.

JUNE BUSINESS VERY LIGHT.

The business of the past two weeks has been dull and monotonous. The weather, which has been more like April or November than June, has had a bad effect on business as it sent a lot of stock to the wholesale district that was very poor and hard to move. The peonies, which figuratively speaking, started in to put everything else out, have been practically put out by heavy rains and cold weather. Thousands of them are arriving that are practically worthless, the petals shaking off and the foliage rusted. When the push-cart men of this city get thousands of carnations and sweet peas, there are only two propositions—there are either far too many in the market or the quality is poor. Both considerations are worthy of note at the present writing. Roses are slow, $20 per 100 or that rate, being the best for American Beauties, with the teas proportionately low. Many of the lilies arriving have a green tint, a result of dark weather, but the prices offered look blue to the wholesalers. Briefly stated, thus far, it has been a dismal June. The "June weddings" are nearly all in the society columns of the Sunday papers—the florists do not get much profit from them. As a humorist recently remarked: "They are all too busy now, paying for their automobiles, to spend much on June weddings." We look for better business at an early date. On account of much stock being thrown out of the greenhouses, and the passing of the peonies, there should be a change for the better.

June 19.—There is a story of a Frenchman who visited London for the first time, being asked on his return what he thought of the climate. His reply was, that there was no climate, nothing but a "yellow fog." If the kind of weather we have had here for the past two weeks keeps up, some visitor may say the same about New York, or something worse, for in addition to fog there has been pouring rain and also great humidity. Sunday was fair, but the old style weather returned today. It is ruining the peonies and other outdoor stock. There is not much life in the market. Good orchids and lily of the valley are not plentiful and have advanced, but all other stock drags. It is hard to move good stock, whereas, the poor, and there is much of it, goes to the push-cart merchants or to the dump.

NOTES.

There were thousands of carnations, peonies, "Jack" roses, sweet williams and other flowers in the hands of the push-cart men and corner vendors, on the morning of June 17, and much of the stock was fair, considering the weather we have experienced. If there is no other way to move stock we suppose it must be sold on the streets, but we dislike to see it done. Possibly the majority of the retailers "are too proud to fight" the methods of the street men, but we believe some of them could be less conservative and buy heavier, providing they got the stock as cheap as the street men do.

George Hanges, chairman of the outing committee of the Greek-American Florists' Association, advises us that everything is ready for their outing, July 6. The steamer is chartered, the orchestra will be larger and furnish better music than ever before; the bill of fare will be a great one, and there will be many valuable prizes for the games. President Costos Sakelos of the association has already sold a large number of tickets for the outing, which will be held at Witzel's Point View Grove, College Point, on Long Island Sound.

The wholesale district was grieved and shocked, June 15, to learn of the sudden death of William F. Kasting, at St. Louis. In the years that he has been prominent in the trade and in the Society of American Florists, he showed himself to be clever and able and a man of fine qualities of mind and heart. While the writer has not been as intimately associated with him as some others, he has known him very well since his election as president of the Society of American Florists, at Washington, D. C.

Thomas F. Galvin, of Boston, head of Thomas F. Galvin, Inc., was at their New York store, June 16-17. He visited Dobbs Ferry, where they had a fine wedding decoration June 17, and returned to Boston by way of Great Barrington, Mass., where they had other wedding features. In their show windows, this firm is making a fine display of water lilies, flanked by many beautiful pink and blue hydrangeas.

Ex-President Traendly of the Society of American Florists, deeply regretted his inability to attend the funeral of W. F. Kasting at Buffalo. Mr. Traendly has been suffering from rheumatism, which was greatly aggravated by the continuous wet weather of the past two weeks.

The Claremont Florists, Karadontos Brothers, 3185 Broadway, are very enterprising young men, and have a fine retail store. They now think of erecting greenhouses at some point in New Jersey.

M. L. Vlachos, the Astoria Florist, 2188 Broadway, was very busy during the past week with weddings and funeral work, having had four weddings, with others booked for the near future.

David Clarke's Sons had a large church wedding decoration at Great Barrington, Mass., June 17, and members of the firm and the greater part of their staff went there to arrange it.

Alfred Kottmiller, Madison avenue and 49th street, is making extensive improvements in his store, not the least of which is fine decorative work, which promises to be very handsome.

Calling on a number of retailers during the past week, we found them reasonably busy, though their volume of business was not sufficient to clean up the wholesale market.

A joint meeting of the Retail Florists' Association and the Greek-American Florists' Association was held on the evening of June 20.

The tenth annual outing of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers will be held June 27 at Forest Park hotel, situated on Forest lake, Pine county, Pa., in a 3,000 acre woodland at an elevation of 1,600 feet and having all modern improvements and under the best of management. The party will leave New York at 10:00 a. m. on that date in a special car attached to the Lackawanna Limited, arriving at the hotel at 1:30, when dinner will be served. Refreshments will be provided en route. Rooms, lodging and meals will be provided at the hotel until the afternoon of June 29, when the party will return to New York by special car. Tickets, including railroad fare, meals and all other expenses, are only $15 per person, and the affair gives promise of being one of the association's most unique three-day outings and will provide a most enjoyable "somewhat different" and economical recreation in the mountains in genial company. There will be prize bowling, a dance every evening, fine bathing, fishing, boating and tennis.

The committee is working hard to make this outing a splendid success and requests members to inform the secretary, Wm. H. Siebrecht, Jr., Long Island City, N. Y., at once whether you will attend in order that reservations at the hotel may be made. As a special favor please inform the secretary at once how many tickets are desired and the names of the persons in your party.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON CLOSES.

This has been a wonderful season. The pot plants have been sold out clean in all the local greenhouses and blooming plants are not to be had at any of the stores. Carnations are showing the effects of warm weather and the long season and are getting very small and many of the growers are cleaning out their stock.

NOTES.

Cal Rice of Rice Bros. has returned from a successful fishing trip. He shipped a barrel of the finny tribe to the store here, but owing to the same not being properly labeled it was confiscated by the fish warden. The "boys" miss that fish dinner that they had been waiting to enjoy.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Thirty-Fourth Annual Convention, Chicago, June 20-22.

The Officers Elect:

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First Vice-President; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer.

President American Seed Trade Association.

J. C. Vaughan, Chicago.
Who Welcomed the Convention Visitors.

C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Secretary American Seed Trade Association.

The Opening Session.

The thirty-fourth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association held at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, June 20-22, was called to order by President John M. Lupton, of Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., Tuesday morning, June 20, with a large and representative attendance. Not for many years has the number at an opening session been larger or more enthusiastic.

Immediately upon calling the convention to order, President Lupton introduced Past-President J. C. Vaughan of Chicago, referring to him as one of the pioneers in the seed trade, and Mr. Vaughan welcomed visiting members to the metropolis of the northwest most heartily. He said in part:

"The inside cover page of your association report for 1915 does not confirm the rumor that your frequent visits to Chicago make you any less welcome at this time. The American Seed Trade Association in the thirty-three years of its existence has met in Chicago but four times, and during the important 12 years from 1900 to 1912 the association did not meet in this city. At these four visits to Chicago you chose for your presidents four strong men in the seed trade; George S. Haskell, in 1888, W. Atlee Burpee, in 1893, Albert McCullough, in 1900, and Chas. N. Page, in 1912. How the report could have gained circulation that the Chicago seedsmen have grown weary of their brethren in the trade is difficult to explain. Nothing in the official reports justifies any such conclusion. No Chicago man has been found who does not claim the liveliest personal interest in the arrival of seedsmen from out of town whether singly or in groups. Telephone wires are used early and often to locate such visitors, and when located, the news is spread from office to office and a miniature convention often organized. Chicago has yet to feel for the first time the sensation of having overplayed the part of host. Investigation has shown that out of town members do drift to Chicago on occasions not found in the records of the aforesaid general conventions. This great central market seems to appeal to seedsmen in many ways and at many times, not concerned with the business nor the dates of the seed trade annual meetings. They are more and more inclined to throw off shop work occasionally and drift into Chicago singly or in parties, and it has been learned that on some of these trips at least more than one has been too much occupied with printers or otherwise to foregather with the local seedsmen or uplift an impromptu convention. As Chicagoans we are all glad of these frequent visits to our city and we are cheered that they have added to the conviction that the seedsmen of Chicago are as glad to see them as the hotels and outside entertainments seem to prove acceptable. We cordially desire you to be one of us, here and away from here, and everything points to the fulfillment of our desire. You have not yet, nor can you come too often, nor remain too long.

"On behalf of the seed trade and the horticultural interests of Chicago, I heartily welcome you to the city."

Second Vice-President F. W. Bolgiano, of Washington, D. C., was asked by President Lupton to respond in behalf of the visiting members to the welcome, and did so in a pleasing way, saying that seedsmen always come to Chicago feeling the spirit of welcome in the atmosphere and sensing it even as they cross the state line into Illinois. He thanked the local seedsmen through Mr. Vaughan for their hearty welcome.

President Lupton's Address.

At the opening of this convention in this wonderful city, I call to mind the fact that it was here in 1893, that I first became a member of the American Seed Trade Association. At that time the association was young, not merely in years, but in spirits and the legislatures of the several states had not yet awakened to the necessity of purifying seeds by legislative enactment. The seriousness which has characterized the conventions of more recent years was absent. The seedsmen met together in a spirit of good fellowship.

and the most strenuous business competitors exchanged greetings and good wishes with an apparent determination to leave all business cares behind and thoroughly enjoy themselves for the time being. But if the earlier years of this association did nothing else, they certainly did promote a spirit of good fellowship throughout the trade, without which all efforts at co-operation in any line must fail, and which in itself has laid a good foundation for the more serious work which in recent years it has been called upon to do.

The American Seed Trade Association today has a mission. It is not merely protective, but constructive as well. We need no protection beyond that which justice and equity ought to provide, but justice and equity may be obscured through misunderstanding; therefore, we find a united work on the part of the whole seed trade necessary to secure them, and there never was a time in the history of the seed trade, when co-operation has been more urgently needed, not only because of its protective features, but to promote those higher business ideals for which this association avowedly stands.

A business convention seems to be in order at the present time, one which will strengthen the bond which binds the trade together through the medium of this association, and I am free to confess that I feel my own responsibility. My experience in the seed business has been that of a grower only; my problems those of the field, rather than those of the office. While fully mindful of the honor conferred by election to the highest place within the power of this association to bestow, I am conscious of a lack of knowledge of the retail business, which must be made up by the hearty co-operation of those more familiar with it, if we are to work out the problems before us for the greatest benefit of the seed trade.

LEGISLATION.

I shall refer only to the general subject, as our counsel and the legislative committee will later on treat with the specific legislation of the past year. If seed legislation is honestly intended to better seed standards, to get rid of impurities, and result in the production of better seeds for the benefit of the farmers of the country, there are no seedsmen so far as I know, but would be glad to see that result accomplished, with absolute honesty of purpose on the part of all concerned. It would only remain for us to seek out the most practical way of accomplishing that most desirable result. But all of the seed legislation of which I have knowledge, seems to be predicated upon the assumption that a merchant is always the responsible party. The term, "adulterated seeds," is not used to imply that the seeds have actually been adulterated, and that the seeds of weeds, the presence of which are forbidden by legislative mandate, have really been mixed in to make weight. As a matter of fact we all know, and nobody will deny, that weeds grow in the fields with the crop from which the seed is harvested, that the weed seeds are harvested with the good seed, and that we are depending on some machine to separate the weed seed from the good seed until it reaches the standard set by our several state legislatures. Now, if the activities of government are to be invoked in an honest effort to make seeds better, why not go to the fields? I am inclined to believe that the weeds can be taken from a growing field of grass seed with more certainty, while it is growing, than we can expect to attain in removing the seeds by means of cleaning machinery, after they have been harvested, and if the field is so full of weeds that they cannot be removed without excessive cost, the product should not be saved for seed.

We may perhaps assume that our lawmakers are actuated only by a desire to prevent the spread of noxious weeds, a desire well worthy of our active support, but the attempt to exempt farmers from the operation of all such statutes, may go far to defeat the real purpose of the statute itself. I believe that an inspection of the growing fields by competent authority, the certification by such authority of those fields found suitable for seed purposes, and the condemnation of such fields as contain too many of those plants which we are trying to guard against, would be the most practical way in which the resources of government could be employed to improve seeds.

THE CENTAL SYSTEM.

At the meeting of the executive committee, held in New York, January 7, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association, in annual meeting assembled, recommends to the association, that beginning with January 1, 1917, this association and its members, use the central system exclusively by offering all grass, clover, garden and field seeds, potatoes and onion sets by the pound and hundred pounds, and abolishing the listing or trading in quarts, pecks, or bushels.

This subject is one which has been discussed from time to time, but up to the present I know of no definite action being taken. I bring this resolution to your attention with the recommendation that such action be taken as would seem most likely to result in the final adoption of the central system as a standard of this association.

THE DISCLAIMER.

During the past year conditions have arisen in connection with the use of the disclaimer, which call for most careful consideration of the whole subject by this convention. I feel that I may not content myself with the mere recommendation of the continued use of the disclaimer, but that the whole situation should be thoroughly gone into at this session. I think I may assume that the circumstances which have led to the present situation are fairly well understood by the members of this association, and that it is unnecessary for me at this time to go into them in detail. The passage of a seed law in the state of Wisconsin, the effort, and eventual success of the canners of that state, in securing growing contracts with the disclaimer clause stricken out seems to have led, or at least seems likely to lead, to an organized effort to destroy the efficiency of the established custom of the trade, in marketing their goods under the conditions named in the disclaimer, which are generally regarded by seedsmen as essential to their protection.

An informal conference was called March 2, and a number of seedsmen met in this city, at which time the situation was carefully discussed, and resolutions passed, but this action, which was intended to meet what seemed to be a pressing emergency, was not and could not be made the action of this association. The past is behind us, the future is before us. We are at the present time concerned in seeking a solution of the problem, which will preserve the terms of sale under the disclaimer, as an established custom of the trade in their dealings with the public, for such a custom must be maintained or the disclaimer is of no value.

Now, in looking over the terms of sale made by the trade, as they appear in the catalogues and elsewhere, this custom seems to be well established, but it is used in a great variety of ways; on the letter heads it sometimes appears at the top of the page, sometimes below the business heading, sometimes at the bottom, and sometimes not at all; in the catalogues it is very generally used, but usually in connection with other matter intended to explain its use, which in some instances seems to assume a rather apologetic tone. There seems to be no clearly defined set of rules governing its use, and from the manner of its use by some dealers I should say they were a little apprehensive as to its effect upon the buying public. I recommend that this convention formulate a set of rules governing the use of the disclaimer; that it define clearly any class of trade in which its omission would not affect its value to the trade as an established custom, and that these rules, with an explanation of their necessity, and an urgent request for their adoption be sent to all members of this association.

STRENGTHENING THE ASSOCIATION.

All presidents who have come and gone before me have expressed a hope that this association might be made stronger, and ask all members to work for that most desirable end. It is, of course, obvious that any benefit which may result from its work must benefit all dealers in seeds, and can in no way be confined to our own membership. I believe that this association stands for a square deal, and that the fact of membership, if placed before the public, might have an influence of value. An idea occurs to me in this connection which may be worth considering, and in order that it may have such consideration. I recommend that a trade-mark be adopted, which all members in good standing may use to indicate their membership to the general public. This custom obtains in many similar bodies, and has to my knowledge been beneficial, particularly among those whose patronage is largely found among farmers.

FURTHER RECOMMENDATIONS.

That Mr. Curtis Nye Smith, who has served us with marked ability for several years, be again retained as counsel.

That the committee on nomenclature, established on the recommendation of President Morse last year, be continued.

NECROLOGY.

The death of two of our ex-presidents during the past year, W. Atlee Burpee of Philadelphia, Pa., and Albert McCullough, of Cincinnati, O., removes from our association two of our most earnest and forceful workers. Their generous friendship was most highly valued by all who knew them, their character has left its impression on all who came in contact with them.

In conclusion, permit me to express the hope that this convention will be thoroughly enjoyed by all present, that everyone will feel free to take part in the discussion which will follow, and that we may all be inspired to work together, to the end that this association may fulfill its mission for the benefit of the seed trade.

Because of the death of Albert McCullough, who served so long and faithfully on the membership committee, it was necessary to elect another in his place. F. W. Bolgiano nominated J. C. Robinson, of Waterloo, Neb., to serve on this committee, who was elected unanimously. Secretary Kendel submitted his report showing total present membership including two honorary members, 183, about the same as in 1915. He also presented the financial report of the secretary-treasurer, which was referred to the auditing committee. E. C. Dungan, chairman of committee on postal laws, then submitted and read the report of the committee, and together with it proposed Senate Bill 4997, entitled "A bill to provide for mailing catalogs, circulars, etc., now mailable under eight ounces in weight at the third-class rate of one cent for two ounces or fraction thereof, at a pound rate of eight cents, the rate on individual addressed copies or parcels to be not less than one cent each."

On motion of J. C. Vaughan a telegram of sympathy was sent to L. L. May, of St. Paul, Minn., now in a hospital at Milwaukee. A. K. Bush, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., read his paper on "Corn Growing in the Northwest," after which the convention took a recess until two o'clock.

The first number of the afternoon session was an interesting paper by Frank B. White, of the Agricultural Publishers' Association, Chicago, on "Fair Play Seed," who cheerfully offered at its conclusion to answer any questions that might be propounded, but as no questions were forthcoming, he must have fully covered his subject. A paper on "Farmers' Associations," by John A. Salzer, of the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., was read by W. D. Weedey, of the same firm, and was discussed with much interest. The committee on experiment stations, H. G. Hastings, chairman, presented its report, which also elicited considerable discussion, one of the especially interesting matters covered being the merits and manner of getting the best results from Grimm alfalfa, and as an outcome A. E. McKenzie moved the appointment of a committee of seven to consider the recommendations made by L. L. Olds, chairman of committee on experiment stations, and the chair named the following: A. E. McKenzie, chairman; L. L. Olds, J. S. Michaels, W. D. Weedey, O. H. Will, H. G. Hastings and C. C. Massie.

Postage Revision Bill Presented.

E. C. Dungan, chairman of the committee on postal laws at the morning session, June 20, submitted the proposed Senate bill 4997 and read a report of the committee. The text of the bill is as follows:

To provide for mailing catalogues, circulars, etc., now mailable under eight ounces in weight, at the third-class rate of one cent for two ounces or fraction thereof at a pound rate of eight cents; the rate on individual address copies or parcels to be not less than one cent each.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that on matter embraced in the third class, including circulars, catalogues, pamphlets, price lists and other similar matter wholly in print of some form upon which the postage is now paid at the rate of one cent for each two ounces or fractional part thereof, fully prepaid either by postage stamps affixed or without stamps under a permit number, the same rate is hereby extended to apply to the mailing of such printed matter in bulk to varying addresses, irrespective of the individual weight thereof within a limit of four pounds, without stamps affixed, at eight cents per pound or fractional part thereof, to be fully prepaid in similar manner as now by law provided for the mailing of matter of the second class, but such pound rate shall apply only when such printed matter is offered in quantities of one pound or more. The rate on individual address copies or parcels shall not be less than one cent each.

The bill has the support of the Association of National Advertisers, the American Association of Nurserymen, the American Seed Trade Association and similar organizations. It was urged that every individual or firm interested write the House or the Senate committee of post offices and post roads, or senators or representatives, urging them to report the bill and support its passage.

Sympathy Extended to L. L. May.

The following telegram was sent June 20 to L. L. May of St. Paul, Minn., who has been confined in Mt. Sinai hospital, Milwaukee, Wis., following an operation several weeks ago:

"The American Seed Trade Association in convention at Chicago extends its sympathy and cordial greetings to you and Mrs. May, remembering the splendid entertainment and hospitality given us by you and yours at St. Paul. Accept our sincere wishes for your speedy recovery.

"C. E. KENDEL, Secretary.
"J. M. LUPTON, President."

The following reply was received from Mr. May:

"Mrs. May joins me in thanking you for your many kind wishes, and regrets with me the inability to be with you. I am pleased to say that I am now convalescent. Kind remembrances to all."

On motion, the convention adjourned to 10:00 a. m., Wednesday.

No. 29-B Single Blast "Clipper" Grain and Seed Cleaner

Different kinds of seeds and grains, and, different conditions of the seeds or grains, call for varying strength of the air blast used in separating the dust, chaff, and light shrunken seeds or grain from the heavy, perfect seeds and grain. The Clipper Variable Air Regulator gives exact control of the air blast at every desired point. "From a Zephyr to a Hurricane" (and every intermediate point between) exactly describes the range of air blast that can be secured by this mechanical device. We can produce a blast strong enough to blow out the heaviest grain, or peas or beans, and by an adjustment requiring but an instant, reduce the blast sufficient for handling the lightest seeds such as timothy, red top or blue grass.

Wednesday's Proceedings.

At the Wednesday morning session the following were elected to membership: Robert H. Black, Albert Lea, Minn.; A. B. Haven, Haven Seed Co., Santa Ana, Calif.; Martin B. Ribsam, Trenton, N. J.; John E. Davis, Zack Davis Co., Delaware, O.; M. J. Yopp, M. J. Yopp Seed Co., Paducah, Ky.; Condon Bros., Rockford, Ill.; O. A. Talbott & Co.

The ladies visiting Chicago, in attendance at the convention, were tendered an auto ride Wednesday afternoon by the local seedsmen, the route being through Lincoln park, Evanston, Highland Park and several other beautiful Chicago suburbs, stopping at the Moraine hotel for luncheon and later visiting the U. S. naval station and witnessing the drill of the militia. There were over 30 automobiles in the party.

There were about 175 guests at the banquet which was held at the Hotel Sherman Wednesday evening. The large hall, with its decorations of the Louis XIV style, was additionally resplendent with numerous American flags, Chinese lanterns and Japanese umbrellas. There was an abundance of good music, both vocal and instrumental, and at the conclusion of an appetizing menu, excellent entertainment was provided, after which the room was cleared for dancing. All present had a most enjoyable time.

Thursday's Proceedings.

In the non-warrants discussion continued Thursday it was shown that the association is opposed to any legislation affecting germination of seed, nullifying the disclaimer as interfering with interstate commerce.

Officers Elected.

At Thursday's session the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., president; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., first vice-president; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., second vice-president; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., secretary and treasurer.

Executive Committee—J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y.; J. L. Hunt, Cambridge, N. Y.; H. M. Earl, Philadelphia, Pa.; L. H. Vaughan, Chicago; W. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md.

Membership Committee—J. C. Robinson, Waterloo, Neb.; Ben P. Corneli, St. Louis, Mo.; H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.

Convention Notes.

The Chicago seedsmen entertained the ladies with an automobile ride through the parks and North Shore Drive, Wednesday afternoon, June 21, stopping at the Moraine hotel in Highland park, where tea was served. The party returned in time to attend the banquet in the evening.

The revised disclaimer proposition was disposed of by slow torture. Let us hope for good. Majorities should rule certainly when as overwhelming as in this case. Kirby B. White's position that policies should not be compulsory was well supported. The disclaimer was never intended to cover fraud.

Secretary Kendel says this was the largest convention in the history of the association. 60 per cent of the members being present. The Chicago convention held four years ago was the second largest. Sentiment is general in favor of holding alternate conventions in this central location.

The Illinois Seed Co., Chicago, made its headquarters at the Hotel Sherman, Parlor C, during the convention and had several representatives present. Each visitor to its office was presented a combination leather card case and note book as a souvenir.

Several of the visitors signified their intention of attending the forty-fifth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, to be held at Milwaukee, Wis., next week, June 28-30.

President J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., held a reception at the hotel for the members and their friends, Tuesday evening, June 20, when everyone present had a most delightful time.

Next convention let's have a full fledged reception committee for introducing members. The wide distribution of members makes this more and more a necessity.

Quite a number of the visitors inspected the Albert Dickinson Co.'s magnificent new establishment at 2750 West Thirty-fifth street.

C. E. De Puy, with the C. E. De Puy Co., Pontiac, Mich., says that his firm sold seed oats for this year's planting as late as last week.

A. T. Ferrell has an attractive offer for the vaudeville circuit. Rabbits and bolognas are not usually brought here from Texas.

A. A. Berry, of Clarinda, Ia., wife and daughters, Ethel and Anna, made the trip to the convention by auto.

THE United States department of Agriculture has recently issued Bulletin 716, entitled, "Management of Sandy-Land Farms in Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan," dealing with the treatment of farms on the yellow to whitish sandy-land areas and outlines a plan for developing a well-balanced farm system.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 20.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 85 cents per pound; lettuce, cases, 6 to 15 cents; radishes, 75 cents to $1.00 per 100 bunches; celery, $1.75 to $2.00 per crate; tomatoes, four baskets, 50 cents to $1.00; cucumbers, per doz., 40 cents to 50 cents.

New York, June 20.—Celery, per 12-inch crate, $1.25 to $3.50; cucumbers, 75 cents per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.75 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 20 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to 75 cents; lettuce, per strap, $1.50 to $2.50; rhubarb, per 100 bunches, $1.00 to $1.25.

Tomatoes Under Glass.

This season we are conducting an interesting experiment with greenhouse tomatoes to determine the value of fire heat late in the season. To this end we removed the crop of lettuce from one house entirely, set the house to Bonny Best tomato out of 2½-inch pots and maintained a night temperature of 60° or a little more. The other house we planted the same kind of plants among lettuce, and ran the house cool to suit the lettuce crop. At this time the contrast is remarkable. The heated house has on an average three clusters of fruit per plant, with some just ripening, while the other house is just getting its first fruit. This is exactly in line with our long experience. It is a big question if this intercropping is as desirable as some believe. The heat required was very little, as one or two pipes at night would hold the temperature easily. We believe that the crop in the first house will sell for about twice as much as that in the second house. Unless the last crop of lettuce brings a good high price it will not pay for the damage it does to the tomato crop that follows.

MARKETMAN.

Controlling Grasshoppers.

Farmers' Bulletin No. 691, issued by the United States department of agriculture, gives practical measures for the control of four kinds of grasshoppers which do much damage to truck crops. Killing the grasshopper eggs by plowing, harrowing and disking either in connection with fall plowing or in breaking ground in the spring is recommended as effective. Three of the species mentioned have small wings in proportion to their bodies and cannot fly far. While the other species can fly long distances, it never does so except in search of food or to escape unfavorable conditions.

Two different measures of control are suggested. One has to do with preventing the eggs from hatching and the other measure concerns the killing of the young as well as the adult grasshoppers. The eggs hatch about the time of the last spring frosts and if egg infested land requires plowing, no other treatment need be given. The plowing, however, should be at least six inches deep and should be finished as much before April 15 as possible. This covers the eggs so deep that the young cannot get out when they hatch. If plowing is unnecessary for the following crop the eggs can be destroyed with little expense by stirring the ground to a depth of two inches.

For destroying young and adult grasshoppers one of the cheapest and most effective measures is the employment of the following poisoned bait:

Bran 25 pounds
Paris green or white arsenic... 1 pound
Oranges or lemons 6
Cheap syrup or molasses.... 2 quarts
Water 3 gallons

While fresh and wet the mash is very attractive to grasshoppers, but but when dry or stale it is not eaten. Sow it broadcast on the infested land late in the evening or early in the morning as the grasshoppers are then just beginning to feed. The bait should not be spread just before a shower, as the rain washes the poison from the bran flakes. The bait should never be placed in heaps or scattered thickly, but if scattered evenly domestic animals and birds will not secure enough of the poison to kill them. The mixed bait should, however, be kept out of the reach of children and domestic animals. It is best not to use the hands in mixing, as the poison may be absorbed.

Septoria Leaf Spot Disease of Celery.

The botanical department of the Michigan Agricultural College experiment station, East Lansing, has issued a bulletin explaining the cause of and methods to prevent the disease called Septoria leaf spot or blight, which caused a loss of probably more than a million dollars to the Michigan celery industry in 1915. It is written for the small grower but producers with large areas can easily adapt the recommendations to their conditions.

Septoria leaf spots show first as brown, dead spots on the leaves, which are soon speckled with dots, which, though small, are easily detected. With a light attack there may be only a few blemishes on the leaves, and in a weak market growers cut the price five to 10 cents per crate. However, with a severe attack the leaves wither and die and the stems shrivel and fall down. The disease is the result of an attack of a parasitic fungus or mold the threads of which twine between the leaf cells and feed upon the substance of the plant.

As nearly all samples of celery seed carry this fungus it is recommended that the seeds be disinfected before planting. Soak the seeds one-half hour or longer in warm but not too hot water. Then soak for one-half hour in a corrosive sublimate solution in the proportion of one part to 1,000 parts of water. As corrosive sublimate is deadly poison keep the solution or tablets out of the reach of children. The spores of the fungus are usually dead on seed two or three years old and the use of old seed of good germinating power is advised. Other methods of control recommended are: Rotation of crops if land enough is available; do not work plants while dew is on or directly after a rain; spray the celery plants every two or three weeks with Bordeaux mixture or oftener if the season is wet.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Miss Edith Walker, manager of the William Walker Co.'s retail store, has been awarded the silver cup offered by the Louisville Advertising Club for the best window display judged from a sales standpoint.

The Rose-Chafer.

The rose-chafer, a beetle that damages vegetables, fruits and flowers and one of the most widely distributed and troublesome pests with which the florist or gardener has to contend, is the subject of Farmers' Bulletin No. 721 issued by the United States department of agriculture. The beetles also cause the death of young chickens, the chickens being poisoned from feeding on the beetles. A thoroughly effective remedy against this insect is yet to be discovered as any application that may be made is unsuccessful unless applied almost continuously; as often as the beetles on a plant are killed others arise from the ground or from nearby fields to take their places. Applications of arsenate of lead are recommended by the Bulletin for protection.

Berberis Verruculosa.

An evergreen barberry, discovered by Wilson in western Szechuan, is flowering freely for the first time in the arboretum. It is a small shrub with slender, arching stems, thickly covered with dark brown excrescences, small oval leaves, dark green and very lustrous on the upper surface and pale below, and small golden yellow flowers, which are solitary or produced in few-flowered clusters. The berries are black, oblong or bottle-shaped and covered with a glaucous bloom. On its native mountains this barberry is said sometimes to grow three feet tall, but the plants in the arboretum are only a few inches high. These plants have now been growing for several years on the exposed southern slope of Bussey hill where they have never been injured. Berberis verruculosa appears to be the hardiest and for this climate it is probably the most valuable of the Chinese evergreen species. The small size and compact habit make it a good subject for the rock garden.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, June 2, 1916.

Leaf Blister Mite of Pear and Apple.

Red or green blister-like spots appearing in the early spring on the foliage of apple or pear are usually due to the leaf blister mite, and where trees are seriously infested a special application of lime sulphur wash or other spray may be necessary. A standard solution of kerosene emulsion, the stock solution diluted with five parts of water, may also be used. One application should be given in the spring before the trees put out foliage.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Glen Cove, June 14. President James McDonald in the chair, and there was a large attendance. Secretary Gibson read a number of letters offering prizes for the coming autumn exhibition. The prize list is already a large one and the schedules which the executive committee are now working on are sure to be very complete.

The exhibits of the evening were judged by George Gilder, Joseph Adler and Thomas Twigg, and they awarded first prize to Harry Goodband for a vase of flowering shrubs and to James McCarthy for 12 pods of peas. It was decided to hold a sweet pea exhibition in July and the executive committee was instructed to draw up a schedule and to make full arrangements for same.

James De Vyner, entomologist, of Mount Vernon, gave a lecture on "The Hickory Bark Beetle and the Means of Controlling Same." The lecture was full of practical information and proved to be very interesting and instructive. In connection with his talk Mr. De Vyner exhibited some hickory wood that had been infested with the beetle and also some specimens of the insect in its various stages of life from the larvae to the adult. At the conclusion of the lecture the speaker was questioned at considerable length in regard to various points which he had brought out. The essay received from the National Association of Gardeners was "The Preparation of Ground For and General Treatment of Hardy Perennials," by H. E. Downer. The paper was ably written and was most favorably received by the members present.

The annual rose show of the society was held at the Nassau Country Club, Glen Cove, June 16. Despite the lateness of the season, there was a large and splendid display of roses, herbaceous flowers, annuals and vegetables. Unfortunately none of the hybrid perpetual roses were open at that date so the rose section was comprised entirely of teas and hybrid teas. Of these, however, there was a large assortment of the very finest quality, the newer varieties and novelties, as well as the old favorite being well represented. In this section, Harold Pratt (Frank Johnson, Gr.), reigned supreme, capturing first prize for every rose class that was competed for.

In the competitive section the principal exhibitors were Harold Pratt, Herbert Pratt (Henry Gaut, Gr.); John Pratt (John Everett, Gr.); S. D. Brewster (Harry Goodband, Gr.), and W. E. Kimball (James McCarthy, Gr.). The prize for the best collection of outdoor flowers was won by Herbert Pratt with W. E. Kimball second. Best collection of annuals—W. E. Kimball, 1st; S. D. Brewster, 2nd. Best collection of vegetables—W. R. Coe (Joseph Robinson, Gr.), 1st; Percy Chubb (Robert Jones, Gr.), 2nd. Best table decoration—Harvey Ladew (Joseph Adler, Gr.). There were some very fine exhibits made in the non-competitive section, also the main exhibitors here being Mrs. H. Whitney (Samuel Trepass, Gr.); C. F. Cartledge (Wm. Noonan, Gr.) and Mrs. J. C. Ayre (W. C. Jones, Gr.). C. F. Cartledge staged a fine collection of outdoor flowers, containing 38 varieties which was awarded a certificate of culture. The judges of the exhibition were James Holloway, William Gray and George Ashworth.

JAMES MCCARTHY, Cor. Sec'y.

Lenox County Horticultural Society.

There was a good attendance at the monthly meeting of above society, June 14. An alteration in the schedule of forthcoming show was adopted, Class 40 to read, sweet peas, any bi-color, instead of any marbled or mottled. A paper entitled, "Horticulture as a Profession from the Standpoint of the Gardener" was read and well discussed. In spite of an early date and a very late season, there is every promise of a good show, June 28-29. The Garden Club of America is making this the occasion of their visit to Lenox. Many valuable cups and prizes are offered for sweet peas, etc., and a special feature will be a non-competitive display of orchids from A. N. Cooley, of Pittsfield, Mass. A large floor space has been reserved for this exhibit, and those who saw his fine display at the last fall show, and his first prize group at the New York spring show, should not miss seeing this display. Mr. Cooley is constantly adding many new and rare varieties to his already extensive collection, and if not already so, it will not be long before it will take its place beside any private collection in America. The next meeting of the society will be held July 12.

EVERYTHING FOR THE GREENHOUSE

Massachusetts Agricultural College.

The department of floriculture is closing up its work for the college year. With the reorganization of the work and the addition of new courses, the department has been able to carry on its professional duties better than in the past. In order that the students may have practical experience to supplement the professional courses given by the college, the department endeavors to place men on private estates and commercial places during the summer vacation. This year the department has been able to place 14 men for the summer work. Prof. A. H. Nehrling, head of the department, is to be married on June 29 at South Bend, Ind. He and his bride will go to Colorado on their wedding trip.

A. S. Thurston, assistant in the department, is to teach the courses in floriculture to be given in the summer school. Under his direction the perennial garden has been enlarged and quite a number of new plants have been added. The garden at present includes a very representative collection of herbaceous perennials, about 3,000 plants representing 450 species and varieties. The perennials are planted in large beds, each genus and species being correctly labeled. Although the garden is not planted for effect, but for educational purposes, it makes a very effective showing with its variety and succession of bloom against the background of green furnished by the wide grass walks.

RICHMOND, VA.—Fritz Sitterding has purchased the stock and fixtures of the bankrupt Ratcliffe & Tanner Floral Co. The establishment will be enlarged and the houses, 14 in number, will be improved.

Cone Trap For Flies.

Exhaustive tests on the part of the United States department of agriculture specialists have shown the cylindrical cone type of trap will catch more flies than any other yet devised. Farmers' Bulletin, No. 734, describes how to make a trap of the cone type with only four second-hand barrel hoops, a barrel head, a few strips of lumber, and 45 cents worth of screening and tacks.

The two barrel hoops are bent into a circle and nailed together, the ends being trimmed to give a close fit. These form the bottom of the frame and the other two hoops, nailed together in a similar way, the top. The top of the trap is fitted with an ordinary barrel head with the beveled edge sawed off, causing the head to fit closely in the hoops to which it is securely nailed. A square is cut out of the center of the top to form a door, and the portions of the top are held together by inch strips. The door consists of a narrow frame covered with screening, well fitted into the trap and held in place by buttons. When nailed together the trap is cylindrical in shape and the frame is covered with closely tacked screen wire on the outside of the hoops. Four laths (or light strips) are nailed to the hoops on the outside of the trap to act as supports between the hoops, and the ends are allowed to project one inch at the bottom to form legs. A cone is cut from the screen and sewed with fine wire or soldered where the edges meet. The top of the cone is then cut off to give an opening an inch in diameter. This is then inserted in the bottom of the trap and closely tacked to the hoop around the base.

Traps may be baited with stale beer, milk or molasses and water contained in a shallow bucket cover placed beneath the trap. The destruction of the flies is best accomplished by immersing the trap in hot water, or still better by placing a few live coals in a pan on the ground and scattering sulphur over them.

Fredericton, N. B.

The weather has been generally cool although free from frost, which is not unusual here in June. There has been more than sufficient rainfall and vegetables are rather overgrown. Bright warm weather would be of considerable benefit right now. Funeral work has been plentiful and about the usual demand for bouquets for weddings. The war does not seem to have any great effect upon trade except to increase prices. The demand for veranda boxes and hanging baskets is on the increase.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Joint Meeting With Syracuse Rose Society at Ithaca, N. Y., June 22.

Cornell Test Garden Inspection.

A joint meeting of the American Rose Society and the Syracuse Rose Society was held at Ithaca, N. Y., June 22, the purpose being the inspection of the rose test garden at Cornell University. After a superabundance of rain for several days preceding the meeting, the weather-man changed his tactics and provided excellent weather for the occasion. This not only brought a larger number of varieties into bloom at the last minute, but also induced a larger number of members of the Syracuse society to come to inspect the garden, about 60 making the trip to Ithaca by automobile. After a picnic dinner in the grove on the campus of the New York State College of Agriculture, the visitors proceeded to the rose garden, which is located at Craig Field, the trial grounds of the department of floriculture of the college. Here the enthusiasts from Syracuse were met by the members of the American Rose Society.

The rose garden at present consists of 120 beds, each having space for from 18 to 24 plants. The climbers are grown on a fence and on an arbor of cedar trees, which will eventually surround the garden. Dr. A. C. Beal, who has charge of the garden, provided each visitor with a complete list of the varieties that are being grown. After spending some time in inspecting the roses, the party gathered in the center of the garden for a group photograph and to hear a few remarks from President S. S. Pennock, Robert Pyle, Dr. E. M. Mills, and Dr. A. C. Beal. President Pennock spoke especially of his experiences with rose-bugs; he had supposed the only method of eradicating them was by hand-picking until he was told by a friend to plant Magnolia macrophylla. He now finds that the bugs will desert the roses for the magnolia, the large cup-like blooms of the latter being literally filled with the bugs. Robert Pyle complimented the Syracuse society on being the largest local rose organization in the country.

Besides the roses the visitors also had an opportunity to see the large collections of peonies and irises which were in fine condition.

MEETING OF THE SOCIETY.

The meeting of the American Rose Society was held in the office of Professor E. A. White, President Pennock being in the chair. He read letters from Portland, Ore., and Tacoma, Wash., asking for the establishment of a rose test garden in each of these cities. J. E. Curry, who has been most instrumental in advocating Portland as the official city for the rose garden in the Pacific northwest, promised the co-operation of the city in maintenance and in awarding medals, as well as in increasing the membership of the American Rose Society by forming an auxiliary division in Portland. Dr. Beal introduced a resolution to appoint Mr. Curry with power to choose a committee for the establishment of a rose garden at Portland.

Secretary Benjamin Hammond announced that there are now 400 members of the society, 150 members having joined since March 1. President Pennock suggested a broader distribution of the rose annual, as it contains the best material available on roses. It was suggested that a number of the western rose societies be written regarding membership and the annuals. It was decided that a meeting of the Cornell test garden committee shall be held in about a week, at which time determination of hardiness and correct nomenclature will be considered.

Dr. Beal brought up the subject of the importance of knowing the variation which would occur in the vigor of the varieties when grafted or grown on their own roots. Professor F. L. Mulford, a member of the national rose garden committee at Arlington, mentioned that a propagator is to be employed by them; it may then be possible for the Arlington garden to be a center for the propagation of varieties upon various stocks, these to be distributed to the other gardens.

Professor Mulford asked for information regarding the establishment of rose societies. He spoke of the difficulty of inexperienced leaders in formulating the best rules for organization and exhibitions by such societies, especially concerning schedules of prizes. A motion was then passed that a committee of five be appointed to arrange a set of rules and a tentative schedule of prizes for amateur shows. This committee is to report at the autumn meeting of the executive committee, their recommendation as adopted to be published in the annual. The committee was appointed as follows: Dr. A. C. Beal, chairman; Professor David Lumsden, Dr. E. M. Mills, J. H. Dunlop, and J. E. Curry.

Queen Poppy.

Her kingdom is the countryside.
 Her throne the yellow corn;
 Her jewels are the pearls that hide
 Among the grass at morn.

The merry lark her minstrel rare,
 The wind her herald strong;
 Her maids of honor, passing fair,
 The nodding clover throng.

She holds her court upon the bill,
 In green and crimson dress;
 When winter reigns she haunts it still,
 With memories of rest.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Tumbler Basket.

These miniature baskets, that are filled to sell at from one dollar to one dollar and a half, have become very popular, with all stores carrying a line more or less elaborate, depending on their trade and location. A very fair size in a number of patterns or designs can be purchased at from $8 to $12 a hundred; these generally have to be fitted with tumblers by the purchaser, which costs two to three cents additional. A paraffined pasteboard cup, water-proof and quite strong, costs less than the glasses, but is not so lasting. Of late, a small wooden tub with a twig handle has been introduced and this, when painted, is complete in itself, as it holds water, needing no inside container.

When flowers are plentiful, these baskets can be filled at a total cost over all of from 35 cents or less, up to 50 cents. When short roses can be bought for $5 per thousand and other flowers at correspondingly low prices, special sales of these baskets can be arranged, offering splendid value to the customer and yet showing a good profit. Aside from the flowers, the art in their arrangement should be a great factor in the sale of these miniature flower holders. Pink roses in a blue basket, tied with a knot of blue ribbon, is very effective. Some very tiny baskets or pieces of bric-a-brac, filled with the pink or yellow Sweetheart roses, are sure to attract attention and will generally bring good prices.

It is not just what the flowers and the basket cost that should alone be considered in fixing the price—the manipulation, the work of the artists, presents a picture or creation that is striking and original, the color effects are out of the ordinary yet beautiful. A combination of large flowers with smaller blossoms is effective; in fact, almost any kind of basket can, with ordinary every day stock, such as the market affords, become in the hands of the artist, a very attractive example of the florist's art. Business sense, combined with the artistic, is essential. There are often enough flowers in two baskets to fill a third, and all three are better for the change.

When trade is dull and stock begins to accumulate, it is a good time to use up the surplus in tasty arrangements of this kind and keep things moving. Any effort along these lines is to be commended, and such measures of success as may be achieved are steps to greater efficiency in the management of the business.

One of the most successful stores in the handling of the popular priced dollar basket, is the Century Flower shop of H. H. Battles, Philadelphia, Pa., where there are probably more than a thousand of these baskets in assortment suspended from arches next the ceiling, while the window is often filled with a number of them tastefully arranged, and from the numerous placards there is no doubt as to the price. A table near the front of the store is never without an assortment of these in pretty color combinations, which appeal to flower buyers on account of their natural arrangement without wires and the fact that all the stems are in water.

A great aid to the sale in a display of work of this character is a priced card. Some of the trade think their establishments too high class to conspicuously price anything, but the greater majority of flower stores will find the price card a drawing proposition, a silent salesman, always on duty, obtaining here and there a customer that would otherwise have been lost. Take a look into the windows of all kinds of stores in the shopping district of any of the large cities and notice how general the custom of attaching price marks to the goods displayed has become. The temptation to stop and read a notice calling attention to the window display is very compelling. One stops to see, another is attracted, and in this way on any thronged thoroughfare, the interest is kept up all day long. K.

PRINCETON, IND.—Princeton Gardens, established by W. J. Ritterskamp, were sold at a receiver's sale, May 29, to O. M. Gilbert of Clinton, Ind. The consideration was $21,000.

GREENVILLE, MICH.—The Greenville Floral Co. has added six acres of land to its establishment and is building an addition. The company was recently reorganized and capitalized for $40,000.

FLORISTS' PALMS.

Preparing For Another Season.

With the possible exception of the June weddings it may be said that the decorating season has come to a close, and it has doubtless been a good period of business for the majority of the trade, money having been plentiful in all the great centers of trade, and under such conditions the florist will naturally get some share of the general prosperity.

But with the close of the season there comes that general clean-up and overhauling of the stock that is found necessary in every well-kept establishment, and the palm stock in particular, is likely to be much in need of reorganization, for the rough handling and exposure to which the plants have been subjected during the season has left its mark, and some of the palms may only be fit for the dump, while others require a thorough cleaning, a repotting, and then some extra cultural care in order to induce enough growth during the summer to make them presentable for the following season.

The first thing to do with such plants is to trim them up, cutting off any leaves that are beyond repair, and using a sharp pair of shears to remove the dead ends of the leaflets, after which the plants should be cleaned of all insects, for these pests have only been kept under in a measure by the syringing of the past months, and even that measure of cleanliness may have been irregularly applied during the busy season. The stems and leafstalks should be thoroughly gone over in addition to the leaves, and it is good practice to finally give the entire plant a dipping in soap solution, using whale-oil soap in the proportion of one ounce of soap dissolved in one gallon of water.

After the cleaning comes the potting, or tubbing, as the case may be, and in order to keep the tubs down to a convenient size, it may be necessary to wash out some of the old soil from among the roots, this method removing the soil without injury to the roots. Use some drainage material in the bottom of the tubs, either broken pots or clean cinders, and repot firmly, using a rammer to work the soil down. Then place the plants in a shaded greenhouse, water thoroughly, syringe every bright day, and if the weather is very drying, a second light spraying would be beneficial in the afternoon during the first month or six weeks after potting.

During this period it is best not to air the house too freely, a sunheat temperature of 90° in the middle of the day doing no harm to the plants, the object being to get the roots in action and thus to get some new foliage to cover the deficiencies of the plants for there will be time enough to harden off the growth in September, and thus to get the stock in usable condition by the time it is needed. It is not an unheard of operation to prune the roots of large palms for greater convenience in repotting, but this requires some judgment on the part of the operator, and we do not therefore, recommend it to the inexperienced grower.

Young stock that is being grown on will also require attention in the matter of shading, for the first coat of shading is liable to grow thin under the beating of heavy showers, and while excessive shading will cause a spindly growth, yet there is a happy medium that the welfare of the plants demands.

This young stock should also have plenty of ventilation during the hot weather, and vigorous syringing with a good pressure of water in order to discourage the attacks of thrips and red spiders, both of which insects are liable to spread very rapidly at this season of the year unless checked by the watchfulness of the grower. Any young stock in need of a shift should have prompt attention, and also be given space enough to make a sturdy growth, while seedlings of any palms that may still be in seed pots or flats, should be potted off into 2 inch pots before they get too large, as in the latter case the roots are quite likely to suffer injury in the operation of potting.

At midsummer, all palm houses are liable to be hot, and not specially comfortable to work in, but it may be worth remarking that kentias, latanias and rhapsis, among the more common commercial species, form a group that should be kept somewhat cooler by purpose, but also very satisfactory, provided that the owners will see that they get water enough, and is noted at this time with a view to again calling attention to their use for such a purpose, for a tasty arrangement of this character gives a tropical touch to a porch box that is not at all out of place in our climate.

The Peony.

Paper by B. F. Barr, Wyomissing, Pa., read before the Lancaster County Florists' Club, June 15, 1916.

Every one loves the peony. Many that recall the enthusiasm of their grandmothers over the old garden "pineys," may well imagine the raptures if those old people were brought in contact with the splendid varieties of to-day. The old fashioned "piney," Peony officinalis, a native of southern Europe, is rich in color, but of small size, fleeting duration and offensive odor. The early history of this flower extends back many centuries, intricately woven with a haze of superstition, allegory and myth.

In China, it is said, the tree peony has been the chief pride and glory for 1,400 years. Prized by emperors for free ventilation during the summer, while arecas, cocoses and Livistona rotundifolia, also Phoenix Roebelinii may be given a closer atmosphere with good results.

The filling of porch boxes, especially those that occupy a partly shaded position, provides an opening for the use of some palms from 5-inch and 6-inch pots, among these being kentias, latanias, Scaevola elegans, Ptychosperma Alexandrae, and some of the thrinax and chamaerops. These species are not only very ornamental for such a the beauty and fragrance of the flowers, for more than a thousand years a record of the new introductions, their characters, qualities and parentage have been kept. The Japanese too are largely instrumental in producing our finest of tree peonies, of which there are now a dozen or more choice varieties in all colors offered for sale. The blooms are large and keep well either on the plant or when cut and placed in water. They should be grown more extensively. They can be propagated from soft wood cuttings, but because of their slow growth they are usually grafted. Great care must be taken that shoots do not develop from the roots when grafted plants are used, lest the true variety be lost and only a wild sort take its place.

The modern peony is an aristocrat whose birth was among the nobility of France, for it was under the care of M. Jacques, gardener for King Louis Philippe, that some of the first of the fine varieties of to-day were originated. There were also Comte de Cussy, the Prince de Salm Dyck, and Modeste Guerin. Enthusiastic amateurs secured the best varieties from Japan and China about the middle of the last century, and from these began to raise seedlings that have given us some of our present magnificent varieties. M. Jacques' collection was inherited by his nephew, M. Victor Verdier, who raised a number of fine seedlings. Comte De Cussy's collection was inherited by M. Calot, which later passed into the hands of M. Crousse. The Calot-Crousse varieties are noted for their uniform high quality, raising the standard of excellence that has never been surpassed. Another enthusiastic French amateur was M. Mechin, whose grandson, M. A. Dessert, succeeds him and is considered one of the greatest living authorities on peonies. England has also given us many new varieties during the past 25 years. The Kelways, Langport, have been the largest introducers. Unfortunately, in many instances the varieties sent us under English names were duplicates of the French varieties. In America, three amateurs have been especially prominent in the production of new peonies, as follows: John Richardson, Dorchester, Mass.; H. A. Terry, Crescent, Ia., and George H. Hollis, South Weymouth, Mass.

In the propagation of peonies or the raising of seedlings, there is no road to quick results. It takes four to six years before blooms may be had from seed, and from thousands of seedlings, less than one per cent will merit the distinction to justify its introduction as a new variety. It takes many more years to increase the stock by the slow process of division, sufficiently to be able to offer it to the trade. The plants may be divided by three every three or four years. Is it any wonder good new varieties are listed at $5 to $25 each. New varieties are mostly introduced by amateurs. The professional florist or nurseryman can scarcely afford to wait so long for results, except where they have been raised for the love for something new and the fascination of watching them grow, which too often is not the chief incentive of the American florist.

By giving you this sketch of the modern peony and those who were foremost in their introduction, you will realize how nearly all of the choice varieties now in commerce were given to us by a few enthusiasts, who were inspired by the beauty of the flower, to which they gave their devotion. It is to be regretted that in this great collection of peonies, contributed from nearly all over the world, containing nearly 3,000 names, there are less than 300 distinct varieties, the other names all being duplicate or inferior varieties that cannot be traced to any known origin. The nomenclature committee working under the American Peony Society was formed for the purpose of trying to straighten out this tangle and they are succeeding admirably well; for instance, Edules Suburba, that splendid variety, nearly always in bloom for Memorial day, was masquerading under some 30 different names—a beautiful, fragrant, variety, almost 90 years old; one of the most reliable in spite of the jokes she played on us—not 30 varieties, but one. For 23 successive Junes, I have studied and lived among peonies, but a hundred years is far too short to know them as I would wish. A glance through the various catalogues of today proves the fact that varieties introduced 100 or more years ago are still among the rarest and high priced sorts, due to their slow multiplication and strong demand.

Peonies may be planted any time from August until late in the fall or early spring. September is the best time, however, as they will make a root growth before winter sets in and they will bloom the following spring. Not until the third year after they are planted will they produce perfect flowers. They require less care after planted than any other flower. They will grow and thrive for years without being disturbed. I have seen them grow without any care whatever, but they will abundantly repay good care and nourishment. They should be planted three and a half to four feet apart in good garden soil and be set so as the eyes or crown will be from two to three inches below the surface. Mulch with manure in the fall.

There was a time when the peony was only a common "piney." There are common ones today, but the better varieties of peonies are more in demand every year. They have no competition. No other flower can take their place. They may be used in excellent taste among shrubbery or among other hardy perennials, as single clumps or large beds in the lawn, bordering drives or broad landscape effects, thriving everywhere, whether in full sun or partial shade. As a cut flower nothing is more suitable for weddings, church decorations and social functions in peony season. Without the peony we would be at a great loss on Memorial day, just as we would be without chrysanthemums at Thanksgiving.

Every florist and amateur should plant more peonies. The larger the collection the better. Secure a collection of 100 or more varieties and you will find in them more real pleasure and satisfaction than you can buy any other way for the small expense involved, say nothing of the joy and inspiration others will derive from them and at the same time encourage the use of more flowers. The peony will never displace other flowers, regardless of how popular they may become, any more than a physician can displace the florist. The public wants a larger variety of flowers, trees, shrubbery, perennials, etc. Every retail florist will bear me out in this assertion.

I will endeavor to name a few of the most popular varieties of which I am familiar: Red and crimson—M. Martin Cohuzae, Cherry Hill, Plutarch, Adolph Rosseau, Decandolle, Rubra Suburba, Mme. Baquet, Edourd Andra, Atrosanguinea, Geo. Washington, Liberty. Pink and rose—Clair Dubois, Mme. Valot, M. Jules Elie, Lamartine, Eugene Verdier, Glorie de Gombault, Lady Beyersford, Lady Lenora Bramwell, Georgianna, Shayloe, Alexander Dumas, Albert Crousse, Cameron, La Coquette, Wilhelmina Souv. de l'Exposition de Lille, Princess Beatrice, Edules Suburba, Felix Crousse. White and delicate tinted—Festiva Maxima, Couronne d'Or, Duchess de Nemours, Albatra, Duc de Wellington, La Tulipe, Mme. Calot, Mme. Crousse, Mme. Elle Lemoine, Queen Victoria, Solitaire, Golden Harvest, Marie Lemoine. Most of the above varieties are suitable for cut flowers and a portion of which will bloom early, midseason and late.

With Commodore Westcott at Waretown.

The opening of the Waretown Rod and Gun Club was celebrated with appropriate ceremonies. Friday, June 23. Commodore Westcott appears to be growing younger and was the merriest of the party, making each of his guests feel as if the outing was especially for his benefit. He was particularly pleased to welcome Adam Graham, of Cleveland, O., who appeared equally glad to be able to accept his invitation. J. C. Vaughan, of Chicago, was another delighted visitor. John Walker, of Youngstown, with his good songs and hearty laugh, was also making his first visit. J. B. Deamud, of New York, came on Saturday, and Wm. J. Stewart and John K. M. L. Farquhar of Boston paid a flying visit the same day. In addition to these there was quite a contingent of the Philadelphia craft present. Fishing and delightful sailing on the beautiful Barnegat bay, whose sandy shores encroach at times on the club house lawn, was greatly enjoyed. This broad expanse of water appears almost like the great ocean, the sandy shoals of which are marked by the lighthouse, five miles away. On Saturday evening there was a love feast, letters were read from many who could not attend, all extending kind wishes to the commodore and regretting their inability to be present. Fine speeches and songs enlivened the occasion and a beautiful poem, written by J. C. Vaughan, was read. A new pool table, a gift from members of the club to the commodore, was one of the features. It was a delightful time, every moment full of things that make life worth living. The commodore appeared the happiest man of the lot. May he live to enjoy many more such happy reunions.

Those present were: John Walker, George C. Watson, George Craig, Robert Craig, J. C. Vaughan, John Westcott, Adam Graham, David Rush, J. Otto Thilow, John Burton, D. T. Connor, J. C. Trainor, D. C. Donohue, J. B. Deamud, Wm. J. Stewart and J. K. M. L. Farquhar.

The accompanying illustration shows the commodore and his happy guests.

Landscape Designing of National Highway

Abstract of an address by Cyrus Kehr delivered before the American Civic Association at Washington, D. C.

With respect to utility this factor is of prime and extreme importance, presenting a new factor in landscape designing, which should receive attention prior to and as a basis for both city "planning" and country "planning." The factor of communication in a city plan must be related with communications between that city and other cities and towns or major centers of communication so geographically located as to make reciprocal communication from one to the other desirable or imperative. In rural planning, communication is also a prime factor and must be treated simultaneously with other important factors and developed in relation to the main lines of communication leading to distant places. Effort should be made to so work out this problem of national communication as to afford the most direct and convenient communication between neighboring major centers. From the foregoing it becomes apparent that in civic improvement we must make room for a new branch of landscape gardening.

In connection with location there is here an opportunity for landscape designing on a large scale. It should be sought to present the largest number of the best possible landscape pictures, so that traversing the road will, in this respect, be superior to visiting an art gallery. Some of these pictures should be at short range, while others cover ample distances, and in others there should be an emphasis of height or depth. In many places proper grade and distance can be had by adopting either of two locations, one presenting ordinary scenery and the other some splendid picture. The latter should be chosen. In nearly all portions of the United States nature has lavishly provided material for this kind of designing. If this opportunity is properly appreciated, splendid results constituting immense assets for our country will follow. Failure in this respect will involve an enormous aggregate loss.

Both for utility and dignity, the right of way of the highway unit should be at least 100 feet wide, in order that at present and in the future there may be room for a roadway of ample width for easy travel in both directions and in order that cuts and fills may be freely treated without interfering with adjacent private lands and in order that there may be spaces at the sides of the roadway to be occupied by trees, shrubs, vines, and grass. Wherever there are spaces suitable for this purpose, trees, shrubs and vines already on the right of way should be protected, and there should can depend on Nashville, Memphis and Chattanooga for at least one member from each firm. We are putting forth every effort to make it the largest and best convention in the history of the society. EL PASO, TEX.—Florists here are taking a lively interest in the convention and from present indications there will be a good representation from this section.—H. L. PORTER.

ALVIN, TEX.—I believe everyone in the trade in any way interested will be there. We intend to make use of the opportunity this convention offers.—J. W. CARLISLE & SON.

TRADE EXHIBIT RESERVATIONS OPEN.

Secretary Young is now prepared to receive reservations for space in the trade section at the convention. On no previous occasion have so many southern florists assembled in one body, and without question now is the time for a display of your goods to get them before the florists of this section at a very nominal cost. At the last two state conventions there was a representation of about 125 Texas florists and at the coming convention of the S. A. F. we expect the attendance from within the state will be at least 200. In addition to this number it is anticipated that there will be 300 to 400 florists from other points in the south. This alone is worth an exhibit at the Houston convention, aside from the fact that there has never been a convention held in that city which has received so much publicity, and 1,000 visitors are confidently expected to be on hand. Do not miss this opportunity. Send your reservations for space in the trade section to Secretary John Young, 53 West 28th street, New York, at once and get the best space, as indications are that the hall will be crowded to the limit.

be additional planting, care being exercised to select species best suited to utility and art. In this way these highway units may be made practical lessons in forestry conservation and in beautification. This feature may be augmented by adding to the right of way small pieces or fragments of land which have special beauty on account of topography, water, and plant growth.

Houston Convention Interest Grows.

Interest in the convention of the Society of American Florists which will be held at Houston, Tex., August 15-17, becomes more keen as the date draws near. The local florists are sparing nothing to make the visit of the craft to the south one of interest and pleasure, and from New Orleans and other points the invitation is heralded "Stop off en route—we want you to be our guests."

Vice-President Robert C. Kerr has been an indefatigable worker for the success of the coming meeting and communications he has received are most gratifying and point to assured success. The convention garden is being watched with especial interest in the developments of many items, which it is believed will prove of value in another growing season. Among a number of letters received by Vice-President Kerr, several of them are reproduced in part below.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—I firmly believe that fully 90 per cent of the southern florists will attend the convention and there will be a larger representation from this state than were ever at a convention before. I think that we NASHVILLE, TENN.—We expect to bring at least 90 per cent of the local florists to the convention. You can count on Nashville. If there is anything we can do for you here, do not fail to call on us.—T. H. JOY.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—I believe that Houston will see several Oklahoma florists in attendance at the convention. You will find considerable interest will develop from this section.—J. W. FURROW.

ORCHID NOTES.

Watering, Shading and Ventilating.

The three most important things for orchid growers to notice at this season, is to water, shade, and ventilate with due care, in order to be able to cut a good average crop of flowers during the coming fall and winter months.

Cattleya labiata, being first, is now making growths very rapidly and will naturally need lots of water at the roots for some weeks to come, but it is by no means necessary to syringe often do. These, of course, need sufficient water to finish properly, otherwise the majority make new bulbs at the beginning of the year.

Oncidium varicosum, a useful species, is now making good growth, but water sparingly till the new bulbs are well formed, or many promising leads will rot off. The same may be said of O. splendidum, only this variety must have much warmer treatment than O. varicosum.

Dendrobium Wardianum is developing its new bulbs and will need abundance of water at the roots. This species is subject to red spider, and requires looking after by frequent syringings on the under side of the leaves. Shading is now necessary for all orchids, but at no time should it be put on too heavy. A light shading of some description put on the glass is needed from April until the middle of May; then something heavier must be applied. If roller blinds are used they will be needed now in the middle of the day. In any case for safety, a light shade painted on the glass underneath the blinds will be found very advantageous, for it often makes too sudden a change for the benefit of the plants to have to drop and take up the blinds suddenly. On houses where permanent shading is used only, a heavier application will now be necessary.

Ventilating needs most careful attention and must be put on and taken off with much care and judgment for the best results; also, from an economical way of looking at it, especially in places where there is plenty of work and not much help allowed. No good can come by leaving all available ventilation open on a hot windy day to dry up things in the houses, making it necessary to water the plants more frequently which all takes time. It is only reasonable to suppose that it is better to let the plants dry out gradually by reducing the ventilation on such days, and certainly more natural. If possible, avoid a stuffy atmosphere at all times, both night and day, and at the same time keep from any unreasonable dryness.

them heavily every day. Far better results are obtained by giving the plants a thorough watering two or three times a week, taking care to let the compost on most of the plants look and feel dry before the next application. It is well to make a study of the out-door atmospheric weather conditions, so that if at any time the grower is in doubt as to whether the plants need water, pass them by till the next day for no harm can be done, but often this will be of much benefit to the plants and perhaps more refreshing.

C. Percivaliana and C. Trianae are next to commence making growth, and will enjoy the same treatment; as the bulbs become strong increase the water supply also. C. Mossiae, C. Warnerii and C. Mendelii will soon pass out of bloom, and it is wise to rest them slightly by keeping them on the dry side for a few weeks. This causes them to break away strongly, and as soon as new roots protrude from the base of the new growth, any plants that need repotting ought to be attended too at this time.

C. Gigas and C. Gaskelliana are now approaching their blooming period and need an abundance of water at the root. These two varieties differ somewhat from the three preceding kinds, for they commence to send out roots from the base of the bulbs just flowered or made up. They therefore require any necessary potting as soon as these new roots appear, but at the same time must only have enough water to keep the bulbs plump for several months, unless some plants commence growth prematurely, which they leaves, using considerable force of water for this purpose. It is by no means necessary to grow this dendrobium with so much heat and moisture as is often advocated; cooler treatment and plenty of air produce better results.

D. nobile and its many hybrids are now growing fast. A position in the cattleya house and given the same treatment as those plants, suits them well during the summer, but as the new growths become matured, make provision to hang this species in some dry cool house near the roof glass.

R. Vincent Jr. & Sons Co., White Marsh.

This is a progressive firm that grows plants economically and on a large scale. Located at White Marsh, Md., 12 miles north of Baltimore, on a farm of about 300 acres, with over 300,000 feet of glass, they turn out plants by the million, shipping at all seasons of the year. At one time they grew quantities of vegetable plants in the greenhouses, which were shipped first to the south, and then followed the season north up into Canada. These are now only grown outside, but in large quantities, cabbage plants being seen by the acre. There is a great demand for this stock, many truckers and seed stores depending on this firm for their supply. Their output last season was over four million plants.

The specialties here are geraniums, cannas, dahlias and hardy chrysanthemums. Quite a variety of other bedding plants are also grown. Here is to be found the largest collection of dahlias in the country; 80 acres are planted. In what are called the show grounds, a large block are trained to stakes; these are kept disbudded, so as to get very large flowers. Another section of several acres is planted, one long row to a variety. Their collection comprises nearly 400 varieties of which not over 100 are what might be called popular, and possibly only 50 kinds are supplied to the trade for cutting. The planting of these great fields is interesting. A machine called a transplanter has two broad wheels which carry it nicely over the soft ground—two mules furnish the motive power. There is a driver who sits in front and two men who are seated on a low divided platform at the rear that just clears the ground. As the machine is driven slowly along, an opening or trench is made into which the men alternately drop the plants, the soil being drawn in and the trench filled up by the mechanism of the machine as it moves along. Two men set out 16,000 plants a day. This is a great time saver. A traction engine for ploughing and harrowing the ground is another up-to-date piece of farm machinery that had been found very efficient. These two appliances are both great savers of time and labor.

Geraniums are grown here by the million. There are six large houses given over to stock plants, which are kept in for about two years; 350,000 plants are in this section and they were a blaze of color, having great strength and vigor. When asked about insects, Mr. Vincent said they did not bother the geraniums; they take cuttings all the year around and clean up all the old and yellow leaves as they go along. Cuttings are put in 2-inch pots of soil, where they take root without trouble. Plants rooted now, make good stock for fall delivery. Dahlias are handled in the same way, the cuttings being put right into pots of soil. No rooted cuttings are sold here—all plants are from pots. The canna is another plant that is grown in quantity, over 400,000 being sent out this season. Twelve acres of cannas are grown for stock.

There is a very large packing shed and storage house, to which all the greenhouses are attached by underground passages, which give communication during winter without going out of doors. A wheelbarrow with a platform large enough for three trays or carrying boxes, used for selecting and carrying orders, is found a great convenience. A spring under the platform takes up the jolts. A full load is 200 pots of the 2-inch or 100 threes. In one of the 185 foot houses is an English ivy which is growing on the rear stone wall and extends the full length of the house; this is used for cuttings. Lantanas are among the minor bedding plants, yet 100,000 were sent out last season. A correct and tabulated list of each variety of plant sent out is made, so as to keep track of the demand. Plants from pots to the number of 194,934 were sent out during the week ending

John Cook, Baltimore, Md.

May 20, 129,000 of which were bedding plants. About 4,000,000 plants were sent out last year.

This firm's collection of geraniums is the largest in the country. Edmond Blanc is a splendid cerise red, Mrs. Lawrence a fine light pink, which is useful as a pot plant. Mme. Reclamer is the best white. All the new ones from home and abroad are given a trial here. Among them are found many meritorious varieties. The three popular sorts are Beaute Poitevine, Alphonse Ricard, and S. A. Nutt. Of these they grow more than all the other varieties put together. A large business in dahlia roots is done in November and December; cuttings are taken from January on for spring delivery. Chrysanthemums are handled in very large quantities, mostly the hardy pompons and other popular sorts.

The business, which has grown to such magnitude, was started by Richard Vincent, Jr., in 1871; his three sons, Richard A., Thomas A. and John S. are now members of the firm, each managing a department. Here is found a splendid example of what can be accomplished along special lines, furnishing a supply from which the trade can at all times draw in almost any quantity.

John Cook, Veteran Rose Hybridizer.

Novelty is the mainspring of business. The first question asked a salesman is—What have you new? When the eagerly awaited catalogue arrives, fresh from the press, with its gorgeous coloring, the pages are quickly scanned for the novelties, the highly colored illustrations accompanied by wonderful descriptions of their good qualities. At the flower shows the wonderful new carnations or roses, of whose values as forcing varieties so much has been said, are at all times the center of attraction, which, as they come up to the expectation of the practical grower, may be given a trial or let severely alone. In the past 10 years the forcing rose has taken a great stride forward, and many new sorts have been introduced, quite a number of which have been of American origin—real "made in America" varieties that have proven good.

One of the most successful, in fact the chief rose hybridizer of America, is John Cook, of Baltimore, Md., a youth of 83; old perhaps in years, but as energetic, enthusiastic and hopeful of the many pedigreed seedlings that receive his daily care, as many men half his age. It is indeed a great pleasure to visit this great rose veteran at his beautiful estate in the suburbs, where on his lawn are to be seen some of the finest specimen conifers in the country. One Colorado blue spruce stands 20 feet in height, shapely to a degree and perfect in every limb. The same may be said of an Abies Englemanni, a superb specimen. Tall, majestic Norway spruces ornament the driveway, while the tree bordered extensive lawn is brightened with splendid purple beeches. It is an ideal and inspiring spot. Seated on the porch overlooking this beautiful lawn, Mr. Cook spoke reminiscently of his experience in raising new varieties. His Souvenir de Wooten was the first hybrid tea rose raised in this country. George W. Childs was delighted that this rose was named by Mr. Cook in honor of his country seat, as a compliment to his reception given to the Society of American Florists at their convention, held in Philadelphia in 1886. This variety was largely and profitably grown by florists for many years. A prize of $250, offered by Mr. Durfee, of Washington, for flowers of this rose, was spent at a dinner in Boston at the first meeting there of the Society of American Florists. Robert Craig said it was the most enjoyable social affair of the kind ever held by the craft in this country. It was unanimously decided that the Wooten was red. Mr. Cook came to America from Baden in 1856 and has always kept in touch with the best plant growers and hybridizers of Europe through horticultural magazines and catalogues. He imported largely of the new things that appealed to him, many of which he found profitable. He introduced the Marie Louise violet; a bed of 20 sash netted him in one season in the sale of plants over $1,400. In roses, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and La France, two of the greatest bread winners, were first imported, their initial flowers opened, and their value demonstrated on his place. Aside from his standard sorts, he has raised many valuable varieties that for one reason or another, such as too short stems or scarcity of bloom in midwinter, are not forced but make excellent out-door plants for the garden. His Pan America, is a shy winter bloomer, but a wonder out of doors. A fine double pink with short stems is very profitable for his store trade. A red, which he finds superior to Hoosier Beauty, or any other he has tried, does not seem to do well with other growers. Neither of these as yet bears a name.

Mr. Cook finds that many florists do not appreciate the value of the various light and heavy soils that are best for certain varieties. Temperature is another important factor. My Maryland does best in mid-winter with plenty of heat and Francis Scott Key will produce its best crops with a night temperature of 65°. Cardinal is another that likes a warm clime in mid-winter. Growers should study these important matters in rose forcing, as each variety has its individualities, which must be humored to get the best results.

He considers Radiance one of his best introductions, as in addition to its value as a forcing variety, it has proved to be such a grand rose for the garden, being most floriferous and very hardy. Three very promising novelties, one a white with a showy yellow center and good stem, which he considers a distinct and fine variety, is a cross between Sunburst and Frau Karl Druschki. There is a table full of this in strong growth. The other two are flowering from plants raised from the seedlings of last year. One is a pink Ophelia, a cross between My Maryland and Ophelia, with Maryland the pollen bearer. It is a fine grower with a long pointed bud, Maryland pink in color, more double than Ophelia, but with much of the beautiful waxy texture of this variety. The last of the three is first in his estimation; he believes it to be the finest rose in all respects he has raised so far. It is a beautiful shade of Baroness Rothschild pink, with duotoned petals like La France, in form something between Mock and La France, fragrant, and is borne on a stiff, vigorous stem, well clothed with foliage, E. G. Hill, who saw it growing, wondered at the strength of stem from such a comparatively young plant. One of its strong points is that it is mildew proof. It is a cross between Mrs. Russell, the seed parent, and Frau Karl Druschki, the pollen parent.

A table of about 50 vigorous looking seedlings, all labeled with their pedigree numbers, were getting away nicely and Mr. Cook expects some very good varieties from this lot. First flowers give very little idea of the worth of a variety. His pink Ophelia's first bloom was single, then semi-double and the third, full petaled. There are many other interesting plants. A grape crossed with the European wine variety has for several years shown no sign of blight or mildew; he places great value on this, having been a grape grower all his life and knows what is most needed for this climate.

Mr. Cook rather deprecates the building of the great modern ranges of glass, thinking that growers would enjoy life more without such heavy burdens to carry. The satisfaction of putting something aside for a rainy day is to him much better than investing it all in ventures that may not prove successful.

In addition to those mentioned above he sent out Enchantress, Mrs. Robert Garrett, Marion Dingee and White Maman Cochet. K.

Children Need Farm Conditions.

O. F. Cook, Bureau of Plant Industry, Washington, D. C., in the Journal of Heredity for June, 1916.

Not to be raised on a farm is a cruel privation, a denial of the normal childhood of our race that no previous eugenic precautions or subsequent educational manipulations can make good. Many excellent and very intelligent

In cities the little children have to be sent to the school, the kindergarten, or the day-nursery, to keep them out of danger while the parents are at work or at play, but in the country where the children can be out-of-doors they do not need to be caged. The projection of urban ideas and methods of education into the country makes needless difficulties. The little children people do not know that children need farm conditions, but it is true nevertheless, and needs to be recognized before we shall have any just or practical appreciation of eugenic or educational values. Many of our educators know how hopeless the urban children are, under the urban conditions, but they are engaged to handle such children and are doing the best they can. The urban problems are pressing and cities pay high salaries to get capable men. The result is that not only our educational institutions, but our educational ideas as well, are being cast almost exclusively in the urban mold, with no recognition of the educational value of rural life. Every year thousands of misguided parents, all over the United States, are moving to towns in order that their children may have the "advantages" of the large graded schools, the over-crowded education-factories where the city children are put through the elaborate machinery that is necessary to handle helpless humanity in large masses. The school is no substitute for the home, much less the city school for the farm home.

not only do not need to be sent to school, but are much better off, educationally and otherwise, if allowed to stay at home. There is no good reason why normal children of normal, intelligent parents living in the country should be sent to school before the eighth or ninth year. Nor is there any reason why any favorably situated country child should go to school for more than six months in the year. Country schools need to be improved in many ways, but running them longer is not an improvement.

It is true, of course, that many children, and especially urban children, are better off at school than at home, but that some children lack favorable home conditions does not make it reasonable to keep others from such an advantage. It would not be argued that all children should be taken away from their parents because some children are orphans, or because some parents are incompetent, careless or cruel. Yet there can be no doubt that this is very frequently the effect of our system, to make children practically orphans by turning them over wholly to the school.

WIRE contracts for the last quarter of the year are being made at an advance of $1 per ton.

SOME growers are eliminating commissions to plant jobbers, claiming a number of the latter have demoralized prices by dividing the commissions with their customers.

Correction.

John Young, New York, secretary of the Society of American Florists, was among those who attended the funeral of the late Wm. F. Kasting at Buffalo, N. Y., June 18, his name being inadvertently omitted from the list printed in last week's issue.

THE FOURTH.

On account of the holiday next week, advertisers and correspondents will oblige by mailing copy one day earlier than usual.

The Late Wm. F. Kasting.

Being away from home when Wm. F. Kasting died, the news was delayed in reaching me. In his passing away an outstanding figure has gone from the S. A. F. It was my privilege to be intimately associated with him since 1901, when he was elected vice-president, and I have good reason to know and appreciate his untiring, unselfish work in behalf of organized horticulture. A born organizer, he brought into the field a force which is uncommon in our ranks and which he used unstintingly for the general good. It is meet that we should all pay loving and appreciative tribute to his memory. His like does not pass this way often and he leaves a void which it will be difficult to fill.

His personality was a tonic for those who were fortunate to come in contact with him. Whole-souled and generous to a fault, large hearted and broad minded, far above pettiness, he was an inspiration to those who labored with him and a tower of strength in every crisis.

The pity is that he was not spared for many more years to us. Of him it may be said with truth, "Whom the gods love die young."

Individual Rights Versus Bureaucracy.

The greatest danger to the American citizen today, says a recent writer in Flour and Feed, lies in the self-arrogated power of various governing boards, both state and national. Often small minds are elevated to public position, and once in power they arrogate to themselves powers never conferred by legislative enactment. It is a matter of common occurrence that these boards once established by a broad and general statute, arrogate to themselves legislative, judicial and executive duties—such as were never dreamed of by legislative bodies.

Only recently, a city physician of average intelligence stated to me, substantially, and in perfect sincerity, that the State Board of Health originated, executed and passed all laws governing the people. The mistaken views of this gentleman regarding the sources of power, legislative, executive and judicial is, sad to say, too common a view among our governing boards. If not checked, such policies will fasten a tyrannical bureaucracy over the very lives and fortunes of the people.

Likewise, governing boards in our industry have arrogated to themselves powers and duties never conferred by the legislature. Feed inspectors, like the conscience inspectors of Cromwell's and Jefferson's time, inform us that we must do as they say, and often without regard to the law. Under this system of bureaucracy, inspection has not been business but politics and favoritism. Outside mills have been invited to come in and compete with home industries.

Let the American people wake up to their rights, that there may be a revival of conscience respecting personal rights and individual liberty.

The Dutch Bulb Trade in 1915.

The General Society for Flower-bulb Culture at Haarlem publishes details of the Dutch foreign trade in flower bulbs in 1915, in comparison with 1914 and 1913, according to Consul Frank W. Mahin. The following figures are given in kilos (one kilo=2.2046 pounds):

Country.	1913 Kilos.	1914 Kilos.	1915 Kilos.
Imports from—
Belgium	406,000	83,100	210,900

United States	167,400	131,900	62,500
Japan	256,900	107,600	36,600
Turkey	8,600	14,500
Other countries	261,300	297,900	122,800
Total	2,177,700	1,377,600	863,300
Exports to—Scandinavia and

Denmark	2,011,600	3,706,700	3,866,200
France, Belgium,

Greece, Turkey	1,008,000	462,300	540,000
Russia	841,600	90,300	572,300
Other countries	288,400	72,700	65,900
Total	24,960,900	24,893,900	26,615,500

The Dutch bulb trade was seriously affected by the war, although the foregoing export figures for 1915 seem to indicate the contrary.

The society states that while in normal circumstances these figures would be gratifying, on the whole scarcely enough was realized on the bulbs in 1915 to cover the cost of production, and this result was accentuated by unfavorable exchange rates with foreign countries.

It should be noted that the import and export figures refer to the countries from which the bulbs came directly or to which they were sent directly; and also that shipments by parcel post are not included in either set of figures.

BUSINESS HOLDS UP WELL.

Business in general was better than was expected during the past week. Roses sold very well, Ophelia especially being in good demand. Carnations fell off in price as the supply increased, prices now being from $1 to $2 per 100. Sweet peas have been very scarce as the wet weather has ruined thousands of flowers while on the vines. Good blooms sold very well at from 75 cents to $1 per 100. Lily of the valley is practically out of the market, and the growers fortunate enough to be cutting a crop are realizing $8, $10 and $12.50 per 100. There are plenty of peonies to meet all requirements and they move rather slowly at from 33 1-3 cents to 75 cents per dozen. Gladioli are coming in large quantities, but do not sell as well as usual for the season. They bring from 50 cents to $1.50 per dozen, according to quality. Sprengeri and plumosus continue to be good sellers. The plant trade, which consists mainly of ramblers and hydrangeas, is rather dull.

NOTES.

The market outing, which was held at Lake Boone, Sunday, June 25, proved to be a success in spite of the rain. As there was ample shelter, the boys found many ways of entertainment and all enjoyed the day, even though there was some difficulty in finding the place.

John Barr, of South Natick, has been cutting a very heavy crop of carnations. During the past week his cut totaled 14,000 flowers, which sold at figures above the market, as they all were of exceptional quality.

Chas. Evars, of Watertown, Mass., is cutting a fine lot of peonies. On June 26 he sold 300 dozen as well as a large cut of America and Mrs. Francis King gladioli.

M. Penn, who conducted a store on Bromfield street for the past year, has gone out of business.

Henry Penn is spending the week at Philadelphia, Pa.

F. L. W.

Hartford, Conn.

In West Hartford we found, in the W. W. Thomson Company, a very enterprising and interesting firm. W. W. Thomson founded this business about 15 years ago and it has grown to large proportions. The members of the company are W. W. Thomson, his brother R. R. Thomson, and H. J. Miller. They have an established reputation for good roses, sweet peas, carnations and violets. In roses we noticed fine stocks of Killarney Queen, Mrs. Ward and September Morn, and they are growing other standard varieties. They are building more houses and will increase their rose area. There is now being erected for them a block of connecting houses, 105x150 feet over all. This brings their glass area up to 100,000 square feet.

This is a good time of the year to visit Hartford. Its splendid parks, and the care and taste shown in the grounds of its many beautiful homes, are better to see than the mountains or the mermaids of the beaches, and it may be added, it costs much less to see them. The city has a general air of prosperity and contentment, which is fully shared by the florists.

Wm. J. Doogue & Co., who opened a handsome store last December at the corner of Asylum and Ann streets, are keeping it up-to-date and report good business. T. Roy, formerly well known in New York, is on Mr. Doogue's staff. W. J. Doogue is a son and namesake of the late William J. Doogue, for many years park superintendent of Boston.

Although we believe that John Coombs is the pioneer and father, so to speak, of all the local florists, and has reached his three score years and ten, he keeps right on growing stock and building more houses. We found active business at both the stores, which are conducted by his son.

J. McManus & Co., who have for some time conducted a store at 273 High street, announced that, July 1, they will occupy new quarters at 526 Asylum street, in the store recently vacated by the Bon Ton Florist.

G. G. McClunie has a good store and is optimistic over the outlook. He is one of the retailers who believes—not in artificial flowers.

The field day at A. N. Pierson's, Inc., Cromwell, June 21, was greatly marred by a deluge of rain in the afternoon.

There is always prosperity at the store of Welch, The Florist, and the force is kept busy.

Spear & McManus Co. has had a very busy season and is quite cheerful over the outlook.

A. F. F.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

A number of large weddings, together with several important funerals, helped much in the business of the past week. In plants, hydrangeas and roses take the lead. Several days of heavy rain have spoiled the peony and Rambler roses and gladioli and sweet peas are also scarce.

NOTES.

The Flick Floral Co., among other orders, arranged an elaborate wedding decoration. Peonies, syringas and Shawyer roses, with a banking of palms and ferns, appeared to splendid advantage. The bouquets for the bride and bridesmaids were also splendidly done.

Miss Eileen Lanternier entertained a party of friends, June 20, the decorations, largely of roses, being very attractive.

Visitor: J. C. Beaver of the agricultural department of Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.

H. K.

Providence, R. I.

Several weddings and plenty of funeral work have been factors in the demand during the past week. Stock is plentiful and prices on many lines are low, roses being offered at your own figures and carnations not faring much better. Sweet peas seem to be shortening up, but the outdoor crop is beginning to arrive and some of the flowers are very good. Several of the peony growers cut their last blooms this week. The season has been so cloudy and rainy that many of the buds rotted before opening.

NOTES.

The exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, held in the Narragansett hotel, June 23, was well attended and the displays were many and varied. Macnair had a large display of French hydrangeas in all colors, and John Burke had an excellent exhibit of roses.

Large shipments of short roses continue to arrive from the Boston markets.

Most of the carnations are being thrown out and the benches are being refilled.

STOCK CLEANS UP WELL EACH DAY.

Business continues to be good and stock of all kinds cleans up nicely each day at satisfactory prices. Roses are in good demand, especially Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia and American Beauty. My Maryland and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst are selling unusually well and command high prices. Some exceptionally fine Killarney, Killarney Brilliant and Killarney Queen are reaching the market and the same holds good for White Killarney and Double White Killarney, which do not appear to be any too plentiful. Sunburst, Prince de Bulgarie, and Mrs. Aaron Ward are in good supply and what few Mrs. George Shawyer are arriving are having a good call. Richmond, Rhea Reid, Milady, Hadley and Hoosier Beauty are moving readily at good figures. Mrs. Moorfield Storey and Francis Scott Key are more plentiful but the supply is just about equal to the demand. Fireflame, Cecile Brunner, Baby Doll and Mrs. George Elgar sell almost as quickly as they reach the stores. Carnations are showing the effects of the weather but there is still a large supply of good stock available at very reasonable prices. Peonies have had a good call all week and are selling at much better prices than they have for several weeks past. Lily of the valley is as scarce as ever and good stock easily brings $6 per 100, but the majority of the dealers are rather reluctant to ask more than $5, especially from regular customers. Orchids are still on the short side and command high prices. Gladioli are in good supply and at times bring good figures. Lilies and callas are seen at several of the stores in large numbers, but seem to find ready buyers and there is hardly ever any surplus to speak of. Sweet peas are to be had in quantity and are selling at good figures, especially in the better grades. Calendulas, snapdragons, daisies, pansies, candytufts, gypsophyllas, foxgloves, canterbury bells, mignonette, larkspurs, irises, cornflowers, feverfews, statice and a raft of other indoor and outdoor stock is available. The express strike, which was settled last week, is making conditions a great deal easier for the wholesalers and all the companies are now giving regular service and the special service inaugurated by the trade has been discontinued. Green goods of all kinds are plentiful and some unusually fine ferns are available at greatly reduced prices. Business so far during June has been very good and shows a big improvement over the same month of last year.

NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. John Welsh have the sympathy of the trade in the loss of their seventeen-year-old son, George, who was accidentally killed last week. The funeral was held Sunday, June 25, from their home at 4910 North Hoyne avenue, with services at St. Mathias' church, thence by auto to Memorial Park cemetery.

Mrs. John Charles London, of Evanston, will leave next week for Monterey, Calif., to spend the summer with her mother. Mr. London is George Weiland's right hand storeman.

John Michelsen, manager of the E. C. Amling Co., treated all of his friends to a fine smoke, Thursday, June 22. It's a girl and "papa" is as happy as a lark.

Miss Alma Klunder, who has not been feeling any too well of late, will leave soon for Colorado to enjoy a well earned rest.

—2,000,000 Feet of Modern Glass—

John Canger, with Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, will join the ranks of the benedicts, Thursday, June 29, when he will be united in marriage to Miss V. Diamesis, 4448 Racine avenue. Mr. Canger has a host of friends in the trade here who all wish him every success and a safe voyage on the sea of matrimony. John Mangel will decorate the bride's home and it is understood that the wedding will be a regular, old-fashioned Grecian affair.

At Wiator Bros.' store the principal offerings in roses are Ophelia and Sunburst, which are in good crop with them now. N. J. Wiator says that carnations in general are holding up remarkably well in quality for so late in the season and points with pride to their fancy Bonfire and Matchless.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner report that peonies have sold unusually well with them this year and say it is the best season they have ever had. They are offering a new late red that has been selling at top notch prices all season and which will be quite a factor in the market in a few more years.

Joe Doluey, William Lorman and John Steinmetz, of the A. L. Randall Co., motored to Bluff Lake, in the latter's car, Sunday, June 24, on a little fishing trip and succeeded in catching a few croppies and pickerel.

Miss Kreiger, who has been assisting John Mangel at his Palmer House establishment, is now in charge of his new branch store at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Herman Rogers, with Weiland & Risch, leaves July 1 to spend a few weeks with his family, who are now making their home at Detroit, Mich.

The National Plant & Flower Company, 1249 West Sixty-first street, has planted several of its new Ickes-Braun houses to chrysanthemums.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. received two more carloads of palms from Belgium last Saturday, July 24, which makes seven that have already arrived and two more are expected to reach here soon. The stock came through in very fine shape and some of it was sold almost as soon as it was unpacked. This firm has had a tremendous call for chrysanthemum stock this season and is practically cleaned up on all varieties, including pompons. Tony Gabel says that the field grown carnation plants are looking fine and that the heavy rains the past few weeks seem to have done them more good than harm. John Poehlmann has placed on order for a new Winton Six.

Peter Reinberg booked an order for 25,000 field-grown carnation plants this week, which was the first one received this season but which will probably be followed by many others now that they are advertised for sale and are ready for immediate shipment. The stock in the field is in splendid shape this season and Superintendent Reichling says that he has never seen Reinberg's plants in better condition. Peter Reinberg and wife are planning on taking in the sights at Yellowstone Park. Peter Baumann of the store force will take his vacation next week and will spend it with his folks at Niles Center. Herbert Hansen, who is in Kansas City, Mo., is expected home July 1.

Robert roses are in good demand at George Reinberg's store and are bringing good prices for so late in the season. Sunburst are in good crop with him now and are having a good call. Fred. Nichols who has been on the sick list for several weeks, is back on the job again. Frank Hagen is thinking of going into vaudeville as soon as he can teach his pet frog to sing all the popular songs of the day and will hold his first rehearsal Saturday afternoon, July 1, at 3 p. m. Everybody is welcome.

Edw. E. McMorran & Co., 166 North Clinton street, manufacture the Peerless powder blower that so many of the growers in this vicinity are using to destroy mildew and which should come in mighty handy right at present, judging from the large amount of mildewed roses that are arriving in the market now. The Peerless blower can be obtained from any of the supply houses or direct from the manufacturers, who always have a large supply in stock.

J. A. Budlong is growing a large variety of roses this season and the shipments now include Hoosier Beauty, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Double Pink Killarney, Double White Killarney, Pink Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Ophelia, Sunburst, Milady, Lady Alice Stanley, Champ Weiland, Tipperary, Rhea Reid, Francis Scott Key, Mrs. Bayard Thayer, Cecile Brunner, George Elgar and Baby Doll.

Allie Zech and wife, mother, sister Carrie and brother Leo will motor to La Porte, Ind., next week, where they will spend the Fourth with relatives. Trade at this house is remarkably good and Allie says that the sales this month, up to Friday, June 23, were equal to those of the entire corresponding month last year.

Harry Smyth and Frank Posternik will be the first of the Ernest Wienhoeber Floral Co.'s store employees to enjoy their vacations and will take to the tall timbers next week. Mr. Wienhoeber is supplying his trade with a choice grade of peonies which he grew himself at his home in Highland Park.

W. M. Rudd is a grandpapa, his oldest daughter Helen having presented him this week with a boy, David Rudd Arnold. Mrs. Arnold of Galesburg was formerly well known to members of the Society of American Florists, having frequently attended the annual conventions with her father.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are handling a fine supply of outdoor flowers in addition to a large quantity of roses from the Pyfer & Olsen greenhouses at Wilmette. Larkspurs, canterbury bells and delphiniums are the principal offerings in the miscellaneous outdoor stock.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting heavily in roses and are showing very fancy Mrs. Chas. Russell, Rhea Reid and Ophelia. C. L. Washburn says that business is keeping up surprisingly well, especially as far as the out-of-town demand is concerned.

The John Kruchten Co. is offering a large quantity of fine carnations, which are looking unusually fine for stock cut so late in the season and which are moving nicely, owing to their splendid quality.

Erne & Klingel are having a brisk call for delphiniums which they are handling in quantity in the blue, dark blue and pink shades. Harry Robinson, formerly with A. Lange, joined their staff this week.

M. C. Gunterberg is undecided just where she will spend her vacation, but it would not be at all surprising if she attended the next S. A. F. convention at Houston.

Chas. W. McKellar is still on the sick list and is unable to attend to his duties at the store, which are being carefully looked after by his able assistant, Frank Ayres.

Lyon & Healy have a very pretty outdoor window decoration at their South Wabash avenue store that has a sort of back to nature call right in it.

Practically all the wholesale stores will close at 5 p. m. during July, August and September, starting Saturday, July 1.

It is rumored that a new retail store will be opened in the loop on East Madison street near Michigan avenue.

D. E. Freres and wife will leave soon for Deep Lake on a two weeks' fishing trip.

PROFITABLE SEASON CLOSES STRONG.

During the past week numerous commencement exercises, weddings and funeral work all helped to do away with a good share of the ever increasing supply of cut flowers. Roses, carnations, sweet peas, delphiniums and peonies are the most numerous; in fact, the local grown peonies are in their prime and the majority are of good quality. About the only article which is, and has been, scarce of late, is lily of the valley. With the closing of the schools and the exodus of the summer resorters, the 1915-16 season is rapidly coming to an end, and without doubt it has been a profitable one to both retailer and grower.

HOLTON & HUNKEL CO.'S OUTING.

With ideal weather, plenty of good things to drink and eat, fine music and games galore, the employees of the Holton & Hunkel Co., as guests of the firm, had a most enjoyable time Sunday, June 25, at Ehler's Grove. Brown Deer, and it was quite a gathering. Sixty-five employees plus their wives, sweethearts and children, were on hand, all in the best of spirits. The games were completed in apple pie order, the following being the fortunate prize winners.

GOOD STOCK IN PLentiful SUPPLY.

Trade conditions here are about the same as last reported. The stocks are complete, and with the ideal, cool weather that prevails all outdoor flowers are in fine condition. Sweet peas are still making a good showing. Cecile Brunner roses are plentiful, and with the addition of gladioli, zinnias, etc., the supply is complete. The attendance of about 12,000 Knights Templar at a conclave created a good call for flowers and held sales up to the high standard set during the spring.

NOTES.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., report good trade in all departments. They had orders for several elaborate wedding decorations and their force has been kept busy, both locally and out of town. They seem to be well supplied with stock, with the possible exception of roses.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson report business about normal. They have been making an exceedingly fine showing of Ulrich Brunner roses, of which they had a fine supply.

Howard & Smith report good business in all lines. The visit of the Knights Templar and their ladies resulted in considerable additional business during the week.

Business at the Broadway Florists is steadily increasing, and Oscar Paseman has been added to the staff at this establishment.

O. C. Saakes has been strong on fine Sunburst and Tipperary roses and reports business up to the average for the season.

BUSINESS CONFORMS TO SUMMER.

There has been quite a change in market conditions during the past week, and with the summer days at hand, some of the stores are not as busy as they might wish. Stock is in splendid condition and most of it is plentiful, carnations especially, on which the price is very low. Sweet peas were never better for this time of the year and gladioli are showing marked improvement. Weddings and funerals are numerous.

NOTES.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports summer business started well. This firm held its annual picnic at its greenhouses and the event was largely attended. C. G. Blackenberry, of this firm, will spend his vacation in Kansas and may also visit Texas.

T. J. Noll & Co. are looking forward to a good summer trade. They will open their new display room for supplies this week. Mr. Noll will leave for Chicago on a business trip July 5.

W. J. Barnes continues busy with orders for weddings and funerals. The greenhouses are in excellent condition and the stock looks very promising for fine crops later on.

Ed. A. Humfeld will leave about July 1 for the Ozarks, where he owns a home at Hahatonka. He will return about September 15.

H. Kusik & Co. are receiving about 3,000 local grown carnations daily. Their supply of outdoor stock in other lines is heavy.

Arthur Newell reports everything moving along nicely and anticipates a good summer business.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting a fine supply of roses, which meet with ready sale.

S. Bryson Ayres is cutting excellent sweet peas, gladioli and gypsophila.

HOT WEATHER AND DULL TRADE.

The present writing finds the usual summer business depression in force, but with such scorching weather as we have been having of late, one cannot expect a normal trade to be the rule. There is a good supply of everything at present, the growers of outside flowers being the main contributors of stock. The June wedding season being over, we are now ready for the vacation period. The call to the Mexican border did not affect the regular forces of the local houses to any marked degree, as the florists, apparently, are kept too busy to be afforded the chance of joining the militia. The plantsmen continue their busy season and are certainly "making hay while the sun shines." The carnival men are seemingly the only ones doing a large business, and can usually be depended upon to clean up the surplus and leftovers.

NOTES.

A visit to the Harmony Nurseries at Evans City last week found the force busy erecting 40,000 square feet of new glass, which will be entirely completed and planted with roses by the middle of July. A large field of gladioli and asters will be yielding very soon. H. F. Blind, the superintendent, is working on many new plans, which will be realized before fall, including a private railroad siding, larger boiler house and large dam on the Connequeness Creek, which runs by the plant.

Joseph E. Bonsall is back in the flower business again this summer, growing outside specialties, which are handled by the McCallum Company.

W. A. Clarke, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., and Mrs. Clarke, left last week for a tour of the Pacific coast country.

Congratulations are in order for Mr. and Mrs. E. J. McCallum, the event being the arrival of a robust baby boy recently.

M.

New Haven, Conn.

The New Haven florists seem prosperous, though among the growers there is considerable uneasiness, due to the effect the continued cool and wet weather may have on planted out stock. This much is already known, that the heavy rains have greatly damaged the peonies. The retailers generally agree that they have had a good season and are yet busy. At the stores of Charles Munro, John N. Champion & Co., the S. H. Moore Co., and Myers Flower Shop, all Chapel street retailers, the reports were cheerful.

John Long, of East Haven, is one of the most, if not the most successful of growers in this part of the state. He has a large glass area and turns out a large amount of fine stock, his carnations being particularly noteworthy. Although it has been bad weather for carnations in the field, his stock looks very promising. The past week was commencement week at Yale University and there were many visitors in the city, which improved business for nearly every line, including the florist.

M. B. Farquharson, who now has the store at 123 Church street, formerly conducted by A. T. Osterman, seems to have a good trade.

Cowan & Heller, 748 Chapel street, have closed their store and it is understood will engage in another line of business.

The New Haven Horticultural Society held its annual rose show June 27-28 in the public library building.

Myer Wilson, 56 Congress avenue, states that his business has been excellent.

The Doolittle Floral Co. has had an active season in plants.

A. F. F.

Cleveland.

AN ABUNDANCE OF SEASONABLE STOCK.

There is still an abundance of stock of every description in the wholesale market, and the quality for this season of the year is remarkably good. Larkspurs, both light and dark blue, have been much in demand and several events during the coming week will require large quantities; many bunches arrive in which all sprays are four and one-half to five feet long. White phlox is also good stock, and in great demand. Candidum lilies have begun to arrive. Peonies are about done for, a few remaining in storage for late orders for decorations. Stocks of pink and white gaillardias, coreopsis, Jap lilies, and swainsonas arrive daily. The supply of carnations is on the decline. Easter lilies move fairly well. Roses are arriving in good supply and of excellent quality. Killarney being very fine, as are Maryland and Ophelia. Long American Beauties are in ample supply and in good demand. Good fancy ferns are arriving. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

The florists' club will hold its annual picnic at Willough Beach park, same place as last year, Thursday, July 20. Messrs. Ritzenthaler, Cook, and Graham are on the committee. A good time is assured. Bring the children.

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. Florists say that business is keeping up very well. There have been several large weddings of late and the call for funeral designs has been heavier than usual.

The flower garden in Wheeler park is still under several feet of water and the probabilities are that the planting is entirely ruined for this year at least. In addition to the loss in the park, about 15 acres of bottom land near the city, planted to catalpa seedlings, have been under water for over a week, and are likely to remain so for some time yet; these will no doubt all be killed.

On June 23, we had a terrific hail storm. Some of the pieces of ice that fell were 2½ inches in diameter, the storm lasting about 15 minutes, followed by a 2-inch rainfall inside of 45 minutes, which flooded the city so as to tie up all transportation in some districts for several hours. So far we have no report of any glass being broken, the storm being purely local.

STOCK IN FINE CONDITION.

Owing to the continued cool weather the condition of all classes of stock is very fine for the season. There have been quantities of out-door flowers of all kinds; the sweet peas are now in full swing and while the crop is large and the quality good, they have been greatly handicapped with the continuous rains. Larkspurs, corn flowers, gaillardias and other like stock is very plentiful, and considering the quantity offered, sells up very well. Outside peonies are done, as is much of the stored stock, which has been drawn on quite heavily the past two weeks. Dorothy Perkins and rambler rose sprays are now at their best. If Burbank, or some other thornless wizard, would only get busy with the Dorothy he would surely receive the thanks of all branches of the craft. Cattleyas are more than equal to the demand—Mossia and gigas are fine. Lily of the valley is getting scarce. Now that the June weddings are over the growers are holding for the fall demand and little will be sent to market that is not sure of a sale.

NOTES.

The Pelham greenhouses of E. Geshick, at Johnson street and Germantown avenue, form, with the store, as complete a retail establishment as one could wish to see. There are a number of greenhouses, all filled the season round with seasonable crops, which follow one another with as little intermission as possible. Cyclamens, begonias and poinsettias are even now being gotten into that state of preparedness that would insure their being at their very best on the firing line at Christmas. A house of cattleyas on a step stage, with a full bed of asparagus beneath, also beds of the same in other houses, with high three-quarter tables over head, showed how two crops could be gotten out of the same floor space. Large beds of chrysanthemums were making good progress; in fact the whole place was in the best possible up-to-date condition. Mrs. Geshick and her sister are valuable assistants, having charge of the retailing. Two Ford cars care for the deliveries.

Eugene Bernheimer, who has conducted business on Sixteenth street below Market for the past 10 years, has moved to 1531 Ransdell street, opposite the wholesale depot of the Jos. Heacock Co., where he will have greatly increased facilities. The Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., are sending some fine Prima Donna roses to the Bernheimer market.

M. Schurgot, Hunting Park avenue and Germantown road, had an unpleasant experience last week with a drunken man who was attempting to steal plants from the front of the store. Mr. Schurgot, who was ill and in no condition to cope with the intruder, was getting the worst of it when neighbors came to his rescue and the man was arrested.

The Philadelphia Colonial Decorative Co. had the order for the leading float in the Ad' Men's parade, June 19. American Beauty and other roses, Easter lilies and sweet peas were used lavishly. Nothing artificial was al-

The M. Rice Co. has newly prepared oak leaf branches, called "Christmas red." They can be used to make splendid decorative effects. The new factory is almost under roof. It will be one of the finest buildings of its kind in the country when finished.

The meeting of the creditors of L. P. Vallery, June 24, developed nothing new. There is a lease of 14 months on the store, for which the business is liable, and this being a first lien against the property, it will in some way have to be provided for.

Wm. Berger & Sons Company, Germantown, are much pleased with their new Studebaker delivery car. They have found it wonderfully efficient, after a two months' trial. Weddings and funeral work the past two weeks have kept them very busy.

Business holds up well with the Leo. Niessen Co. American Beauties, gladioli, sweet peas and Dorothy Perkins roses are leaders. Fine cattleyas are also seen in quantity.

S. S. Pennock has returned from the inspection of the rose test gardens at Ithaca. As in Washington, they were unfortunately not quite far enough advanced to properly show the good qualities of but few of the varieties.

Top roses in all the popular varieties, notably, eastern American Beauties, local Kaiserin and Maryland, are the special features of the Edward Reid stock. Business is all O. K. for the season.

The Berger Bros. Central Market is moving things nicely for summer time. Hollandia and America gladioli are features, as are also choice outdoor orchid sweet peas.

CALL FOR FUNERAL WORK BRISK.

Stock is plentiful but aside from a few small weddings there is not much to look forward to. Funeral work, however, has been exceptionally good, especially with the downtown stores. Rambler roses, both pink, white and red, are quite a help and Japanese iris, which is in good supply, adds to the window decorations.

NOTES.

W. B. Shaw's gardens at Kenilworth suffered considerable damage from high water during the past week, much of the young stock on the banks being washed out. Mrs. Fowler is still bringing in enough pond lilies to supply the trade, however.

Commencing June 20 most of the stores are closing at 6 p. m. with a half day on Sundays. This is much appreciated by all of the employees.

W. W. Kimmell, wife and family, will leave about July 1 for Colonial Beach, where they have one of the most attractive places on the bay.

Geo. Leissler, one of the largest growers of Japanese iris in this vicinity, delivers stock to the local trade every morning.

Hugh Jack, formerly in charge of the estate of H. Nages, has taken a position in the department of agriculture.

DEMAND AND SUPPLY BOTH LIGHT.

During the past week business was quiet in the wholesale district, with some improvement, June 23-24. The supply of good stock has been light, but so has the demand. Lily of the valley keeps well up in price; from $4 to $6 per 100 is being paid, and $8 has been asked, and in some instances paid for very fine stock. Special American Beauty roses have run pretty even at from $15 to $25 per 100, but $30 was the asking price, June 24. The greater part of the peony trade is over for this season. With this flower it has been a case of "welcome the stranger, speed the parting guest." When the first lots came in they went very well, but the continued bad weather had a deteriorating effect on the crop, and when they arrived in great volume they came to be a positive nuisance. We believe it was Jean Paul who wrote of a certain summer that: "It was only a winter painted green." Thus far, this has been a most unusual summer in this vicinity, and it now appears that outdoor stock, particularly carnation plants, may suffer on account of continued rain. As might be expected, the weather is largely the cause of so much poor greenhouse stock arriving.

June 26. — The week's business started under improved conditions. The supply of good stock is light, particularly roses, and good prices are being realized. The peony supply is much lighter and good stock brings 50 cents and upward per dozen. Lily of the valley seems a little slow this morning, but good stock brings $6 per 100. Lilies are slow. There is a fair supply of carnations, going at about $1.50 per 100 for the best.

NOTES.

The seventh infantry, New York's crack regiment, left June 26 for some point on the frontier. Among the members of this regiment are Captain Joseph G. Leikens, a well known florist of Madison avenue and 55th street, and Corporal Arthur M. Clarke, a son of Marshall Clarke of David Clarke's Sons, Broadway and 75th street. Captain Leikens is married, but has no children. Corporal Clarke has a wife and two children. Julius Mason, late with the Kervan Co., 119 West 28th street, left with the seventy-first regiment as a private. There were the usual fervent and affecting scenes of such an occasion as good-bys were said. Another florist who has gone to the front with the seventh regiment is Charles H. Brown, Jr., son of Charles H. Brown, the well known retailer of 2366 Broadway. Young Brown recently returned from France, where he saw hard service in the ambulance corps.

Thomas Martin, former head salesman for Traendly & Schenck, who has for several months been at a resort in Sullivan County, N. Y., for the benefit of his health, was called to his home in this city, June 23, on account of the serious illness of his brother, Charles Martin, who died on the night of June 24, aged 29 years. Pneumonia caused his death. He had been a clerk in the New York Stock Exchange.

It is stated that a movement is on foot to beautify the high buildings in the down town districts by a profuse display of blooming plants in window boxes. A committee to carry out the scheme was organized, June 27.

Several well known florists of this city who were members of the state militia will come under the provisions of the new law drafting them into the regular army. Further particulars will be found elsewhere.

Gardeners' Outing at Cromwell, Conn.

The field day at Cromwell Gardens, Connecticut, June 21, brought together a representative number of members of the National Association of Gardeners and the American Association of Park Superintendents from New York and New England points. The visitors were met by representatives of A. N. Pierson, Inc., at the trains, as they arrived at Hartford and Middletown, and were escorted to the hotel at Middletown, where they were received by Wallace R. Pierson and entertained at luncheon, after which the party proceeded to Cromwell. Arriving at Cromwell Gardens, the guests were greeted by A. N. Pierson who welcomed them to the establishment of the company of which he is the head, after which the chiefs of the different departments escorted the visitors about the gardens and through the large ranges.

Looking down upon the gardens on the approach from the roadway, the eye beheld a magnificent sight in the acres of plantings which were one mass of gorgeous color. The rose garden was the center of attraction, although the visitors found much of interest in the different outdoor departments, including the rock garden, which is now under course of construction. The mammoth greenhouses proved a revelation to some of the visiting gardeners, where roses, carnations and chrysanthemum plants, in untold quantities, were found in excellent condition, as were also the many other varieties of flowering and foliage plants in which this company specializes.

The company maintains its own dairy, private water system and box factory, and after the inspection of the entire plant, the opinion was generally expressed that Cromwell Gardens may appropriately be classed as a "plant growing industry." All the details for the entertainment of the party were carefully planned—the usual afternoon rain was not even omitted. The visitors enjoyed their visit to Cromwell Gardens and when they entered the automobiles to make their train connections for home, they were in one accord that the day had been one full of interest and instruction.

GOOD SUPPLY; PRICES MODERATE.

The supply continues heavy and includes enough good stock to take care of all present demands. Prices are not very high. Roses of all kinds are plentiful. Some excellent American Beauties, Taft, Sunburst and My Maryland may be had. Besides these, good ramblers and Dorothy Perkins are still coming into the wholesale houses. The cut of carnations is not nearly as large as it was. Easter lilies are plentiful. Hardy hydrangeas have been added to the list of offerings and gladioli are in fair supply and sell well. Lily of the valley is meeting with an excellent call and is bringing top prices. Other offerings include orchids, Shasta daisies, water lilies, larkspurs, snapdragons, coreopsis and corn flowers.

NOTES.

The Wm. Murphy Co. is having a very heavy call for yellow roses for weddings.

John Rutenschroer has been sending some excellent larkspurs to C. E. Critchell.

Frank Kyrk and wife are the proud parents of a baby girl born June 21.

Visitors: Warren Huckleberry, North Vernon, Ind.; J. T. Herdegen, Aurora, Ind., and Jos. Hill, Richmond, Ind.

New Bedford, Conn.

A. C. Strom started a retail store at 26 Main street about five years ago. He had very little capital, but he understood the business and has great energy. He has been so successful that early this year he bought the range of Fred Franzis at Plantsville, Conn., which contains about 14,000 square feet of glass with land adjoining for gardening. With his usual energy he has set to work to improve the place.

Mrs. Elizabeth Eggert, 42 Whiting street, who leased her greenhouses for a time, has taken them again. She is one of the oldest florists, in point of service, in New Britain.

At the range of the Volz Floral Co., Inc., 90 West Main street, we noticed improvements being made. This firm has a neat range and is doing a good business.

Our old friend, Carl Lorenzen, 59 Church street, continues active in both the florist and seed business, which he says has been very good.

R. B. Viets, 48 Clinton street, has a considerable glass area and a good business.

The florists of New Britain report having had a good season.

Postal Receipts Break All Records.

Postal receipts for the last two quarters broke all records, aggregating $84,564,447.21 for the quarter ending December 31, 1915, and $79,699,622.44 for the quarter ending March 31, 1916. Prospects are that the total postal receipts for the current fiscal year, ending June 30, will amount at least to $305,000,000, and will exceed the receipts for the last banner year, 1914, by from fifteen to twenty million dollars.

Bellingham, Wash., Rose Show.

The thirteenth annual exhibition of the Rosarians opened June 23, in the Bellingham National Bank building, continuing two days, and was a splendid success. There were 56 exhibitors, all of whom showed flowers of the highest quality. Among the most beautiful displays were those staged by the Bellingham Floral Co. and John Gibson, city superintendent of parks. Other splendid exhibits that were among the prize winners were made by Dr. C. H. McLeod, A. J. Blythe, Dr. J. F. Mills, Mrs. A. W. Hastings and Mrs. F. F. Willard.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Thirty-Fourth Annual Convention, Chicago, June 20-22.

The Officers Elect:

Thursday's Proceedings.

The first business of the morning session was the address of Robert E. Belt of the Federal trade commission, Washington, D. C., on "Accounting and Business Methods", in which he referred to publications to be issued by the commission and one already issued by its vice-chairman, entitled, "Healthful Activities and Constructive Business," which is merely an outline, but other publications going into details are now being prepared and will probably be ready for distribution within a month. Any one interested can have these upon request. On motion of B. P. Corneli, of St. Louis, Mo., a vote of thanks was extended to the speaker by the convention.

The following were elected to membership: Everett R. Peacock Co., Chicago; O. M. Scott & Sons Co., Marysville, O.; Griswold Seed & Nursery Co., Lincoln, Neb.; Jacot-Muller, Inc., New York; Curtis Nye Smith (honorary) Boston, Mass.

The report of the committee on legislation was read by W. G. Scarlett, chairman. This was followed by the report of Counsel Curtis Nye Smith. In connection with the report, he stated that he had received a communication from the superintendent of weights and measures of New York state, advising that arguments advanced by counsel had been sustained and that hereafter seeds sold in bulk, but in containers, would not be subject to the requirement of individually labeling each bag; in other words the seedsmen had been upheld. The announcement was received with applause. The report of the counsel was received and his various recommendations concurred in. A. E. McKenzie, chairman, read the report of the special committee relative to co-operative sales departments established by state departments in some sections for the purpose of bringing together growers and purchasers of seeds, and recommended that a standing committee of five to act during the coming year and report at the next meeting be appointed. On motion of Watson D. Woodruff, the report was received and the recommendation was concurred in.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Disclaimer Resolution.

Resolved, that this association is opposed to any legislation affecting the germination of seeds, nullifying the disclaimer, or interfering with interstate commerce.

At the election of officers for the ensuing year, nominations being called for by President Lupton, the name of Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., was presented by Watson S. Woodruff, following a neat speech. The nomination was seconded by F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., and there being no other candidates the secretary was ordered to cast the ballot of the convention and the chair declared Mr. White elected as president for the ensuing year. Other officers elected were: F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., first vice president; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., second vice-president; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., secretary-treasurer. Executive committee: J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, N. Y.; J. L. Hunt, Cambridge, N. Y.; Howard M. Earl, Philadelphia, Pa.; Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; W. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md. Membership committee: J. C. Robinson, Waterloo, Neb.; B. P. Corneli, St. Louis, Mo.; H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.
First Vice-Pres. American Seed Trade Ass'n.

On motion of J. C. Robinson, the salary of the secretary-treasurer was continued at the same figure, and a proper appropriation made for the work of the legislative committee. The secretary read a letter from Chas. C. Moore, president of the Panama-Pacific exposition, thanking the association for its co-operation in making the San Francisco exposition the magnificent success it proved to be.

Invitations to hold the 1917 convention at Baltimore, New Orleans, St. Louis, and other cities were read, but the convention was so pleased with the success of the Chicago meeting, and the unprecedented attendance, larger than before realized, that the feeling was to make that city permanent headquarters, but Watson S. Woodruff suggested as a compromise that they alternate between the east and west,

New York one year and Chicago the next. On motion of A. E. McKenzie the matter was referred to the executive committee with power to act.

President White Installed.

The president-elect was escorted to the stage by a special committee consisting of F. W. Bolgiano and J. Chas. McCullough, where he was received by retiring president Lupton, welcomed to his new duties, and being duly installed, presided during the balance of the morning session. President White called the attention of the convention to the fact that he had met the committee half way, but absolutely refused to commit himself further by any speech at this time except the eloquent one of "I thank you." President White overruled a motion that the convention adjourn, made by past president Lupton, stating that there was further business, and J. S. Michael of Sioux City, Ia., facing Mr. Lupton, requested the attention of that gentleman and the other members and after recounting the retiring executive's many virtues in eloquent words, presented him and his wife with a magnificent mahogany chime clock with accompanying candelabra. Mr. Lupton, in a few well chosen words, gracefully responded, thanking the donors for their kind remembrance, adding that it would be a continual reminder with its musical chimes, of friends who hold a warm spot in the hearts of himself and his life companion. The convention then adjourned sine die, and thus passed into history as one of the largest and most successful meetings ever held by the association, proving that the efforts of the Chicago seedsmen had borne good fruit.

Greetings to L. L. Morse, San Francisco.

The following telegram was sent June 22 to Lester L. Morse, past president, who officiated at the San Francisco convention:

We are very sorry not to have you with us. All the "boys" send cordial greetings and recall with great pleasure your presence four years ago as well as the great time you gave us last summer. Here's to you, Lester.

Report on President's Address.

The committee on president's address, composed of S. F. Willard, chairman; E. L. Page, J. C. Vaughan, C. C. Massie and H. M. Earl, reported at the Wednesday morning session that it commended his recommendations that the association support all reasonable seed legislation and insist that the same shall be both workable and universally applicable, considering neither merchant nor grower above the law; also that the cental system be recommended for general use in the catalogues and price lists of members beginning on or before January 1, 1917, or as soon thereafter as practical. The committee expressed pleasure at the great gain that had already been made in the cental system plan during the last year and the belief that the time was near when its use would be universal. The recommendation that the counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, be retained at the usual fee, was also favorably reported. The recommendations of the committee were unanimously adopted.

Non-Warranty Recommendations.

At the afternoon session Wednesday the report of the committee on recommendations on the president's address was resumed and almost the entire period was devoted to the discussion of views respecting the recommendation regarding the non-warranty clause. Arthur Bryan Clark, president of the Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn., presented his conclusions fully and Kirby B. White, as the main speaker on the subject, asked that the report of the committee be approved. After he had concluded and all other speakers had been heard the report of the committee which follows was adopted almost unanimously:

Whereas, There has been some recent discussion as to the attitude of the American Seed Trade Association as to the use of the customary seedsmen's non-warranty clause, and

Whereas, It is advisable that there be no occasion for misunderstanding in the matter as to the association's position, therefore be it

Resolved, (1) That the association holds, as it has held from its inception, that the vendor of seeds cannot reasonably become responsible for any characteristic or property of seeds which cannot be absolutely determined before delivery.

(2) That because of fraud practiced upon seedsmen when they did not disclaim responsibility for the potential worth of seeds, a form of non-warranty has developed which has been declared valid by various high courts of law.

(3) That the non-warranty clause is essentially as follows: Messrs. _____ give no warranty, expressed or implied, as to description, purity, productiveness or any other matter of any seeds they send out and they will not be in any way responsible for the crop. If the purchaser does not accept the goods on these terms they are to be returned at once.

(4) That since the validity of non-warranty is buttressed by its almost universal use, we reaffirm our recommendation that no member of the association fail to make the non-warranty clause a condition of his contracts of sale.

(5) That we reaffirm our recognition of the peculiar obligation the use of non-warranty imposes upon us. While it protects no one from the consequences of his own fraudulent action, ignorant or malicious reports to the contrary notwithstanding, it may allow him to escape from the results of lack of due care. Thus the public is compelled to trust to the seedsman's skill and caution. Therefore should there be lack of proper care on the part of the seedsman, he would be guilty of a breach of trust.

(G) That finally we urge our members cordially to co-operate in defending the non-warranty. It has come to us as an evolution of bitter experience. To impair its force by breaking down the universality of its use or to make it the refuge of the unscrupulous is to injure us all.

Joint Committee on Nomenclature.

H. G. Hastings, chairman of the committee on nomenclature of the association, reported that he had received a communication from J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., chairman of the joint committee on nomenclature of the American Association of Nurserymen and the Ornamental Growers' Association, reporting that such committee had held a meeting at which it was resolved to ask the co-operation of organizations of similar ideals and similar needs to the end that there may be formed a more comprehensive joint committee later, to organize at its own pleasure, for carrying on the work of systematizing and standardizing scientific and common names of plants, trees, shrubs, seeds, etc., in all the horticultural trades in order to promote and make easier the buying of these products. Mr. McFarland pointed out the fact that it would be an obvious advantage to the American Seed Trade Association if that organization could authorize its committee to co-operate with and become a part of this joint committee. Co-operation has already been arranged for with the Society of Landscape Architects and with the American Association of Park Superintendents. He also suggested in his communication that a reasonable sum be placed at the disposal of whatever committee is appointed by the seedsmen so that a joint committee, if favorably considered, may be on a parity so far as expenditures were concerned, with the nurserymen and ornamental growers' organizations.

Report of Committee on Resolutions.

During the past year the American Seed Trade Association has lost several of its most valued members, including two past presidents. It is with sorrow that we record the following memoriams:

W. ATLEE BURPEE.

As we meet in annual convention we are deeply conscious of the great loss we have sustained by the death of W. Atlee Burpee, a man whom to know was to respect and honor. In his 40 years of service in the seed trade he dignified his calling, and by his fine judgment, ability and energy added much to the beauty and value of the world's products. In our deep sorrow we rejoice that we have had for so many years his genial presence and wise counsel.

ALBERT MC CULLOUGH.

In the death of Albert McCullough the association has lost one of its most honored and useful members, who served for a number of years as secretary, for two terms as president, and for a number of years as chairman of its membership committee, testifying very strongly to the deep interest he took in the association's welfare and success, and the association hereby expresses to his family and business associates its heartfelt sympathy in our mutual loss. He had endeared himself to the seed trade and the members of the association very strongly by his sterling personal characteristics. His integrity, unfailing courtesy and kindness of heart, will long remain as a pleasant memory to his business friends and associates.

E. J. SHEAP.

E. J. Sheap, vice-president of the S. M. Isbell Company, Jackson, Mich., died at his home in that city, March 24, 1916, as the result of an operation. He had been identified with the seed trade since 1900, and had always taken a very active interest in all matters connected with the growing and producing of seeds. He made many friends and retained them and his untimely death will be keenly felt by all with whom he came in contact.

ALFRED BOSS.

Alfred Ross died May 14, 1916. He was born at Mill Creek, Va., July 18, 1849. He engaged in the seed business in 1884. His business relations were always conducted in accordance with the "Golden Rule." His sense of fairness and justness resulted in the making and keeping of innumerable friends and each feels that they have met with a personal loss in his sudden death.

E. REECE.

E. Reece, senior member of McKay, Reece & Co., Nashville, Tenn., died unexpectedly April 1, 1916. Mr. Reece had been prominently and actively engaged in several large enterprises, but for the past 20 years he gave his entire time and attention to the seed business. He served throughout the civil war, and rendered to the confederate army such valuable service that he was specially rewarded. Mr. Reece will be greatly missed in a large circle of friends and business acquaintances, as well as among the members of the association.

California Seed Crops.

There is an unusually strong demand for all seed crops that are being produced on the coast. In a general way the spring may definitely be called a dry one, and more rains would have been advantageous, still, on the whole, soil conditions are not bad.

The high prices paid for commercial beans have influenced the average farmer to put his crop into edible beans rather than look after seed stocks. The prospects for a good crop of lima beans are said to be excellent.

Onion is looking fairly good, lettuce and sweet peas rather poor, and carrot and radish fair. It is believed that the onion seed crop generally is practically out of danger from the mildew. It is thought the onion crop is a little short of last year's. Salsify is likely to be somewhat short, which also applies to carrot.

Nasturtiums, both tall and dwarf, are behaving very badly, and the prospects are for very short delivery on contract.

Sweet peas have again been attacked by the aphid.

Peas and Beans.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 27.—Latest reports from the west indicate only a fair prospect for peas. The weather has been altogether too cold and peas have been stunted in their growth. There is only a fair stand in most cases, and we can not hope for a full crop. It is too early to make any estimates of crops.

Beans are coming up but look pretty sickly. We need hot weather, and must have it pretty soon or we get no beans in Michigan. Crops in the west look fairly good but need warmer weather. Everything is very late and the outcome all depends upon our having a late fall and some good growing weather in the meantime. B.

In the general review of crop conditions, June 1, according to the monthly crop report of the United States department of agriculture based on a 10 year average, clover is 108.8 and field beans, 103.4 per cent.

Dutch Bulbs.

Rotterdam, Holland, June 5.—Among Dutch growers many rumors are afloat regarding the English embargo. Some now claim that the English merchants will be granted a special license to import one-third their usual supply, but the truth of this rumor has not yet been verified. Dutch growers have overbooked their crops and the quality will not be up to standard, owing to neglect at planting time and the cold spring. Thousands of diseased narcissus bulbs will be thrown away. Hyacinths, crocus and iris will be plentiful; spirea scarce.

Many fields of narcissus intended for the English trade have been plowed up and the field planted with cabbages and beans. Vegetable crops have been increased.

Foreign Notes.

Jackman's Clematis Crimson King, mentioned in our issue of June 24 as one of the most striking novelties at the recent Chelsea show of the Royal Horticultural Society of England, is of the Jackmannii type.

European papers record the death of E. Neubert, the Hamburg lily of the valley specialist, in his eighty-fifth year.

English growers are agitating in favor of legislation to establish ownership in plant novelties.

AN advice from Portland, Me., says: "It is predicted by several factors that at least 25 per cent of the sweet corn acreage in Maine will not be planted. There is never much corn planted in any section of the state after June 10. Much of the corn land not planted before that date is now so wet that it would be impossible to work on it."

THE wedding is announced of Frank Goodwin Cuthbertson, with C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, Calif., and Miss Evelyn Mathilde McLean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George McLean, of that city. At home, 6109 California street, after July 1.

THE Rocky Ford crop of vine seed will be from 50 to 75 per cent greater than the average season's planting. Very little planting was done until about May 20. The ground is in favorable condition.

CAMP CURRY, CALIF.—John and John C. Bodger and their ladies arrived here June 9 in a new Studebaker, two days' run from Los Angeles. They have made Glacier Point and will return home via the coast.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Chicago, left the closing day of the seed trade convention for the east, where he will visit Commodore Westcott at his clubhouse, Waretown, N. J., on Barnegat bay.

CABLE advice from Ollioules, France, of June 15, reports that not only the Roman hyacinths, but the Paper White Grandiflora and the Trumpet Major, are likely to be poor crop.

THE John H. Allan Seed Co., Sheboygan, Wis., reports considerable damage to Michigan and Wisconsin crops by rains, the extent of which has not yet been determined.

J. J. H. GREGORY & SON, Marblehead, Mass., report that they were unusually late in getting out their seed specialties on account of unfavorable weather.

Next annual convention will be held September, 1916.

THE monthly report issued by the United States secretary of agriculture shows the following crop conditions June 1: Cantaloupes, 101.9; watermelons, 100.8; cabbages, 99.8; onions, 96.8.

THE estimated annual supply of potatoes in the United States based upon a yearly average from 1910-1914 is 363,298,000 bushels, or 3.8 bushels per capita. The average farm price per bushel for the period was 60.7 cents.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables

Chicago, June 27.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 85 cents per pound; lettuce, cases, 10 to 15 cents; radishes, 75 cents to $1.00 per 100 bunches; celery, $1.75 to $2.00 per crate; tomatoes, four baskets, 20 cents to 60 cents; cucumbers, per box of 2 doz., $1.25.

New York, June 27.—Celery, per 12-inch crate, $1.25 to $3.50; cucumbers, 75 cents per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 6 cents to 12 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to 75 cents; lettuce, per strap, $1.50 to $2.50; rhubarb, per 100 bunches, $1.00 to $1.25.

Report of Crop Shipments.

The United States department of agriculture, office of markets and rural organization, under date of June 20, reports the following carload shipments, the figures being the total reported for the season up to that date: Cabbage, (11 states and not including shipments previous to March 25) 4,719 cars; potatoes (13 states, probably incomplete) 8,308 cars; strawberries (23 states) 14,701 cars; tomatoes (six states, and not including shipments previous to March 9) 6,650 cars; cantaloupes (California, Florida and Georgia) 2,702 cars; watermelons (California, Florida and Texas) 1,114 cars.

The Cabbage Maggot.

One of the most serious and hardest pests to control is the cabbage maggot. It attacks the roots of cabbage, cauliflower, kohlrabi, turnips, radishes and also the Chinese cabbage (Pe Tsai). The work is done under ground and the enemy is therefore hard to reach. We find that this pest is also little understood by the public in general. Briefly stated, a fly, very similar to our common house fly, deposits eggs at the ground line of favorite crops, such as the above. Under favorable circumstances, in a week or 10 days the maggots hatch and at once commence to destroy the outer skin or bark of the plants infested. They do this so thoroughly that in a short time, the sap circulation is impeded and often cut off, thus wilting the plants. In radishes, if the crop is well developed when attacked, the roots are badly discolored at first and later badly disturbed, as the attack produces a swelling at first, and later an attempt of the plant to correct the wounds causes a hardening of the tissue. Such radishes are unfit to eat and worthless; among cauliflowers the damage is most serious as the crop will at once button. Cabbage often withstands the ravages of the maggots and recover, but in that case the heads are never hard. Prevention is better than a cure, but neither course has proven a complete success. The flies have generally two breeding periods, May and August, and if we can avoid these periods, we can often get along fairly well. In our location infestation is generally the worst during the first week in May, thus cabbage and cauliflower planted into fields May 10 or after are generally safe, while the earlier lots may be a total loss. This season the loss in early cabbage will be 75 per cent, while last year there was none. The tar paper root collars, if well put on are a help, but the expense and labor are serious. No poison we have tried has given complete relief.

CYCLAMEN

We have from year to year been growing these popular winter flowering plants in steadily increasing quantities. The demand for them is such that our supply of plants, however large it may be, quickly gets exhausted.

Our methods of cultivation have proved singularly successful. The plants are healthy, stocky and strong; the results consequently and invariably satisfactory, both to our many customers and to us.

As to the selection of colors and strains, we have been more careful than ever to get only the best, as can be seen from the following list of international strains, which can be had either in separate colors or assorted. As the orders come in, we pick out the heaviest, best leaved plants of a splendid stock of about 40,000.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;
John Watson, Newark, N. Y., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.

Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 28-30, 1916.

Nursery Stock at Auction.

The Elliott Auction Co., of New York, writes as follows, June 23, with reference to nursery stock at auction: "An auction house planted in Neptune's pond 150 cases of nursery stock. No doubt the finny tribe will appreciate swimming amongst the foliage, but hard to the Dutch consigners. This might be an object lesson to them in the future that this country is no dumping ground for the whole of Holland."

American Association of Nurserymen.

As we go to press, the American Association of Nurserymen is in annual convention at Milwaukee, Wis., the meeting being called to order Wednesday, June 28, and continuing three days, with headquarters at the Hotel Wisconsin. A true spirit of co-operation is manifest at this, the forty-first annual gathering of the members of this organization, with an attendance comparing favorably with any former gathering. With the adoption of the new constitution at the Detroit convention last year, the determination to place the association on the highest possible plane is manifest, both in the substantial increase in membership and the interest taken in the proceedings.

The convention opened on schedule time Wednesday morning with an attendance of some 250. Prayer was offered by Rev. Charles E. Odell, and Mayor Hoan welcomed the visitors. President Welch delivered his annual address and the reports of the secretary and treasurer were presented, the latter showing a balance of $8,000 in favor of the association. There was a lively discussion on excluding associate members from executive sessions. Henry Chase, of Chase, Ala., delivered his address on "The Value of Membership in the American Association of Nurserymen," and W. H. Wyman, Abington, Mass., read his paper on "A Practical Business Meeting of Nurserymen," emphasizing the necessity of keeping nursery business for nurserymen.

The quality of the programme arranged for this meeting has probably never been excelled in the history of the association, the wide range of topics and discussions being full of interest and profit. The following papers in addition to those read at the opening session will be presented during the convention: "A Greater American Association of Nurserymen," by J. R. Mayhew, Waxahatchie, Tex.; "Who Shall Receive Trade Prices", by John H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; "A Safe Non-warranty Clause for Nurserymen", by L. A. Breck, Lexington, Mass.; "Statistics", by John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; "Tariff", by Irving Rouse, Rochester, N. Y., followed by a discussion on "Are Higher Duties Desirable", by Geo. C.

Perkins, John H. Dayton, Geo. C. Roeding, Frank Weber and Thomas B. Meehan; "Fair Play Nursery Advertising", by Frank B. White, Chicago; "Cheaper, More Productive Advertising", by E. H. Favor, St. Joseph, Mo.; "Co-operative Nursery Publicity", by J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa.; "Practicable Publicity Plans for the A. A. of N.", by Jefferson Thomas, Jacksonville, Fla.; "Proper and Uniform Bunching, Packing and Handling of Nursery Stock", by Herbert Chase, Delta, Colo.; "Danger Ahead", by Prof. J. G. Sanders, Madison, Wis.; "White Pine Blister Rust Quarantine", by Prof. F. L. Washburn, St. Anthony Park, Minn.; "Accepted Horticultural Names", by Prof. L. H. Bailey, Ithaca, N. Y.

Following the close of the business sessions with the meeting Friday noon, the visitors will be the guests of the Good Roads Association of Milwaukee County and the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, the programme which is in the hands of T. J. Ferguson of Wauwatosa in charge of local arrangements to include an automobile trip, visiting many points of interest in the city and vicinity and the inspection of a number of the mammoth local industries.

Kroeschell Versus Cast Iron

The No. 7 Boiler I bought from you is heating 14,000 sq. ft. of glass; I think it can take care of 16,000 ft. I do not have any trouble to keep up temperature of 50° in the coldest weather. I fire only once after 12 o'clock midnight. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. I have four cast iron boilers—like the Kroeschell best of all. If anyone wishes to inquire about your boiler, let them write me, for I think your boilers are good ones.

CHARLES SCHULTZ,
Menominee, Mich.

The Kroeschell Does Our Work Easier Than Cast Iron Boilers and Saves 20 to 25% Fuel.

The No. 4 boiler is heating 10,000 sq. ft. of glass—it would take care of 13,000 sq. ft. easy. Have no trouble to keep temperature of 50 and 60 degrees in coldest weather. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. We had two cast iron boilers, one rated for 1200 ft. of pipe and one rated for 1500 ft. These boilers never did the work at their best and when the greenhouses were new, we will save 20 to 25 per cent of fuel.

King Greenhouses

have a special type of iron-frame construction which lends itself to graceful sweeping lines and yet permits great strength without the need of heavy shadow-casting supports.

In a King the plants get all the sunlight all day long, so it's easy to produce a growth and bloom fairly tropical in luxuriance.

When you write for Bulletin No. 47 tell us what you have in mind and let our experts show you how artistic a greenhouse really can be. We will work your ideas into a practical sunny King Greenhouse which will in itself be the beauty spot of your garden.

ORCHIDS GAIN IN POPULARITY.

Florists Use Limited Number of Types.

If anyone had told the camellia grower of 40 years ago that this flower, then so popular, was soon to lose its prestige and pass out as a factor in the cut flower business, he would have been thought very visionary, and found few, if any, to agree with him. The advent of the rose, however, a few years later, caused a wonderful change in sentiment, the camellia being soon forced into the background. The queen of flowers has since, and perhaps always will, hold first place, but of recent years it has had to give way in a large measure to orchids, the growing popularity of the cattleya family enabling them to become a leader for choice work, whose position looks good for a long time to come.

With the introduction of the orchid, very high prices were at first obtained for the flowers; the plants were found principally in private collections, but gradually their cultivation was taken up by commercial growers. Cypripediums were the first offered in any quantity, as a number of growers found they could be grown with other stocks and made a good holiday crop. The great beauty of the cattleya and the high prices obtained, prompted a number of the trade to lay in a stock of plants. While at first the cost of a stock of any size is very expensive, the plants were found fairly easy of growth, though the results obtained by expert growers is very much better than the hit or miss, or trust to luck plan of the man running a few as a side line in connection with other plants.

The first, and, in fact, only grower who devoted his entire attention to the orchid in Philadelphia is Alphonse Pericat, of Collingdale, to whom your scribe is indebted for the information contained in this article.

To grow orchids for their flowers as a business, requires quite a lot of capital, as the stock plants are expensive and are in the case of cattleyas almost impossible to propagate; in fact, as the plants wear or die out, they have to be replaced with fresh importations from their native habitat. When cattleyas, which come almost entirely from the countries of Central and South America, are received, they are laid out under the benches for a while, where the bulbs take up the moisture and swell considerably. Five and six-inch, half, or azalea pots, are generally used for potting, together with a quantity of broken flower pots for drainage. Should the roots be long they are placed in the pot and the space filled, so as to get the crocks among the roots up to an inch and a half from the top, which space is filled with osmundi, or fern peat, hammered in good and firm. As the plants become established they send roots out over the surface of the peat and often cling to the sides of the pot. Until they become established not much bloom can be looked for, although strong plants will sometimes throw spikes of several large flowers before any root growth is apparent. While some flowers may be cut the second year, they are at their best from their third to fourth year, and continue until the eighth or, with some plants, the tenth season, after which they no longer carry enough flowers to pay and must give way to new stock.

Mr. Pericat does not believe in fertilizers, nor does he think forcing is any assistance; urging, with additional heat, may bring them on a trifle faster, but at the expense of the plants. In summer, their growing season, they need and can stand a great deal of water if properly drained, at least once a day, but in the cool weather they should be kept on the dry side, and watered sparingly once or twice a week. This is following the natural treatment of the tropics, where there is great rainfall in the growing season and very little in the resting or cooler period; the winter temperature is from 50° to 55°. Mr. Pericat saves all the rain water he can, storing it in tanks under his middle tables, watering with this by means of a force pump operated by a gasoline engine. He has hydrant water for reserve.

During the summer months he shades the houses with a coating of white lead and gasoline, which lasts much longer than whitewash and is easily removed in the fall. In England they shade entirely by a system of rolling slats or mat shades, which are let down or rolled up as occasion requires. There they avoid direct sunshine but give all the light possible. They go to much trouble in England to keep temperature down in summer, even running water outside the house over the glass from a pipe along the ridge.

Cattleyas should be repotted about every two years, changing the osmundi, or fern peat, entirely. Orchids, as well as nearly all other tropical plants, are subject to scale, which must be prevented from getting a foothold; thrip is also an insect that must be looked after. Nicotine sprayed on is very good, but most scale must be scraped off. Tobacco stems on the pipes are easily applied and makes it harder for the thrip.

A splendid lot of Shröderii had just arrived, the plants having 6 to 30 bulbs to a clump. These are to be potted up in two or three weeks. The bulbs looked plump and healthy.

Schröderæ flowers in the spring, followed by mossiae. Gigas, the largest of them all, is also a summer flowering sort. Labiata and Gaskelliana are at their best in early fall, while Trianæ and Percivaliana are the great winter flowering sorts. While many of the varieties vary considerably in coloring, the variety Trianæ is peculiar in this respect, as Mr. Pericat says it is almost impossible to find any two flowers exactly alike. He thinks the cattleyas, while very showy, are getting too plentiful and that the spray varieties are coming more into vogue for all choice work, such as sprays and table decorations. He finds a good demand for all the Vanda cerulea he can cut. A house full of this variety looked strong and vigorous; they are kept cool and dry in winter, down as low as 50°. At one time, due to an accident to the boiler, the temperature fell nearly to the freezing point, but failed to have an injurious effect on the stock, which seemed to flower better that season than before. He likes shade for the Vanda, as the sunshine bleaches the light blue color of the flowers, which is the feature of this variety.

Oncidium varicosum Rogersii is the best commercial oncidium, producing splendid sprays of bloom. A number of plants were at this time (Aug. 1) throwing up fine long sprays thick with buds which would soon be showing color.

Odontoglossums are most beautiful spray orchids, but they do not do well in this country, the climate being too hot and dry; even in the cooler atmosphere of Belgium, where many were forced, the houses were kept cool by artificial means.

Dendrobium formosum is handled by Mr. Pericat quite largely. These require plenty of heat and light, and were suspended from the rafters of one of the large houses, close to the glass. In the last few years he has imported plants of this variety that bloom in the summer; they appear exactly like the older sort, with the exception that they bloom apparently out of season. Mr. Pericat says that cattleya flowers will hold in good condition on the plants in winter for a month and still be salable. Under the step stage benches, on the ground, he has planted adiantum, where it does splendidly and brings quite a revenue, considering that it takes up no valuable space.

This is a very interesting place to visit, particularly when the cattleyas are in flower. Several quite large commercial collections have been inspired by what was seen here, and the visions of wealth that was sure to result from similar operations. Mr. Pericat is a great lover of the orchid; he has made many crosses and raised a number of valuable seedlings. He has some handsome specimens of cattleyas—one of Trianæ with 300 bulbs is a beauty. There are a number of very rare and valuable varieties, specimen and single plants, that he prizes very highly.

Cypripediums were at one time a feature, but a number of growers getting into them, the price got too low, and he sold his stock. He thinks that the price of orchids, particularly cattleyas, is now far too low, and hopes that when the war is over there will be a change for the better that will place the orchid back on a remunerative basis.

Cattleya Speciosissima.

Cattleya speciosissima or Cattleya Luddemanniana was introduced from Venezuela about 60 years ago. It produces both large and showy flowers, but unfortunately it has the reputation among orchid growers of being shy to bloom; yet when grown under suitable conditions it will flower quite freely, often in the spring and fall of the same year. There does not seem to be any great secret in regards to making this fine cattleya flower as regularly as most other species, except that it will stand more direct sunshine all the year round than is thought necessary for the rest of the common varieties of cattleyas; therefore, a position in the growing house which gets the most sunlight should be allotted to it, and the glass above them slightly stripped with a shading sufficient to break the sun's rays only.

At this season most of the plants of this cattleya will have finished flowering, and for the best results they need a short rest, by giving less water at the roots, until the new growths or bulbs become well advanced, increasing the quantity as the new bulbs are matured. The more sunshine these plants receive, the more water they require, but by all means let them dry out to a certain extent between each watering. The bulbs and general constitution of this variety of cattleya being of a smooth, hard nature, which keep quite free from scale, shows that daily syringings are unnecessary, and failure to flower this species satisfactorily is caused by this alone.

Cypripedium Morganiae Burfordiense.

Cypripedium Morganiae Burfordiense, a very fine hybrid, was raised and introduced by Sir Harry Veitch of London, England, over 30 years ago, from C. superbiens Demidoffs. Stonei, dark var. and named in honor of Mrs. C. Morgan, New York, who was a prominent amateur grower of orchids about that period. The accompanying illustration shows a well grown plant, for this cypripedium in many collections fails to flower with any certainty. It is claimed that many plants from this cross have never flowered, while others bloom quite freely. Cypripedium Morganiae belongs to the warm growing sections of this orchid family; therefore, it requires plenty of heat and moisture, with heavy shade in the summer months, giving at the same time enough ventilations to keep a nice genial growing atmosphere. The flowers of this variety resemble the famous Cypripedium Stonei platytanum, which held the record for so many years for the highest price ever paid for an orchid, $1,500.

Selection and Care of House Plants.

Paper by Fred E. Palmer, Brookline, Mass., read before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

It is customary and often edifying in presenting a subject to an audience to trace its early history and find out as far as possible what bearing the past has on the present, thereby pointing a moral and adorning a tale that might otherwise be tame and uninteresting.

The task of discovering a time or place when men first began to take pleasure in the companionship of flowers appealed to the writer as too large an undertaking to attempt in connection with this simple paper. It does seem true that the flowers of early literature took on almost entirely symbolic or art phases and never were portrayed as intimate companions and household pets in the sense that we are discussing them today. People who naturally love flowers attempt to associate their increasing use and enjoyment with the upward growth of civilization. This would be a very difficult case to prove because of the difference of opinion as to what constitutes civilization. Certain climatic causes seem to foster the love for flowers as well as social and economic conditions that insure permanent homes and some leisure time. The beautiful gardens of Great Britain and some countries of Continental Europe bear witness to this. There, the climate is just rigorous enough to give a zest to flower cultivation but not severe enough to cause discouragement. People occupy the same houses for many years, as a rule, but the long days give leisure even to the hardest workers to enjoy the rural pleasures that have become a large part of their natures.

Coming down to the individual, any attempt to assess virtue or character on the basis of an appreciation or love of flowers would be as unjust as it would be to endorse Shakespeare's denunciation of "the man who hath no music in his soul." As a matter of fact, no law can be formulated bearing on the case; temperament and environment being probably the principal factors in this as in many other phases of our life. The superstition that a man's character must necessarily be influenced for good by an enforced association with flowers, as for instance, one who gains his living by their cultivation, is equally erroneous as is also that other common fallacy that certain personalities have such a baneful effect on plants and flowers that the latter would rather die than endure their attentions. If any in this audience are suffering under this last depressing thought, let them cheer up at once for there is certainly nothing whatever in it.

A desire that is sufficiently strong to compel a study of the needs and requirements of the object of its devotion will certainly result in success. Indeed, the essential causes of success or of failure are generally so simple and easily explained that no one need waste time searching for them in deep and mysterious places. When we consider how much pleasure may be gathered from the cultivation of flowers and with what tender and affectionate regard they are held by almost everyone who has once become acquainted with them, it is surprising that the study of their habits and needs is not more thorough and general.

In pursuing this study, we will consider first the fundamental requirements of all plants and how nearly we may reach ideal conditions in the average home. The most essential need is light, direct sunlight if possible, at any rate, daylight and plenty of it. This fact is so important that it cannot be overestimated. Indeed, it is safe to say that if this one condition is granted, all others can be so easily provided as to make success assured with very little effort. It is only in recent years that the value of unobstructed daylight in greenhouses has been understood and appreciated by professional gardeners. When the old-fashioned, heavy framed, small glass structures gave place to the modern greenhouses and the wonderful results became apparent, horticulturists were amazed to realize how such a simple thing should have remained so long undiscovered. Today, the new greenhouses are "a little lighter than outdoors"; every unnecessary post and bar is zealously eliminated, any defective pane of glass is discarded until our old friend "Sol" is made to give up to the utmost every little flower producing unit that he contains. This one discovery has enabled growers to produce the wonderful roses and carnations that we see today and to sell them at half the price that the few of similar quality brought 25 years ago. Nothing else has changed; watering, heating, feeding, and ventilating have continued just the same, but this great life giving force of sunlight has been gathered in and used to the full. This will be worth remembering in every phase of gardening experience. It will cause you to pull aside curtains and roll up shades in the early morning so that the plants in the window may get the first bit of daylight. It will warn you against placing window boxes under awnings, or flower beds in the dense shade of trees, and even the hardy shrubs will be given their full share of the blue sky overhead.

Appropos of this particular phase of the subject is the fact that many householders, having become disappointed at their inability to really grow plants and flowers in their living rooms, have improvised plant rooms out of existing sun parlors or enclosed piazzas, or have built a small addition to the house for this particular purpose. These, if properly designed, are proving most successful, not only as conservatories where plants will really thrive, but as most delightful sitting rooms. Indeed, the combination of sitting room and conservatory is the principal charm of this arrangement, differing entirely from the old-fashioned elaborate and expensive conservatory which at best was a thing apart from the home. It is safe to predict that in the near future very few houses of any pretension will be designed without this charming feature being considered an essential part of it.

Coming back to the regular living rooms, which is where our immediate interest lies, and still having in mind the question of light, it is quite possible to keep a variety of plants in comparatively healthy condition in rooms on southeast or southwest corners with good-sized windows on both sides, provided one is prepared to consider the needs of the plants as of first importance and is willing to give them the constant attention that every living thing requires. This attention should begin by removing every bit of shade such as roller curtains and draperies as soon as the first daylight appears and allowing the window throughout the day to fulfil its one essential function, which is to admit daylight to the room. With a room thus flooded with light, many foliage plants will thrive even at a considerable distance from the windows, in fact, some plants have a marvelous capacity for adapting themselves to conditions that are far from ideal. Some instances of this adaptation, which refers more particularly to foliage plants, will be given later when discussing individual species and varieties.

Flowering plants, on the other hand, are most exacting and will tolerate no position short of the immediate windowsill. Take, for example, the common geranium. Every year, just as soon as the days begin to shorten and the light is reduced to its minimum, the cry goes up, "Why do my geraniums stop flowering, my neighbor has a window full of beautiful flowers? Is not there some kind of fertilizer that I can give them?" The plant doctor makes his visit and, like the modern physician, he goes without bottle or pill. He finds the little patients standing on a table a foot or two away from the window with heavy draperies partly drawn and roller shades half down, obscuring a greater part of the available daylight. Moreover, the plants are in pots very much too large for them and are generally standing in saucers full of water, which aggravates the case. If he knows his business, he will recommend that the plants be pushed forward to the windowsill until the leaves touch the glass, possibly that they be repotted into comparatively small pots, cutting down their meat diet, as it were, or at any rate, withholding the excess of water. On his way home the plant doctor takes a look at the successful neighbor's window, which, by the way, is the same quoted by many other clients, and finds it a bay window facing south, west, and east, catching every bit of sunlight that comes that way. The narrow sill is packed with small geraniums in four-inch pots, their leaves are almost pasted to the glass and they are in full bloom. He realizes with pleasure that some one is having a good time in that particular house, having discovered the secret of success. In this somewhat insistent plea for daylight, the geranium has been used as an example because it is the most common member of a class that needs a more abundant supply of direct sunlight than any other. In warmer climes, plants of this class are evergreen and everblooming, as in southern California for instance, where they blossom literally every day in the year. Having no storehouse for their pigments, such as bulbous plants have, they mix them from day to day, each according to its needs, selecting from the solar spectrum some red, some blue, some yellow, and make them over in their wonderful laboratories into the beautiful flowers that we admire. Take away this source of supply and they find themselves in the predicament that many of our textile manufacturers are in, now that the supply of dyes from Germany has been reduced by the war, for they have to be content with simple green dresses and wait until "sunnier" times arrive.

The need of proper watering may be mentioned next. How much water and how often to be given seems to be a process in plant culture more difficult than any other for the average amateur grower to understand. The trouble seems to be that plants have been classified by species rather than by individuals in regard to their need of water. Does a begonia need more water than a primrose? or a cyclamen more than a geranium? is invariably the form of the question. As a matter of fact, with the following three conditions existing, it is almost impossible to overwater:

1. A plant with a relatively large amount of foliage and blossom in a small pot.
2. A warm room with very dry atmosphere.
3. Effective drainage in a pot which allows all superfluous water to drain away quickly.

On the other hand, if a plant is in an oversized pot, especially when the earth has been insufficiently "firmed" down, it is very slow to dry out and will quickly suffer from too much water. The soil in this case is like a loose sponge and remains saturated for a long time. It is worth remarking that all inexperienced amateurs use pots much too large for the needs of the plant, and always leave the soil in a loose, spongy condition, both of which are conducive to ill health in the plant. No amount of drainage will help much under these conditions and if, as is often necessary, the plants are all kept in saucers, it will be almost impossible to keep these over-potted ones in good health. Even with all conditions ideal, it is impossible to lay down a rule as to frequency of watering. The successful professional grower relies entirely on his daily observation as to when a plant needs water, the dry aspect and light color of pot and soil being his principal guides. Stern necessity has trained his eye to be very keen in this respect; with the amateur, an equally strong desire to succeed would quickly have the same result. Perhaps the best general rule for the amateur would be that when the soil in any pot or box has dried out so that it is friable or crumbly to the touch, as distinguished from a pasty condition, it is time to water it. In every case, enough water should be given to saturate the entire bole of earth at the time. Continual watering or spraying the foliage of plants is injurious. An occasional washing or spraying for cleansing purposes only is permissible however, the leaves not being able to perform their function if covered by dust or the exudations from insects or even the oil with which some people are wont to anoint them.

The use of saucers in which to stand pot plants may be a benefit or an evil according to the degree of intelligence exercised. Some provision, of course, is necessary to prevent water which runs through the pot from injuring the floor or furniture. On the other hand, many plants suffer from standing saturated all the time in a saucer full of water. This evil can easily be obviated by filling a saucer half-full of small pebbles, in fact, the very best arrangement for a group of window plants is to provide a shelf the full length of the window and about twelve inches wide. Cover this entirely with a flat tray of galvanized iron two inches deep, filling it one and one-half inches deep with a layer of white pebbles. Plants standing on this may be watered without any fear of overdoing it. The superfluous water runs in among the pebbles and quickly evaporates, so that there is no need of providing any special means of drawing it off. This constant evaporation is of great benefit to the plants and the whole affair is neat and practical.

There is no royal road to the successful cultivation of flowers, even under favorable conditions, much less so with the serious handicaps which have been indicated. It is not a question of formulas or of higher education, or deep studies in botany or of soils or fertilizers, nor does it involve the abstruse questions lately set forth by some impressionist biologist as to whether plants shudder or weep or laugh and clap their hands when you come into their presence; it is simply whether you care enough for them to give some time to their study and to supply their needs just as one would to a child or a highly prized dog.

In the matter of heating and ventilating the room, plants have to put up with what they can get. Excessive heat is perhaps second in the list of unfavorable conditions to which house plants are subjected. This is aggravated by violent extremes caused by throwing open windows when airing the room and by a draft blowing in around a poorly fitting sash. This latter continuing through every cold night is sufficient to destroy a whole window full of plants during the winter. Every window devoted to plants should be double glazed and great care used in airing the room on very cold days. Valuable palms are often destroyed by allowing an icy draft from an open window to strike them. Only a few minutes are necessary to accomplish this destruction, when the temperature outside is much below freezing. It is well to remember that all plants are benefited by comparatively low temperature at night, so that if circumstances compel them to be subjected to a temperature of 80 degrees in the day, they should be given a rest at night by lowering the room to 60 degrees.

The following list of plants has been grouped according to positions which they are usually called upon to fill and their names are placed in the order of their value in the group.

Group 1. Flowering plants that under good conditions should be in flower from October to May. To get results, these require the best care and environment possible, and practically the same treatment applies to all in the group.

a Cyclamen, certainly the best flowering plant.

b Begonias, everblooming varieties and Begonia Gloire de Lorraine hybrids.

c Primulas, Sinensis (Chinese primrose), obconica (poisonous variety).

d Geraniums.

f Liniums (yellow flax, like California poppy).

g Impatiens Sultana.

h Tea roses, March, April, and May only.

Group 2. Plants that flower for a limited season and are not as particular as to sunlight as Group 1:

a Azaleas, in season from November to May.

b Chrysanthemums, October and November.

c Celosias, Princess Feather, October, November and December.

CYPRIPEDIUM MORGANÆ BUFORDIENSE.

Hybrid Between C. superbiens (Demidoffs Var.) and C. Stonei (Dark Var.).
Grown by S. G. Milosy, Gardener for Geo. Schlegel, Brooklyn, N. Y.

d Canterbury Bells, March, April, and May.

e Fuchsias, September, October, and November.

f Gloxinias, March, April, and May.

g Genistas, March, April, and May.

h Hydrangeas, and all the spring-flowering shrubs, such as lilacs, Azalea mollis, rambler roses, also all French and Dutch bulbs.

The Dutch bulbs may be grown from the beginning by any one having a back-yard or shed in which to carry them through the fall months. When the severe frost sets in, they can be transferred to the coolest part of the cellar and afterwards be brought to the window from time to time as desired. The French Paper White narcissus, which has been a despised member of the family for so many years, has recently sprung into immense popularity and is much easier to cultivate. A few bulbs in a dish half-filled with pebbles and water, placed in the window or on the table, will grow and flower without the least care, and successive plantings every two weeks will yield a continuous supply of flowers all winter. It is safe to predict that next winter will see these simple bulbs planted by the million.

Group 3. Foliage plants used to stand about the house for decorative purposes:

a Palms: Kentia Belmoreana, K. Forsteriana, Areca lutescens, Phoenix Roebelenii.

b Ficus, rubber plant.

c Dracæna Lindenii.

d Pandanus Veitchii.

e Araucaria, monkey tree.

g Ferns of different kinds.

The above list comprises the kind of plants that will endure the ungenial environment of the average house plant as bravely as any. Many of them are very tenacious of life indeed, and adapt themselves to adverse conditions in a marvelous way. This is such an interesting study that a few remarkable instances which have come under our personal observation are worth reciting. The first is a plant, a Dracæna Lindenii, which has been standing on an upper landing for more than fifteen years. Scarcely a ray of sunlight reaches it, it has never been repotted, and it has never been out of the house. It stands about seven feet tall, has lost very few leaves, and is in pretty good health. Two other cases were Pandanus Veitchii. Both of these remained in six-inch pots for a matter of two years, stood in a very unfavorable position, and yet had grown into fine, handsome plants. Both died promptly when put into larger pots. There is in our store in Brooklyn a very handsome specimen of Kentia palm. It came to us a year ago, having been for many years in a large private dining room. The new environment seems to suit it, being very similar to the old, although both, according to the code, are entirely unsuited to any healthy plant life.

These apparent plant vagaries and contradictions of nature in the plant world should furnish food for encouragement and hope in the more serious affairs of human life. They might easily teach that by perseverance and adaptation to the inevitable a great deal of happiness may be gotten out of conditions that some would consider intolerable.

A Moninger Conservatory.

The John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, has recently completed a beautiful conservatory at Lake Forest, Ill., for Robt. J. Thorne, president of Montgomery, Ward & Co. The central or raised portion, one would naturally take as a palm room, but it is in reality an aviary in which tropical birds are kept. There is a beautiful fountain with pool and artistic rockwork upon which ferns and vines are thickly planted so as to reproduce as near as possible natural tropical conditions. The two wings of the conservatory are used principally for growing plants somewhat out of the ordinary; plants which cannot be procured easily from the average florist. Another interesting fact about this conservatory is that the entire area below the floor is excavated, the space being occupied partly for the storage of coal, partly for a root cellar and a portion is set aside for the growth of mushrooms. The foundation work is all of reinforced concrete, thus making a fireproof structure.

Connecticut Horticultural Society.

The second June flower show of the Connecticut Horticultural Society was held June 27-28. While the attendance was not all that could be desired nevertheless many lovers of flowers paid a visit to the exhibition, commenting on the beauty of the exhibits and the artistic arrangement of the roses and perennials. In the center of the hall was an unusually fine oval bed of roses, three beautiful vases of Marie Lemoine, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty. Alex. Cumming, Jr., superintendent of the rose department at A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, had an opportunity to display his ability as an architect in designing a bed of roses and perennials. The specimens embodied in the exhibit were remarkable for their size and growth.

John F. Huss, superintendent of the James J. Goodwin estate, decorated the stage in the center of one side of the hall. He also made an exhibit of hybrid tea roses of merit. He carried off the silver cup for the best general collection. Warren S. Mason, superintendent of the A. A. Pope estate, Farmington, captured many first prizes in the professional classes. Out of 19 classes of roses, he successfully competed in 16. He also won many prizes for hardy perennials. The Connecticut Hospital for the Insane, Middletown, Edward Eggert, gardener, also carried off many prizes. His exhibit of sweet williams was unusually fine, containing a great many varieties of fine growth. Prof. M. W. Jacobus, Alfred Cebelius, gardener, carried off first prize for best vase of six blooms of pink peonies. N. Nelson, gardener at the Hartford Retreat, had the sweet pea field to himself, the cloudy, wet weather putting many of those who intended to exhibit completely out of the running.

The park department arranged several displays of bedding stock that came in for their share of praise from the visitors. W. W. Hunt & Co., the Blue Hills Nurseries, carried off a number of first prizes for their various exhibits in the perennial section. A vase of gaillardias were very attractive by their size and beautiful markings.

In the amateur class O. F. Gritzmacher, of New Britain, successfully competed for the sweepstakes prize of six plants of the new rose, Red Radiance, offered by the Cromwell Gardens; also the sweepstakes prize of a collection of 100 perennials, 10 varieties, offered by the same concern, Mr. Gritzmacher having to his credit the greatest number of prizes in the rose exhibit and in the perennial exhibit in that class.

The following were among the principal prize winners: W. W. Hunt & Co., Hartford, Conn.; Warren S. Mason, Alfred Cebelius, John F. Huss, Edward Eggert, J. Vidbourne, N. Nelson, O. F. Gritzmacher, Mrs. John H. Buck, L. J. Robertson, Jr., Mrs. Robert Huntington and Mrs. Frank Sumner.

EXCELLENT MIDSUMMER DEMAND.

Up to the present time local florists have found the midsummer season better than that of a year ago. There has been a good call for small stock and garden flowers bought at low prices and worked up into attractive arrangements have proved a very profitable feature. Rambler roses have been a feature of this class of business. In greenhouse stock, roses are the chief reliance for the time being. Carnations have about disappeared, having dwindled down to small blooms which meet with slow sale at 50 cents a dozen. Sweet peas are seeing their finish this week, so far as cultivation under glass is concerned. The best command 50 cents a bunch. The first gladioli are appearing and bring $1.50 a dozen. This price is not expected to stand up very long, as there will soon be a deluge on the market. June was a good wedding month, and kept active until the close. Funeral work during the past 10 days has been heavier than for some time.

NOTES.

For a week or more T. J. Ludwig has been having a dollar special, consisting of a choice of any number of a variety of small baskets filled with flowers. Not only have baskets gone well at this popular price, but the plan has proved to be a good trade-winner for the store in a general way.

A big contract handled by the Livingston Seed Company, through its cut-flower department, was the decorations for the four days' opening, July 1-4, of the Scioto Country Club house. This is a new organization composed of the most fashionable people of the town.

CONSERVATORY BUILT FOR ROBT. J. THORNE, BY THE JOHN C. MONINGER CO., CHICAGO.

Newport, R. I.

The June flower show, under the auspices of the Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Garden Association, held on the grounds of the latter organization, June 28-29, was well attended. The grounds have been vastly improved by a rearrangement of its beds and borders, which gives more solidity to the general effect. The show was staged in the open and under three tents, and was an improvement over the exhibition of last year; but with the vast resources to draw from in a horticultural line in this vicinity, the show could hardly be called a representative one, but it seemed to please the public, who were admitted free. Eighty-three classes were offered, 50 by the horticultural society and 33 by the garden association, and nearly all were filled.

What appeared to be some of the most striking exhibits in the open were the displays of Kampenaar and Christiansen nursery stock. Mrs. Mortimer Brooks, James Bond, gardener, showed beds of Iris Cajanus, Newport Pink sweet william, stocks, Heather-bloom Lavender and several large tubs of digitalis, all of which were awarded first honors. Beds of canterbury bells exhibited by Miss Edith Wetmore, Swen Johnson, gardener, were also much admired. In the tents among the most attractive displays was a beautifully arranged group of palms, ferns and foliage plants by Mrs. Mortimer Brooks. A. T. Bunyard of New York and this city had a tastefully arranged table of plants with a novel centerpiece made up of orchids. William Gray, president of the American Sweet Pea Society, was a successful exhibitor, winning several first prizes. Rose Jonkheer J. L. Mock, shown by Andrew Ramsay, was much admired. Among the growers of sweet peas, Andrew Doward seemed to have the earliest. He alone was able to fill the class for general display.

Notable displays were made in the orchid section, especially those of Mrs. French Vanderbilt, Daniel Hay, gardener, and by Arthur Curtis James, John H. Greateorex, gardener. The collections of calceolarias of John McKay, Liliun auratum by William Allen, gloxinias and begonias by James Watts, were splendid, and to Mrs. Auchinclose, John Mahan, gardener, was awarded a silver medal for a collection of annuals and herbaceous plants. The judges were Richard Gardner, William MacKay and Joseph Robertson for the horticultural society and Arthur T. Bunyard, Joseph Gibson and Alan R. Wheeler for the garden association. Prominent among the prize winners were the following: Governor R. Livingston Beekman, Vincent Astor, Mrs. H. Mortimer Brooks, Robert W. Goelet, H. E. Converse, Mrs. William B. Leeds, Mrs. French Vanderbilt, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchinclose, The Reef Gardens and Miss Edith Wetmore. J. J. B.

BUSINESS SHOWS NOTICEABLE DROP.

June showed a decided let-up in business, only a few belated planting orders, a light run of wedding work and a scarcity of funerals, combined to make a real summer dullness in the flower shops. While the number of June wedding licenses was the heaviest on record, there seems to be a tendency toward simplicity and cutting out "fuss and feathers" that promises to lighten very much the florist's interest in this important milestone on life's journey. Growing conditions have been good and stock is looking well, with ample supplies of outdoor grown offered in the stores.

Chrysanthemums are planted, and everybody seems to have gone to the limit of their space for them.

NOTES.

Harrie S. Mueller, son of Chas. P. Mueller, and in charge of the landscape department, is a captain in the national guards, and has gone to the Mexican frontier. He received quite a send-off from the Rotary club and a number of other friends at the railway station when he left for the front.

A recent visitor was Mathias G. Kill, special representative for John C. Moninger Co., Chicago. While he called upon the trade generally, his special errand was getting a line on the needs of Chas. P. Mueller in the way of a new conservatory to be built in connection with an addition to the rear of his North Main street store.

William Kuechenmeister expects soon to leave for New Mexico, hoping to get relief from a slight asthmatic trouble before it becomes serious.

Robert Fields, store salesman for Chas. P. Mueller for several years, has resigned his position and returned to his home town, Kansas City.

C.

Yonkers, N. Y.

The saying that the just suffer with the unjust seems to have been exemplified in the case of P. G. Lemke, who has a retail store at 476 South Broadway. When the European war broke out he had a good retail business in London, Eng., and had been there for 14 years. What happened in London has been told in the daily papers. He is a German and as such was under suspicion. He was arrested and underwent a rigorous examination by the police. He was finally given a passport and permitted to come to this country. He says that he had no opportunity to dispose of his business, and came here with a wife and three small children.

Having a population of over 90,000, with many wealthy residents, it is to be expected that the florists of Yonkers should be prosperous. There are several good retail stores, all of which, even at this season, are doing a fair business. The MacDonalds, 103 New Main street, have recently incorporated their business. William MacDonald is president; Peter MacDonald, secretary; Mrs. William MacDonald, treasurer; Miss MacDonald, a sister, is cashier at the store. This firm has a large retail cut flower and seed business.

F. W. Smythe, of Wadley & Smythe, New York, has a fine nursery and a large glass area at the Grassy Spring and Tuckahoe roads. Another fine nursery is conducted by Charles Ammann, who for many years was a prosperous retail florist in New York. Another New Yorker, Henry L. Bantleman, divides his time between his New York store and his Yonkers range and nursery.

The Hollywood Florist, opened last fall at 36 South Broadway by John Cullen and Thomas Smith, has a fine store in an excellent location and seems to be prosperous.

In addition to a store at 18 North Broadway, the Milliots have a considerable glass area on the Tuckahoe road, and are also constant buyers in the New York market.

Frank Knapper, 436 Bellevue avenue, is a pioneer grower of Yonkers and in addition to a neat range, conducts a nursery.

Mrs. E. MacHenry's store, 37 Palisade avenue, is well ordered and shows evidence of prosperity.

C. A. Schaefer, formerly in business in New York, has a neat store at 248 South Broadway. A. F. F.

OUTDOOR STOCK MEETS REQUIREMENTS.

Weather conditions continue favorable, with the result that outdoor stock is of good quality, but at this writing, prospects are for warm weather, which will change things. Zinnias are becoming plentiful and with their peculiar coloring are attracting much attention. Some superb hybrid gladioli are also seen. Roses show an improvement in quality, and it may be said that the supply of all seasonable stock is good, with the exception of lily of the valley.

NOTES.

There was scarcely a break in the rush of business at the Redondo Floral Co.'s establishment during the month of June. The demand for roses in the better grades was quite noticeable this year. Lily of the valley is reported short and this firm is compelled to resort to the artificial sort at times.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., have an interesting display of water lilies in assorted colors in their windows. A fine showing of Japanese liliun rubrum was also a feature that attracted attention. Four wedding orders in one day added to the receipts of an excellent month's business.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson had the order for 280 bouquets of red sweet peas for the graduates of the manual high school. This firm is showing some splendid hybrid gladioli in deep purple.

O. A. Saakes has been very busy with funeral orders. While fine roses are always a feature here, some especially fine Hadley and Mrs. Chas. Russell are seen here of late.

Business appears a little below normal at Howard & Smith's, but they report the usual amount of wedding and funeral orders.

Lenox Summer Show.

The summer show of the Lenox County Horticultural Society held at Lenox, Mass., June 28-29, was by far the best of its kind this year, and taking into consideration the extreme backwardness of the season the exhibits were all of fine character. A fine display of flowering shrubs, arranged by Fred. Heeremans, gardener to W. D. Sloane, filled the stage and attracted much attention, while the wonderful collection of orchids exhibited by A. N. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass., were a splendid feature and were awarded a silver medal. This exhibitor also received the Vaughan's Seed Store silver medal for a splendid display of sweet peas. There were three tables of pansies of fine colors and varieties. The first prize in this class went to Mrs. J. E. Parsons, second and third honors being awarded to W. M. Salisbury and Mrs. W. E. Griswold, respectively. The gloxinias were also fine, Mrs. J. E. Parsons being first and Joseph A. Choate of Stockbridge, Mass., second. The best 12 varieties of perennials ever staged in Lenox, it is said, were entered by Miss Kneeland and easily captured first honors. The peony display was fine, considering the lateness of the season. There were few roses on account of the late season. The trade exhibit of A. T. Boddington Co., Inc., New York, was excellent, noteworthy being a fine collection of gladioli, among the varieties being Myrtle, Snow Boy and Fair Columbia. There was also an exhibit of Illinois self-watering flower boxes. The display of fruits and vegetables was of high order, many prizes in this section being captured by Count de Heradia of Lenox. A fine exhibit of honey was staged by Mrs. W. E. Griswold.

JOHN YOUNG, Secretary.

Houston Unaffected by Border Troubles.

As the result of a number of inquiries that have been received in the convention city regarding the border situation in Texas, Vice-President Robert C. Kerr of the Society of American Florists writes as follows:

"In the first place, I want to state that Houston is from 400 to 1,000 miles from the Mexican border. We hear less about border troubles here than those living in the north and west. So dismiss from your minds that we are near the troubled territory. While the railroads have been very busy moving troops, passenger service has not been affected, and by convention time, August 15-17, the 17 railroads entering the city will be equal to any emergency and troop transportation will in no way affect the delegates coming to the convention.

"We are much elated over the prospects for a large attendance. As indicated by reports received, the state of Texas will be represented in force. President MacRorie already has two Pullmans full from San Francisco and Secretary John Young says there will be a good delegation from the east, and indications point to a splendid representation from the central states. With the convention garden progressing favorably, reservations for trade exhibit space coming in satisfactorily, and prospects of a big attendance, you have every assurance you will have a grand time in Houston this summer. Watch for the entertainment programme we have arranged for our guests."

British Bulb Import Restriction.

Chas. E. Pearson, secretary of the Horticultural Trades Association of Great Britain and Ireland, writes as follows in the Horticultural Advertiser (British) of June 21:

"I have received from several quarters copies of a letter written by a British consul in Holland, in which it is stated that the intention of H. M. government is to cut down the import of bulbs to about one-third of its former proportions, and that importation will be granted under license.

"I at once submitted this letter to the board of trade (Import Restrictions Department) and have now heard from Sir. W. Guy Granet to the effect that the importation of such goods is prohibited, and that the letter in question should in no way be regarded as official.

"As it is most important that members who may have been disturbed by disquieting rumors of this kind should have the earliest possible information as to the facts, I am taking the first opportunity of publishing the gist of the correspondence."

American Sweet Pea Society.

The attention of those interested is called by the Bar Harbor Horticultural Society to the following schedule of transportation from New York and Boston and return on the occasion of the annual convention and exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society, which will be held at Bar Harbor, Me., July 15-16:

The fare, Boston to Bar Harbor and return, is $10.50; staterooms, $1.50 and $2. Fare, New York to Boston and return, is $8; staterooms, $1 and $2, according to location. Through tickets to Bar Harbor can be procured at either point. Early reservations are suggested as travel at this season is very heavy.

The prospects for the exhibition are very promising. There will be many displays from Newport, Lenox and other eastern points. The prize list is large and generously divided and keen competition is anticipated. The schedule, of which about 1,000 have already been sent to prospective exhibitors, is on hand and this with any other information, will be gladly furnished by the secretary, Harry A. Bunyard, 40 West 28th street, New York.

Hail Losses Severe.

Hail losses are reported as unusually severe all over the west and southwest, and many companies say that even last year's phenomenal record is being outdone. The Western Adjustment Company, which is handling the hail losses this year, as a result of the experience gained last season, has over 200 adjusters at work on losses, and is unable to keep up with the demand.

JUNE BUSINESS CLOSES STRONG.

The last week in June ended with a demand that was highly gratifying, weddings and social functions calling for large quantities of the better grades of roses, peonies and outdoor stock. The cut of long roses is off just now with the exception of American Beauties. Carnations arrive in supply equal to all requirements and the quality is good for the season. Easter lilies are also plentiful and sell at low figures in quantity. There is a good demand for gypsophila. Water lilies, both white and colored, are part of the daily receipts and Jap lilies, white and pink, are also seen. Sweet peas are plentiful as the outdoor stock is beginning to arrive, but lily of the valley is scarce and high in price. Snapdragons (mostly short stock) are on the market. White phlox and larkspurs have a steady call and the quality is very good.

NOTES.

The executive committee of the florists' club have changed the quarterly due periods in order to simplify the keeping of accounts. The new periods commence with the first day of January, April, July and October. The next meeting will be July 10 and the picnic committee will have something interesting to say. The date of the outing is Thursday, July 20; the place is Willough Beach Park. Come and bring your friends and help make this a grand success.

Thousands of flowers—peonies, roses, sweet peas, carnations—in fact, nearly every kind of a flower now blooming, were donated by the local wholesale and retail florists and strewn along the path of the local contingent of the O. U. G., which left for Columbus, O., June 30.

The industrial exposition, to be held at Edgewater Park, September 2-9, will be a big event. It is being widely advertised and boosted by the promoters, and the flower show in connection promises to be the banner feature of the entire fair.

Chas. A. Woodman, who has been with the Cleveland Florists' Exchange for nearly 10 years, has entered the undertaking business with Mr. and Mrs. Craley, who have been established since 1871.

OFFICE AND STORE

178 N. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO, ILL

Chicago.

TRADE IS SOMEWHAT QUIET.

Trade at this writing is somewhat quiet, which is to be expected in July, but at that the demand is keeping up well and the sales compare most favorably with those of the first week of the corresponding month last year. Roses of all kinds are more plentiful, but there is not any too much good stock in the longer grades available. American Beauty roses are more plentiful and the quality is considered good. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are seen in large quantities at nearly all the stores, but there is quite a lot of inferior stock in this variety now included in the shipments. Good Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are moving well at fair prices. Ophelia are having a good call and so are Sunburst, My Maryland, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, George Shawyer and Double Pink Killarney. White Killarney and Double White Willarney are selling well and so are the few Kaiserin Augusta Victoria that are arriving. Killarney, Killarney Queen, Prince de Bulgarie, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Richmond, Rhea Reid, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Mrs. Moorfield Storey, Francis Scott Key, Lady

Alice Stanley, Champ Weiland, Killarney Brilliant, Tipperary, Mrs. Bayard Thayer, Cecile Brunner, George Elgar and Baby Doll are included in the shipments of roses and all of them at times are in good demand. Orchids are a trifle more plentiful and so is lily of the valley, but there is hardly ever any surplus when the stores close at night. Gladioli are seen in larger supply and the offerings include both indoor and outdoor stock. Asters, dahlias, daisies, feverfews, larkspurs, snapdragons, delphiniums, coreopsis, candytufts, pansies, lilies, callas, pond lilies, calendulas, cornflowers and a large list of other indoor and outdoor flowers give the retailers a splendid assortment to select from and it seems that many of the dealers are aware of the fact for some of the window displays the past week were splendid and in one instance contained a flower of every description offered in this market. Peonies at times have had a good call and are bringing fair prices considering the large supply of other stock offered at low prices. Sweet peas have seen their best days, but there is still a fair supply of good stock obtainable. Carnations are to be had in large quantities at very low prices and there is a fair supply of good stock available in certain varieties. Green goods of all kinds are in large supply. The wholesale stores are all closing at 5 o'clock during July, August and September, which the out-of-town buyers will do well to remember when sending in their orders.

NOTES.

Adam Zender has rented his range of greenhouses in Rogers Park, consisting of 150,000 feet of glass, to his son-in-law, Robert Windler, who bought all the stock and took charge July 1. Mr. Zender has spent a great many years in the growing end of the business and is well and favorably known to the trade here and elsewhere. He is seriously thinking of building a new home on his property at Ridge and Pratt avenues in the near future. Mr. Windler will continue to grow roses for the local wholesale market and his many friends here and in St. Louis, Mo., wish him every success in his added responsibilities.

The Garland Manufacturing Co., of Des Plaines, has received an order from Davis & Steiner for 10 new cucumber houses to be erected at Streat-Poehlmann Bros. Co. just bought 17 acres of land at Morton Grove, adjoining Plant C, which brings the total acreage up to 137, counting the property now occupied by the greenhouses. The additional land will permit the firm to extend its plant at any time should it ever be deemed advisable to do so. The supply department has secured the agency from a new concern manufacturing the natural prepared maple and oak sprays which are almost an exact reproduction of the natural and are not to be compared with the stock that has been offered in this market for several years past.

Sidney Buchbinder, sales manager for Buchbinder Bros., has returned from Winona, Minn., with an order from the Siebrecht Floral Co. for a complete set of store fixtures including the celebrated Buchbinder refrigerator which is the second outfit that he has sold there within the last two months, the first being that of Winona Floral Co. Buchbinder Bros. sold outfits the past week to Olympia Confectionary & Floral Co., at Rockford, and to Frank Potocka, Milwaukee and Chicago avenues.

Lester Partridge, of Sharp, Partridge & Co., is recovering from an operation at the North Chicago hospital, 2551 North Clark street, and expects to be able to leave for home in a few days. Michael Freres, with Zech & Mann, and wife, are spending their vacation with relatives in Aurora. Allie Zech and wife, mother, sister Carrie and brother Leo, are home from a delightful auto trip to La Porte, Ind., where they enjoyed the Fourth with relatives.

Miss Ruth Wattman of the Bassett & Washburn office force, is away on her vacation. Miss Ruth Schrieber celebrated her seventeenth birthday with a little party in the office last Saturday, July 1, when everyone present had a delightful time.

Mrs. Herbach and daughter, Margaret C. Labo, of Joliet, were in the city on business last week for the purpose of securing the necessary stock to decorate their float, which made such a big hit in the Fourth of July parade in their city.

James Psenicka, of Gross Point, has his chrysanthemums all planted and is now busy benching his carnations.

M. Winandy & Sons, 6062 Ridge avenue, commenced June 21 to build two new ranges of greenhouses at Palatine, one for Henry E. Mersch, of Evanston, and one for Nicholas F. Mersch, of Barrington. Both plants will be equipped with M. Winandy's patent bench and heating system, as installed already to complete satisfaction of the owners of sixteen other places in and around this city. The A. Dietsch Co. is furnishing the millwork and lumber, and Henry Munson the pipes. The houses will be ready by August 16, and will be planted to carnations and sweet peas.

Weiland & Risch are cutting a large quantity of gladioli in 30 different varieties, including the favorites, Mrs. Frances King, Chicago White, America and Myrtle. They exhibited all the forcing gladioli they are now cutting at the summer show of the Lenox County Horticultural Society, held at Lenox, Mass., June 28-29, when this firm alone had 30 kinds on display.

Otto Amling visited his father, A. F. Amling, who is confined in a sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich., last week and also his family, who has been staying there with him. The new A. F. Amling Co.'s greenhouses at Maywood are completed, and the planting is practically finished.

Peter Reinberg is having a good call for Mrs. Chas. Russell roses which he is cutting in quantity, in addition to a large supply of all the other leading roses. Herbert Hansen is back on the job at the store, after a delightful visit at Kansas City, Mo.

At A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store trade has been very good right along and the sales so far during this month have been very encouraging. Roses in all the leading varieties are the principal offering at this house.

Prof. Arno H. Nehrling, of Amherst, Mass., and his bride were visitors last week enroute to Colorado Springs, Colo., where they will spend their honeymoon, returning about July 25.

H. N. Bruns, 3032 Madison street, is attending the Shriners' convention at Buffalo, N. Y., this week. Mrs. Bruns accompanied him on the trip, which was made by boat.

The John Kruchten Co.'s force has been so busy that no one has had time to think of a vacation, but no doubt the boys will all enjoy a well-earned rest soon.

Tom Rogers, of Minneapolis, Minn., is visiting old friends here this week.

Rochester, N. Y.

EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD BUSINESS.

Business during the past two weeks has been exceptionally good; the orders for weddings and commencements were numerous and funeral work was also a factor. While carnations are getting scarce and small in size the supply of roses continues plentiful but lily of the valley is far short of requirements and has advanced in price. Sweet williams, corn-flowers, coreopsis, gaillardias, etc., find ready sale. Flowering plants are scarce.

NOTES.

Edwin C. Kaelber recently had a striking window display of roses and sweet williams arranged in dark green vases with creton drapery of contrasting colors. He is also showing the new beautiful red rose, Harriot, a first prize winner in London a few years ago.

June 30 was annual flower day and the proceeds were given to the Children's hospital. The following were the committee in charge of the successful event: E. P. Wilson, Geo. B. Hart, E. C. Kaelber, Geo. Boucher and M. J. Keller.

A recent attractive display in Geo. T. Boucher's window was an arrangement of hydrangeas.

Hubert B. Stringer has returned from a two weeks' vacation spent in the Adirondacks.

The ladies' florist club held its monthly meeting at Highland park.

Geo. Cramer is now a member of the Geo. B. Hart force. CHESTER.

Toledo, O.

To Mrs. J. B. Freeman, one of the best known florists of Toledo, O., is given the credit for one of the most elaborate wedding decorations arranged in that city in many years. The auditorium of the church, which was the scene of one of the most brilliant events in social circles during the season, was a wealth of foliage and flowers, peonies being used to carry out the color scheme of orchid and white. High above the organ loft, graceful kentias arched the pulpit and choir stalls, and with ferns and huckleberry foliage bordered the altar, above which were massed hundreds of peonies. Huge bouquets of the same flower marked the pews and produced a wonderfully striking effect. The circular balcony, the lights softened with sprays of green, was veiled with huckleberry and other foliage. The entire arrangement, wonderful in its artistic beauty, was the work of R. H. Blake, decorator of Mrs. J. B. Freeman's staff, and who already enjoys a widespread reputation as a leader in this line.

USUAL SUMMER DULLNESS PREVAILS.

Quiet business that is usual before the "Fourth" prevailed in the market last week. Almost everything in seasonable stock was plentiful, but the demand was insufficient to take up all receipts. Roses continue in heavy supply, and when good, have a fair market. Easter lilies are plentiful, and besides the usual supply of greenhouse stock, include many good outdoor blooms. Gladioli have a fair market. Excellent hardy hydrangeas may be had. The demand for lily of the valley has dropped off greatly since June is past. Excellent outdoor sweet peas are coming into the wholesale houses and carnations are in a fair supply. Other offerings include snapdragons, larkspurs, water lilies, coreopsis and corn flowers.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell, Jr., is recovering from an operation last week, when his tonsils and adenoids were removed. He has leased quarters on the south side of Third street, near Vine, and is remodeling them. He expects his new place to be one of the prettiest and best of its kind in this part of the country.

Harry Greensmith, son of G. H. Greensmith, was drowned July 2 while bathing in the Delaware river. The friends of Mr. Greensmith are very sorry to hear of his son's untimely death and sympathize with him in his bereavement.

Ferdinand Keller, of Lexington, Ky., stopped in this city on his way home from the Ad Men's convention at Philadelphia, Pa.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has taken quarters a few doors below their present location and are remodeling.

The William Murphy Company has begun to ship carnation plants. Their stock is unusually good this year.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

Business continues good considering the late season, social events calling for quantities of stock and there has been a strong demand for funeral work. Weddings also have been numerous. Exceedingly warm weather the past week caused stock in the houses to suffer, but there is a good variety of outdoor flowers, which take well.

NOTES.

A number of the local florists donated flowers for a benefit given by the Women's Relief Union, July 1. Those who contributed were: A. J. Lanternier & Co., Doswell Floral Co.; E. J. Wenninghoff, W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Flick Floral Co. and Markey Bros.

Illinois State Florists' Association.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Illinois State Florists' Association held at Bloomington, June 27, it was decided not to hold a competitive flower show in connection with the state meeting of the association in that city this fall. In consequence the plans for a premium list were abandoned. Every effort will be made by the committee, however, to stage one of the largest non-competitive fall exhibitions ever held. The secretary was instructed to write all members who answered the call for cash subscriptions toward the premium list and thank them for the liberal response, TRADE GENERALLY SATISFACTORY.

Weather conditions have been very favorable, and as a result stock is arriving in quantities to meet all demands, and the flowers have a beauty all their own that is appreciated at this season. Lilies are plentiful, both the Harrisi and the auratum, which is now in full flower. Amaryllis also serves a good turn and is much used in funeral work. The rose benches, planted for summer blooming, are doing splendidly and there is no scarcity. This is especially true of Russell, Kaiserin and My Maryland. Gladioli too are plentiful and serviceable and sell well and there is no shortage of the smaller flowers such as candytufts, sweet alyssum, etc. Beautiful window boxes are a feature in all parts of the city, with petunias the strong favorite in this line. The Fourth of July adds little to the receipts of the local trade. This year, however, the citizens are deeply interested in mobilization of the state militia at the fair grounds here, and many nice flowers find their way to the soldier boys.

WARM WEATHER FORCES IN SUPPLY.

With the advent of warm weather, stock is beginning to arrive in large quantities and prices are low on all lines. Roses are good, but open up quickly. Carnations are smaller, but sweet peas are very plentiful and gladioli are arriving in larger supply and the quality is good. Other outdoor cut stock is coming in fast.

NOTES.

H. Kusik & Co. are handling a big supply of roses, carnations, lily of the valley, gladioli and other outdoor stock. Business here is reported slow with prices in accord. Mr. Kusik will be at his store every afternoon during the entire month of July as the baseball team will be on the road during that period.

Captain W. R. Barnes, Third regiment, M. N. G., son of W. J. Barnes, has reported for service. If his regiment is called for service in Mexico, Captain Barnes will have the distinction of traversing the same ground his grandfather did during the war with Mexico in 1847.

S. Bryson Ayres has some gladioli that cannot be surpassed. His sweet peas are also fine. He has no trouble in disposing of his cuts daily.

Arthur Newell and wife will leave July 7 for a northern trip, making stops at Buffalo, Toronto, Montreal and St. Lawrence river points.

GOOD SEASON CLOSES.

The period of summer lassitude is with us now and there will be little to change the dullness of the next few months. The season just closed has been a good one from the greenhouse point of view, and although handicapped by unfavorable weather conditions, stock as a rule was first class. Prices for filling vases, painting and care showed a slight increase over last year, due to increase in cost of stock and price of labor. The greenhouse owners in this vicinity, it is safe to say, have not increased prices of the above in 20 years, notwithstanding the fact that everything else has increased. This is worthy of consideration. June weddings broke all previous records, consequently the trade is satisfied. Vacations are now in order and all establishments are making arrangements for the employees to get away for a much needed rest before the strenuous fall and winter business commences.

NOTES.

The socialist party are not to be outdone by another party, especially in the state of New York. The only difference is "platform." Stephen Joseph Bryan Mahoney, the florist-politician, is again the unanimous choice of the party for lieutenant-governor, and will undoubtedly get more votes than he did last time. One vote from Luzerne county will be recorded for the cause of humanity, and the "Socialist Queen" will from now on be red in color and have a new set of tires. The best wishes of all are with "Steve," and if perseverance overcomes all obstacles he should win.

W. J. Palmer and S. A. Anderson will, it is expected, be the first of the local craft to journey to their summer homes.

All is now activity, preparing for the Shriners' convalee to be held here July 10-15.

MARKET CONDITIONS VERY SATISFACTORY.

Conditions in the cut flower market for the season of the year are as good, if not better, than at any previous mid-summer period. This is owing in a measure to the cool backward season, which has produced conditions in the houses that held the stock longer, and also retarded and brought along in greater perfection all outdoor flowers, with possibly the exception of sweet peas, which have suffered from too much wet weather. A flower that has come to the front for summer use in the past year or two is the Giganteum lily. It is offered this season in splendid form. The storing of the bulbs and their forcing has become quite an art; there is now comparatively little waste in bulbs that do not flower, and the growth seems stronger and flowers larger and with more substance than formerly. Stores that carry summer stock are almost sure to have a vase or two of lilies, as they are quite equal in quality to those offered at any other season of the year. Candidum lilies are also now seen in quantity and of splendid quality, as the spikes carry from six to 12 or even more flowers and buds. Russell roses have the call; this is a great hot weather variety, the temperature seeming to have little effect on the flowers. Specials seen last week were almost equal to American Beauty in length of stem with superb flowers. Local American Beauties are losing rapidly, but very fine eastern stock is offered and sells up quite close. While Kaiserin and Double White Killarney are very fair, the perfect white summer rose has still to make its appearance. Cattleyas may be called plentiful, yet the price holds up very well. Lily of the valley is scarce, any sudden demand cleans the market out at once. Sweet peas are more than equal to the demand, the continuous rains and cool weather of the last weeks of June were hard on them, yet some very good stock is seen. Larkspur is still a factor, and the white Hydrangea arborescens is now in full flower and very effective for window display and other decorative effects. Gladioli America and Hollandia are fine and stock finds ready sale. Japanese iris is also a feature at this time.

NOTES.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have rented a large warehouse adjoining their store to accommodate a shipload of goods, the best selections of the European market before they dropped everything for the sword. The past season's business was the largest in the experience of the house.

The July meeting of the florists' club was postponed from July 4 to July 11. Dr. John Washburn will give an illustrated lecture; subject, "How to Make Good Gardeners, Florists and Farmers Out of the Submerged Population of the Great Cities of the Country."

Rupert Keinele, who was run down by the reckless driver of an automobile as he was alighting from a street car, sustaining a fracture of the bones in one leg, is rapidly recovering. He has been removed from the hospital to his home.

The Whilldin Pottery Co. is busy making stock for the coming season. Business is good but help is scarce. Mr. Whilldin hopes soon to see the finish of the struggle across the water and a return to normal conditions.

Wm. Wyatt now has two Ford cars and finds them much more ready, useful and economical than a larger machine which used to do the work. The horse, he says, is becoming more of a back number every day.

Miss Foust, of Merion, is repeating her success of last season in sweet peas. Her stock, which she markets in the stores herself, is of good quality, as good as any offered by the professional growers.

Raymond Brunswick, of the M. Rice Co., has rallied nicely from his operation for appendicitis and is expected to soon be about again. The new factory is rapidly approaching completion.

Ed. Reid's eastern American Beauties, Mock, Killarney and Kaiserin roses are, he says, of the genuine Reid brand, which means quality plus. Business is very good for the season.

The Robert Craig Co. is doing a large business in plants, such as begonias, cyclamens and ferns, to growers, who are now filling up and preparing for the fall campaign.

Henry Penn, a visitor last week during the Ad Men's Convention, found Philadelphia anything but a slow town. His presence certainly helped to brighten things up.

The Charles Grakelow float in the Ad Men's parade was quite a feature, a flight of doves added grace and apparent aeroplanic power.

Easter lilies, gladioli and a full line of outdoor flowers are the features of the Leo Niessen Co.'s stock. Five p. m. is now the closing hour.

At the Berger Bros.' central market summer business is reported very good. Choice gladioli, Easter lilies, Maryland roses and orchid sweet peas are features here. K.

Oklahoma, City.

BUSINESS CONTINUES SATISFACTORY.

Trade continues very satisfactory and there is such an abundance of outdoor flowers that nearly all demands can be met. This is proving to be an unusually good summer for all growing things. Oklahoma was considered a semi-arid state for several years, and irrigation schemes were much talked of, but the abundant rain fall during the last few years has been ample for all crops and all talk about irrigation seems to have been abandoned for the time being.

SUMMER EXODUS AND TRADE SUFFERS.

Business, which was fair the first of the past week, grew very dull toward the last. The weather has been fair and much warmer and there has been a large increase in the supply of stock. The midsummer dullness has arrived in due season; many people are leaving the city for the summer resorts, so the "season" is closed. For the next two months funeral work will be the most that will remain of the retail trade. Lily of the valley, which had been selling well for several weeks, was slow with falling prices during the past week. The very best American Beauties brought, in some instances, $25 per 100, or at that rate, but there were sales of fair stock as low as $10. The bright weather has improved the quality of the roses, but there comes near to being a surplus of them and prices are on the decline. There is good carnation stock on the market, for the season, but $1 per 100 is about the top price for the best and grading down to 50 cents and less for inferior stock. The outdoor sweet peas are now arriving in great volume and the short stock goes very cheap. It may be said that all stocks are cheap with a good prospect of their becoming much cheaper.

July 3.—Indications point to a very quiet week in the cut-flower business. A number of the leading mercantile establishments of other lines closed on Saturday until July 5 and there was consequently a great exodus from the city. The weather is warm and sultry. There is an increase in the supply of stock with a very light demand.

NOTES.

Though Staten Island (Borough of Richmond) is a part of greater New York, it is somewhat isolated, particularly when heavy fogs cover the bay and make the running of the ferry boats hazardous. There are on the island, not only fine scenery, but also good land for farming and gardening. The residents, who are loyal to the island, many of whom were born there, have for years agitated for a tunnel under the narrows, from Brooklyn, but the politicians of the "greater city" encourage them at election time and let it go at that, but there is no doubt that the project will eventually take shape.

"Closed on Sundays during July and August," is a notice conspicuously placed in the retail store of John W. Hauser, 571 Madison avenue. David Clarke's Sons, Broadway and 75th street, have had Sunday closing for a year or more. It would be well if both wholesalers and retailers would agree to close on Sunday. People can just as well buy flowers on Saturday night as they can buy other goods, and on general principles. Sunday work is not good for anybody.

Since Joseph G. Leikens departed for Brownsville, Texas, as a soldier, the business is being conducted by his very capable wife and his nephew, Mr. Bruce, both of whom are now at the Newport store. The New York store is in charge of L. Beckers.

J. B. Henry, who has been in Richmond, Staten Island, a number of years, and who at one time was located in Brooklyn, has a considerable glass area and grows fine geraniums and other pot plants.

Charles A. Dards, who has been on a trip to Japan for the past four months, is expected home this week. He is an observant man and is likely to have something interesting to say when he arrives.

Chris. Bothe, of Tompkinsville, is probably the most extensive grower of cut flowers on Staten Island. He has a good range and turns out good stock. He, we believe, is a life-long resident.

John V. Phillips of Brooklyn had the order for about 250 bouquets, June 29, for the graduating class of the Brooklyn high school for girls. William A. Phillips and wife, of this firm, are on a week's trip to Boston and other New England points.

J. C. Vaughan, of Chicago, who attended Admiral Westcott's "opening" at Waretown, N. J., June 23, came on to New York and spent the past week at Vaughan's Seed Store, returning to Chicago, July 1.

Charles Hemet has a fine range at Port Richmond, Staten Island, and, assisted by his sons, grows a great amount of fine stock, specializing in plants. He has been there for many years.

W. L. Trumpare, who for a number of years was buyer and store manager for J. H. Small & Sons, on Broadway, New York, now has a nice retail store on Bay street, Stapleton.

David Gordon, who now has the range formerly conducted by F. G. Hawkins, at Stapleton, Staten Island, has a fine lot of chrysanthemums planted, and they are doing well.

Alfred M. Schneider, of Max Schling's staff, is taking a month's vacation. This store has been very busy for the past two weeks with weddings and funeral work.

Miss Mabel Conkling, bookkeeper for H. E. Froment, has gone on a month's vacation. George Orth and William Negro of the same store are away for a two weeks' sojourn.

G. E. M. Stumpp is at his Southampton, L. I., store. Reports from there indicate that there are many social events, which should make business for the florist.

A force of painters and decorators are now at work on the interior of the new store of J. H. Small & Sons, 505 Madison avenue, but business is going on as usual.

John Nikel, formerly a commercial grower, of Stapleton, Staten Island, is now in charge of a private estate. His brother, Joseph Nikel, continues in the commercial line.

William H. Siebrecht, of this city, and Chappaqua, N. Y., is building another large greenhouse, at Chappaqua, where he specializes in acacias and Darwin tulips.

George Schlegel, the well-known orchid grower of Brooklyn, is tearing down his old houses to replace them with more modern structures.

At Traendly & Schenck's we have recently noticed fine stock of the standard varieties of tea roses, grown by Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J.

SOUTH TEXAS seedsmen are complaining of drought.

CORN crop conditions in the west are improving. Corn is big along the Missouri river.

THE winter-top onion set harvest will begin July 10-15, with prospects of an average crop.

MRS. LEONARD H. VAUGHAN, Chicago, with her four children, is making the trip to Boston, Mass., by auto.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are doing well, but the weeding expense has been unusually heavy.

FROST is reported, June 17, from the midlands of England where some of the big seed growing farms are located.

THE S. S. Ryndam, well known in the Dutch bulb trade, reached her Holland port recently in a badly damaged condition.

BLUE GRASS seed dealers are unwilling to make prices at the present time. They say that the prospects are that the new crop will be short.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—L. L. May, of St. Paul, Minn., is out of the hospital, but is still in the city, not having yet been released by his physician.

CINCINNATI, O.—J. Chas. McCullough entertained Troop C of the Ohio National Guard in training for Mexican duty, at Pleasant Ridge, his country place, June 27.

TACOMA, WASH.—The will of the late Frank S. Poole, president of the Poole Seed & Implement Co., who died March 24, has been probated. The value of the estate is $37,000.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Steele's Mastodon Pansy Gardens report seed sales this year show an increase of 200 per cent over the business in 1915. The eastern demand is especially good.

D. H. GILBERT, of Monticello, Fla., specialist in watermelon seeds, says this item is likely to advance materially in cost next season, owing to the high price of fertilizers needed in the culture of the crop.

LAWRENCE S. PAYN attended the seedsmen's convention at Chicago, June 20-22, in the interest of his firm, Simon Louis Freres & Co., of Bruyeres-le-Chatel, France, and is now calling on the trade in the leading cities. Mr. Payn's address is care of F. B. Vandegrift & Co., 15 Whitehall street, New York.

WALTER P. STOKES, the well known Philadelphia seedsman, died in Maine July 1. This is the fourth seedsman of that city who has passed away recently, the others being W. Atlee Burpee, Wm. Henry Maule and Robert Buist. Mr. Stokes was president of the American Seed Trade Association in 1902.

H. A. NALDRETT, representing Kelway & Son, Langport, Somerset, Eng., is calling on the American trade. Mr. Naldrett's address is care of Thomas Meadows & Co., 8-10 Bridge street, Battery Park, New York.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The St. Louis Seed Co. says trade this spring has been about the same as 1915 in sales and also in volume of business in general. This firm was only hampered on account of being unable to get its full supply of flower seed from Germany as usual, also the shortage of several varieties of beans. These items have reduced the sales considerably. Spring bulbs, gladioli, dahlias, tuberose and caladiums have been in demand and this concern is about sold out of all these varieties.

The Late Walter P. Stokes.

French Bulbs.

Toulon advices of June 12 indicate that the growers are not satisfied with their harvest of French bulbs, which has been in progress some days. The crop is only a medium one. Hyacinths show more disease than usual, and narcissi have not made as good growth as in previous seasons. Drought following the flowering period has injured the bulbs considerably. Add to this the scarcity and high price of labor, it may be concluded that many growers will leave their narcissus bulbs undug in the ground and await the possibility of marketing the cut flowers therefrom in the early winter. Such laborers as can be found are already engaged to work in the vineyards where the harvest is very fine this season. Wines are bringing high prices at present, and this industry is much more attractive than bulb growing.

Vine Seeds.

Fremont, Neb., June 10.—We have had a rather cold and somewhat wet and backward spring here which has caused considerable replanting of sweet and field corn, also some replanting of vine seeds and our reports from Rocky Ford state the conditions were rather dry, cool and windy out there, causing a slow and uneven growth, but they hoped to have a good stand with improved conditions. We have not heard the reports from Kansas and some other Colorado and western points, but understand it has been generally cool and rather unseasonable in most sections and that the vine seed crops farther west are making a slow growth, but taking good root and if the weather warms up, we hope for good crops.

Summer squash has been the hardest crop to place on account of the low prices the trade is willing to pay, which makes it difficult to interest the growers as there is no feeding or other value to summer squash crops excepting the seed product and yet the trade will not pay as much as for winter squash, which has a feeding value and does not require a machine to take the crop out, or cost as much to clean and make it ready after being seeded. We think the time will come when the seed trade will be obliged to pay as much, if not more, for summer varieties of squash as they do for winter varieties and which they should do.

Contract orders from the trade have been running larger than usual on most varieties.

The Late Walter P. Stokes.

Walter P. Stokes, for many years engaged in the seed trade in Philadelphia, Pa., and a prominent member of the Society of Friends, died suddenly, July 1, while on a fishing trip in the Maine woods near Moosehead Lake. Death was due to heart disease. Mr. Stokes resided in Moorestown, N. J. With him on the trip were J. Morton Brown and J. Edward Moon and wife, of Trenton, N. J. They left here about 10 days ago, and until a few minutes before his death Mr. Stokes was seemingly in excellent health. Mrs. Stokes had expected to join them this week and go with her husband to Northeast Harbor, Me., to spend part of the summer.

Mr. Stokes was born in Philadelphia 60 years ago. When a young man he became a member of the firm of Johnson & Stokes, 219 Market street. The firm was dissolved in 1906 and Mr. Stokes' business was taken over by a corporation, of which his son, Francis C. Stokes, is the head. The deceased was head of the tree commission of Moorestown, first president of the Moorestown Field Club, a member of the board of directors of the Friends hospital, Frankford, and of the Cheyney Institute for Colored Youth. He was a member of the Northfield Country Club, Atlantic City, and the City Club, Philadelphia. He was a past president of the American Seed Trade Association and was widely known in the trade throughout the country. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Anna Saylor Stokes; a daughter, Mrs. Edwin A. Russell of Richmond, Va., and two sons, Francis C. Stokes and Walter P. Stokes, Jr.

The funeral, held at his late residence in Moorestown, July 5, was largely attended by representatives of all the seed houses in Philadelphia and vicinity and many of the local craft, by whom he was held in the highest esteem.

New Jersey Seed Crops.

Pedricktown, June 14.—Seed crops in southern New Jersey have all been planted except winter squash and pumpkin, which are going in the ground this week under favorable conditions, although the season has been backward and late, owing to the prolonged cool spring. Such crops as tomato, egg plant, pepper, cucumber, melons and corn have made a fair stand. We have been blessed with sufficient rains to date, also bugs and beetles as usual. Acreage about normal outside of egg plant and some varieties of pepper, which is less than last year. With warm nights and plenty of sunshine from now on, with an occasional shower, crops will improve materially.

P.

Swedesboro, June 10.—The weather in this section for May was cold and dry and almost all seed crops are backward. There has been a nice rain this week, which will enable us to get a full acreage of tomato, egg plant and peppers, and growers now have their plants in the fields. We have been able to get out a large acreage of vine seed and prospects are for full crops, providing warm weather comes.

French Seed Crops.

We take the following from a personal letter, dated May 11:

"At the present time it is very difficult to have contracts for the 1917 crops accepted by the growers at any price on account of the shortage of labor and the high wages of the working class. We have had lots of roots and plants grown both for this and next year's crops, but these are lost owing to the impossibility of planting.

"On the other hand, potatoes, beans, wheat, oats, etc., are now such remunerative crops not subject to such contingencies as seed crops that most of the former seed culturists grow them in preference to seeds which are always erratic crops, needing much care and knowledge.

"Again, we have had a strange winter and spring. December and January were the mildest months we have had for 50 years. Plant growth continued to such an extent that it was possible in February to place on exhibition flowers of nearly 100 outdoor plants, some of which usually bloom much later. This was followed in March with blizzards accompanied by snow or rains, culminating in floods and many plantations of turnip and other seed crops were lost.

"We, therefore, anticipate very poor crops of most items, even under the extraordinary efforts to encourage the seed growers by higher prices, fully double the former remuneration in some cases. From this it will readily be understood that most seeds will be expensive for years to come and some will be so scarce as to be difficult to obtain at any price."

Iowa Seed Crops.

Muscatine, June 12.—The cold, wet spring was hard on our pepper and melon plants especially, but they are doing better now. Too soon to report on asparagus, as it is just in bloom now, so can not tell how well it will set seed. Rhubarb set a fine crop of seed, but we had a hard wind last week which blew off quite a bit of it. Sweet potato plants are starting off well. Egg plant and tomatoes are getting ahead of the bugs now, so think prospect on them is good. So much of the land on the lower half of Muscatine Island was overflowed that the acreage of water melons, especially, will be much less here than usual.

THE KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

Seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22. GIANT KENILWORTH STRAIN. The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from $3\frac{1}{4}$ to 4 inches. It is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.
24. GIANT KENILWORTH SHOW. An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance. A beautiful collection of colors and markings.
26. GIANT KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 to 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.
28. GIANT MASTERPIECE. A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stem.
30. GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES. A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich, velvety colors; reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large, dark blotches.
32. GIANT PARISIAN. The flowers are of enormous size and beautifully marked, mostly fine dark blotches on white and yellow ground; an unusually showy mixture.
34. GIANT BRONZE. A fine mixture of all shades of velvety brown, bronze, Havana brown, mahogany and copper shades.
45. GIANT APOLLO. (Masterpiece type). New bronze, veined and blotched. Strongly frilled petals. A superb Pansy.
47. GIANT ERFORDIA. (New Red). Of the Masterpiece type. The largest and best red. The result of ten years of selection. The color is of a deep, smooth, velvet red shading to scarlet, with curled petals and sweet scented.
49. GIANT MERCURY. New. A deep blackish purple, really self-colored, without blotches or spots. The flowers are extraordinary in size and substance, being the largest flowers of all self-colored Pansies.
82. ORCHID FLOWERED. Mixed. A dwarf, free bloomer, with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other Pansies; a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, bluish mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamais.

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming Giant Pansies

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.

18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations. Each color separate or mixed. 500 seeds 50c., 1,000 seeds \$1.00, $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., \$2.00, $\frac{1}{2}$ oz. \$3.75, 1 oz. \$15.00.

20. PRINCESS. The New Upright Pansy.

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weatherproof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy, velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 Seeds 20c., 1,000 Seeds 35c., $\frac{1}{4}$ oz. \$1.00, $\frac{1}{2}$ oz. \$2.00, 1 oz. \$7.50.

FREE OFFER RAINBOW is a mixture of the most beautiful, gorgeous colors, blotched, striped, veined, margined, etc. With every $1.00 worth of Pansy seed I will send, free, 1,000 seeds of Rainbow and with other amounts in like proportion.

Prices of Kenilworth Pansy Seed

All sorts of mixtures except the new Pansy Princess and the Early Flowering or Winter Blooming are \$5.00 per oz.; \$1.25 per $\frac{1}{4}$ oz.; 5,000 seeds \$1.00; trade pkt. of 1,000 seeds 25c; any 5 pkts. \$1.00. Please order by number.

Bagatelle Rose Trials.

With all the troubles incident to the war it is very pleasing to note that the municipal council of Paris, France, continues the excellent condition of all the municipal gardens, especially the Bagatelle rose garden. The annual awards for new roses in this competition were made June 15 as follows:

Constance (Pernet-Ducher) received the gold medal for a rose of French origin. This variety, which is a great improvement on Rayon d'Or, needs no description.

Mrs. Wemyss Quin (Alex. Dickson & Sons) received the gold medal as the best variety of foreign origin. This is a superb variety and created a sensation.

Admiral Ward (Pernet-Ducher) dark red hybrid tea, superb variety, first class certificate.

Ghiselaine de Feligonde (E. Turbat & Co.) a true perpetual climbing multiflora with superb golden yellow flowers, first class certificate for the best climber.

Andre Messimy (Quillot) hybrid tea, orange ochre, shaded carmine, second class certificate.

Benedictus (Leenders) hybrid tea, a huge bloom, certificate.

American Association of Nurserymen.

As announced in our issue of July 1, page 1274, the forty-first annual meeting of the American Association of Nurserymen opened at Milwaukee, Wis., June 28, with an attendance of about 250. Following the welcome extended to the visiting delegates by Mayor Hoan, President Welch in his opening speech said:

Our organization has been made more perfect, our constitution and by-laws have been wisely revised, and an organization of co-workers has put its shoulders to the wheel. Under the reorganization plan, the management rests largely with the members of the executive committee, the president being chairman. During the past year the duties were distributed by the appointment of sub-committees, as follows: Finance, publicity, programme and membership. The work of the legislative committee has been greatly benefited by the employment of Curtis Nye Smith, of Boston, as general counsel. He has given careful attention to all legislative questions that have been brought up during the year. There have not been many changes in freight rates since our last convention. On June 1, 1915, rates on car lots in the official classification were advanced from fifth to fourth class in spite of the protests of the shipper. An organized effort should be made to secure a minimum of 14,560 pounds for small cars in both official and southern classification territory. The question of tariff is one which has confronted the business man for half a century. Personally, I favor an advance in the rate of nursery stock not otherwise specified, in order to check the importation of foreign stock and give greater protection to the American grower. The executive committee has adopted a system of trade terms which were published in connection with Bulletin No. 1. These terms were also adopted by the Western Association of Nurserymen.

The slogan, "The Nursery Business for Nurserymen," enunciated by W. H. Wyman in the first paper to be read, seemed to be the keynote of the entire convention. In his paper he said he believed one of the first items of business to which nurserymen should set themselves, is to work out a plan to put the business upon a dignified basis. Any man, who is a member of the American Association of Nurserymen, should need no other badge to vouch for his integrity and the public would be better served if horticultural products were dealt out by nurserymen who were properly standardized by membership in the association. He suggested as a condition of membership, that no man shall sell to any one outside of this association any nursery stock at a price below his published listed prices. It should be a choice between the nursery fraternity on the one hand, and the hucksters and drygoods houses on the other.

A paper, entitled "Who are Entitled to Receive Trade Lists?" was read by J. H. Dayton, who said in part: "What is a trade list? I should say a list quoting lowest prices to legitimate nurserymen who are engaged in the trade and buy stock to sell again at trade or wholesale prices. I believe that every one growing stock in quantity for the trade, ought to issue a trade list, mailed only to men actively engaged in growing nursery stock and selling it together with what he buys, to the trade for reselling and that just as far as their orders will justify we ought to bill at lowest quantity rates. As a result of the discussion following this paper, a committee was appointed to report recommendations in regard to regulating trade lists, and this committee later presented the following recommendations, which caused a lively debate, but in spite of much opposition, were adopted:

TRADE LIST RECOMMENDATIONS.

1. That the American Association of Nurserymen compile for the use of its active members a mailing list containing the name of each and every nurseryman, dealer or firm engaged in the growing of nursery stock for sale, or the selling of nursery stock through agents or catalogues.

2. We recommend that each state, through a committee of five resident nurserymen, appointed by its state vice-president, be empowered and delegated full and absolute authority to furnish to the American Association of Nurserymen a list of names of all nurserymen and dealers who in their judgment are entitled to wholesale trade lists.

3. We recommend that each and every state vice-president be delegated the authority to add to or take from his state list any name who, in his judgment and the judgment of his committee, is or is not entitled to the nurserymen trade list.

4. We recommend that each and every state list be furnished to the association by the various state vice-presidents at the earliest date possible, and that these lists be compiled into an official directory, by the secretary of the association, or his assistant.

5. We recommend that an appropriation be made at this time sufficient to cover the expense of compiling and printing these lists and that the secretary be authorized to employ necessary assistance to complete this directory in the shortest possible time.

At the publicity session which followed the executive meeting the principal speaker was J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., his topic being, "Co-operative Nursery Publicity." He called attention to the vast changes that have occurred in the attention paid to all things that grow on land and the desire of the people to know of the things that are being grown, but he added that the nurserymen were far behind the times in the way of advertising sense, lacking in newspaper publicity, and suggesting the appointment of a committee carefully selected for sectional representation to prepare a plan for co-operative publicity to be presented at the next convention. He suggested all members try out local advertising in their home papers and report results to the publicity committee on blanks prepared for the purpose. E. H. FAVOR, editor of the Fruit Grower, St. Joseph, Mo., the next speaker, had for his theme, "Cheaper and More Productive Advertising." He emphasized the point that all advertising to be successful must be backed up by the right kind of stock and good service and that the suggestions of a practical advertising man should be followed in presenting nursery stock to the public. J. M. Irvine of the Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia, was a visitor at this meeting and also spoke a few words on effective methods of advertising. Frank B. White of Chicago contributed a paper on "Fair Play Nursery Advertising", in which he urged co-operation in the matter of a higher grade of nursery stock and the standard of the trade generally.

W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass., here presented the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the incoming president be directed to appoint a committee on publicity to consist of seven members selected from seven sections of the United States, to which shall be committed the various propositions and discussions presented at this convention relating to obtaining better and larger markets for our products, and that the executive committee be requested to provide such funds as are practicable for the support of this work; this publicity committee to report at our next convention on such plan for co-operative publicity.

Prof. Hugo Kuechenmeister, who spoke on "A Practical Cost System for Nurserymen," brought out many good points relative to cost of production and a better system of accounts generally. A letter from the New York chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects was read in which it was asked that the A. A. of N. appoint a committee to meet with the committee of their society to act as a clearing house in all matters pertaining to the two societies. On motion of J. H. Dayton such committee was appointed. The report of the arbitration committee was next presented by W. C. Reed, chairman. This is the first year that this committee has been in existence and in the few instances that came before it satisfactory settlements had been effected.

Herbert Chase, Delta, Colo., in his paper on "Proper and Uniform Bunching, Packing and Handling of Nursery Stock," made comparisons of six carloads of nursery stock received in Colorado from different firms. The shipments received in two cases were in perfect condition, trees tied 10 to a bunch, two labels to each bunch and a box index indicating everything so that orders could be shipped out at once. In contrast the other shipments were poorly packed, $\frac{1}{2}$ and $\frac{3}{4}$ tied in same bundle, some bunches unlabeled and had to be thrown away. Another paper on the same subject was read by W. T. Hood, Richmond, Va., who spoke of evolution in the packing of nursery stock from the time of Franklin Davis to the present day. The speaker has been in the business for 51 years and his remarks were listened to with interest. Other papers followed by Prof. F. L. Washburn, state entomologist of Minnesota, on "White Pine Blister Rust;" Prof. J. G. Sanders, state entomologist of Wisconsin, on the "Cotton Boll Weevil," a warning against insect pests and plant diseases.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE RESOLUTIONS.

The following recommendations offered by the executive committee were accepted:

That each state and district nursery trade association be invited to appoint a committee of one, these committeemen to constitute an advisory board to work with the executive committee of this association, the object being to closely connect the various trade associations with the national association, and to provide a specific working plan between them.

That the work of the nomenclature committee be continued, with an appropriation of $250, or as much thereof as is necessary for this work the coming year.

That executive sessions of this association be open to active members only.

The following resolutions offered by the executive committee were adopted:

Whereas, the free distribution of nursery stock by the federal or state governments at the cost of the taxpayers (nurserymen included) is, and has been proved to be, a serious menace to and interference with the legitimate commerce of nurserymen, and

Whereas, said free distribution of nursery stock, if continued and extended, will surely injure the planters of horticultural products, because the nurserymen cannot and will not be attracted to the propagation of high grade or indeed of any stock, or to the discovery of new strains or varieties, be it

Resolved, That the American Association of Nurseryman in annual convention at Milwaukee, Wis., June 28-30, 1916, expresses its unqualified disapproval of such free distribution of nursery stock, and be it further

Resolved, That the secretary of this association respectfully convey to the proper committees, officers or members of congress a copy of these resolutions.

Resolved, That the American Association of Nurserymen regard with disapproval the shipment by Holland nurserymen, or others, of stock to be sold at auction and in other ways than by those in trade, to the detriment of legitimate nursery interests, and that the officials and members of this association are urged to discourage these practices in all proper ways, and that copies of this resolution be mailed to the foreign nurserymen, with the request that the resolution be brought to the attention of their trade associations, and, further, that copies be furnished to the trade papers.

Resolved, That we approve of the idea of the confidential bulletin, and authorize the executive committee to continue to publish the same at such intervals as they may deem necessary, such publication to be mailed to active members only, and the said bulletin shall be the official organ of this association. No business advertisements shall appear in the official organ.

Resolved, That we renew our request of the last convention, that the entertainment features of the next annual meeting be eliminated, thus relieving the local nurserymen of an unnecessary tax, and better permitting the transaction of the business of the convention.

Resolved, That the executive committee be authorized with full power to act, to work out to the best of their ability and in such manner as they may decide, the problems connected with the establishment of a credit, collection and reporting bureau; collection and distribution of statistics; the publication of the confidential bulletin, and to put the same into operation as soon as possible.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: John Watson, Newark, N. Y., president; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., vice-president; Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb., treasurer. Executive committee, three-year term; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., and E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia. Philadelphia was selected as the next place of meeting.

In addition to the trade exhibits mentioned in these columns last week, interesting displays were made by the following:

De La Mare Printing Co., New York, books and pamphlets.

F. W. Watson & Co., Topeka, Kan., apple seedlings.

D. Hill Nursery Co., Dundee, Ill., evergreens.

Stark Bros. Nursery & Orchards Co., Louisiana, Mo., one-man box truck.

HAMMOND'S GREENHOUSE WHITE PAINT AND TWEMLOW'S OLD ENGLISH LIQUID PUTTY.

WHAT ONE MAN SAYS FROM EXPERIENCE:

RODMAN M. EISENHART, Florist, Torresdale, Pa.

Violets a Specialty. Telephone Connection.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1st, 1915.

Mr. Hammond's Paint Works:

I have been using your paint (GREENHOUSE WHITE) and TWEMLOW'S GLAZING PUTTY for the last fifteen years, and both have given me entire satisfaction, especially the Glazing Putty, which when properly put on, makes a house rainproof and almost air-tight.

Respectfully yours, R. M. EISENHART.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Hydrangeas.

The young stock that was propagated this spring can be grown either for Easter blooming with a single stem or for summer blooming with three or four heads. The plants should be now potted in 4-inch pots and plunged in a frame, where they will receive attention. They should have a good rich soil and a strong, sturdy growth encouraged. For those that are to be bloomed early, as soon as the pot becomes full of roots a little liquid manure will help the formation of a good strong bud. Those that are wanted for summer blooming, the tip can be rubbed out and branches will form. Leave the plants outside until the first light frost, which will harden off the wood, and they can then be stored in a cool house or pit where they will not freeze. Those wanted for Easter will have to be placed in heat by the first of the year.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine.

The early rooted Begonia Gloire de Lorraine will now need shifting into 3½-inch pots, and should be given a little stronger soil than the young stock was potted in, but the manure used should be well rotted, and, where obtainable, a generous addition of leaf-mold. As the plants grow, space them out so that they will not become drawn and so that there is a good circulation of air around each plant. They will need a little shade on the glass for a few weeks, yet, but it should not be too heavy. As the nights become cool it is well to close the frames down if they are outside, or if in the greenhouse, close the ventilators, leaving a small crack of air on, or the house will sweat, which is not at all beneficial to begonias, as it is very apt to cause spot on the leaf. If this occurs remove the leaf at once. Care should be taken in the watering not to wet the foliage any more than possible. The later rooted stock will not need potting up until later, but all the growth possible should be obtained by giving them the best of attention. If the grower has not stock enough on hand, now is the time to purchase before the plants are shifted into large pots, when the price will be higher and the transportation charges increased.

Pyrethrums.

An early summer flower that is very showy and beautiful, ranging in colors from white to the deepest scarlet, with all the intermediate shades, is the Pyrethrum roseum, and it is being much more grown every year for cut-flower purposes. The best flowers are to be obtained by buying named varieties, but good selected seed will give fair satisfaction and many handsome flowers. The greatest trouble in growing these plants in the north is the danger of winter killing and crown rot during extremely wet spells in hot weather. Seed sown during July and August and wintered in houses or cold frames will produce plants that will flower next summer. Obtain the best seed possible and sow in flats and as soon as large enough pot in 2½-inch pots. These can be grown on in a frame until cold weather comes on, when they can be securely covered or carried into a cool house and wintered under a bench, started in March and planted out as soon as secure from frost, and will flower in June and July.

Paper White Narcissi.

The Paper White narcissi are now being received and as soon as delivered should be unpacked and spread out in flats or on shelves in a cool, dry place. If they remain in the original cases, they are apt to become moist or heated when packed closely. They should be handled carefully and not thrown around so that they become bruised or the outer covering torn off.
This covering is a great protection for the bulb, preventing it from drying.
Plan how the bulbs are to be flowered, that is, how many are to be brought forward each week, and start at once to box up the first lot and then continue the plantings at the desired intervals. The flats or boxes should be prepared at once, not only for these, but for the other bulbs. It is the general custom to use any old box that can be obtained, and they are, therefore, of different sizes and different depths. They do not pack closely when placed outside, neither do they seem to fit on the bench in an economical manner. Our experience has been rather than to buy a mixed lot of boxes of different sizes, it is better and cheaper to purchase stock at the lumber mill and saw it into the proper length. Get one-half inch stock, three inches wide, for the sides and bottom Pennsylvania Hort. Society Exhibition.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, despairing of getting a fair attendance at its spring and summer shows, in its hall on Broad street, has taken the bull by the horns and moved the exhibitions almost to the homes of its interested members. The peony show was held on the main line and the sweet pea exhibition, June 28-29, in the large hall of the Jenkintown club and reading rooms, at Jenkintown. The building was nicely decorated with palms, bay trees and ferns.

of the clearest white, large and of very good substance. Another, a near-yellow, is the closest approach as yet to this desirable color. These two varieties were awarded certificates of merit and the display a silver medal. There were 13 entries for the best 12 vases, separate varieties, all of which were fine. Another long table was required for the entries of the separate varieties, there being eight vases of the Fiery Cross in competition.

A group of palms, anthuriums and flowering cattleyas and another of cibotium, with a vase of splendid spikes of Candidum lilies in the center, were staged by John Dodds, gardener for John Wanamaker. Thos. Logan, gardener for Clement Newbold, also had a fine group of foliage plants, enlivened with vases of perennials and annuals. Thos. Meehan & Sons staged some fine irises. The exhibition was well attended and a great success in every way. S. S. Pennock, G. W. Kerr and Robert Kift awarded the prizes.

Summertime Industry.

Summer is here with all its lassitude and long time between orders—a little scurry in the morning at times, followed by the everlasting dullness, which, together with the heat, brings on that tired feeling that seems to kill off any desire to attend to other than matters of the most importance. To the ambitious and wide awakesman or woman, there is opportunity presented in this time of absent customers to look over the stock and fixtures, the machinery of the business as it might be called; hunt out the weak and worn parts, repair and paint up, and get everything in order for the fall campaign.

Comparatively few men know just what they have in stock; an inventory is a tiresome, and to many, an unnecessary detail, while as a matter of fact it is one of the most essential things in the business. Aside from and one-inch stock the same width for the ends. Saw the ends 12 inches long and the sides 24 inches. This will make a flat 13x24 inches by using four pieces for the bottom and will allow proper drainage. A flat of these dimensions will hold about 50 Paper White narcissi or 60 to 70 tulips, and will cost but little more in the price of the box and can be made with much less labor, and when the boxes are all of one size they can be placed upon the benches with much saving of room. As soon as the bulbs are planted in the flats they should be placed in a dark, cool place and covered with soil or ashes until rooted, when they can be brought into the houses. The early planted bulbs will require good heat to bloom them successfully, much warmer temperature than the later planted bulbs.

Sweet Scented Geraniums.

The grower who has a stock of rose or other sweet-scented geraniums can turn them to good account by planting them in a bench in the greenhouse and can obtain some fine sprays for winter cutting. The green is very much appreciated by the best trade and there is always a demand in the stores catering to that class for more of this than can be obtained. The sprays are cut 12 to 14 inches long and are used in the boxes of cut flowers. There is also a demand for the leaves, to be placed in the finger-bowls at luncheons. It is easily grown in a cool house and very rapidly makes long sprays fit to cut. The plants can be set about eight inches apart, which will give them plenty of room, provided the sprays are cut as soon as they are long enough for use.

There was a fine display of sweet peas, which, despite the unfavorable weather, were for the most part of very good quality. W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s collection, staged in the usual good style by G. W. Kerr, was exceptionally fine; there were over 75 vases containing some 50 or more sprays in each. Conspicuous among them was a vase of a new white, as yet unnamed, a truly splendid flower the money value determined, a careful study of the stock left on hand at the close of the season emphasizes the mistakes made in buying, as sometimes dozens or half dozens of various kinds of baskets, vases and jardinières are found intact or possibly only a piece or two had been sold, showing that they had not been well displayed or that the customers had failed to appreciate them. Good storekeeping would reduce this condition to a minimum; if the articles do not seem to be in demand an especial effort should be made to work them off, even at a reduced price, so that something more practical may take their place. This keeping things moving is a matter that should be studied by the great majority of the trade; those who have seen the direct advantage of rapidly turning over the stock, presenting the newest and most up to date things to their customers, have a distinct advantage over their slower competitors.

All stock at this season is shopworn and should be overhauled and made as far as possible to look like new. A nail or two loose here and there, a water stain or a few scratches, will, if allowed to remain, make junk of an otherwise good basket; a few repairs, a little paint or gilt, and it is as good as new. Pot covers and pedestals are found to be much the worse of the season's wear and tear. Now is the time to repair. For all round efficiency, a good dark olive or plant green is the best color. A stock of good, stout rattan in several sizes is splendid material for repair work of this kind. A ring of stout rattan, nailed to the bottom of a pot cover, next the outer edge, is a great protection to the frame work, as it receives the jar and contact when placed or often dropped on the floor. Wooden bottoms for any sized pot cover can be had from the supply man or turned out at a local saw mill; these will be found very useful to replace cracked sections or make new tops for pedestals.

In looking the stock over, quite a little will be found that is useless, things that have been lying around for years taking up space and making a clutter place for rubbish. All this should be sent to the dump. Everything possible should be done to make as much free room as possible. Tools should have a wall space with each separate article outlined in black. The saw, the hatchet, hammers, shears, scraper, screwdrivers, etc., are then in full view at all times; there should also be a shelf for the nail box, marking ink, paints and brushes, the rules rigidly compelling the replacing of these articles when one is through with them.

Wire designs should be orderly arranged; a racked wall space will provide for most of them and when in place, the extent of the stock is seen at a glance and renewals provided for before the last of a size is gone. A good, wide mossing table is a necessary fixture. A large stock of designs can be mossed up during the summer spare time, using sphagnum for this purpose. The heavy green clump moss is considered necessary by some, but it must be used fresh at the time the piece is made up and has not the element of preparedness to be found with the sphagnum, a few of the mossed pieces of which have only to be moistened to be ready for instant use.

The making of magnolia wreaths is summer time recreation. Anyone in the shop can be taught to make a well formed, shapely wreath. These, if kept from the dust or a very damp situation, will last indefinitely. Before being made up the leaves should be wiped clean with a cotton flannel rag and the stem ends cut off. Some florists stem each leaf on a toothpick or a skewer stick, but this is unnecessary, as the greening or small hair pins fasten them securely, making on a properly mossed frame a very symmetrical design. Very much of the drudgery of the holiday seasons is relieved by having on hand a good stock of such designs. Prepared oak leaves also make a good wreath, which, to some, is not considered as artificial looking as the magnolia. The red chenille Christmas wreath is another article that can be made at this time to advantage; a rounded lightly mossed sphagnum frame will do nicely for a foundation, although the professionals use a papier mache hollow-center form, on which to wind the long red chain. These plain wreaths can be made salable by the addition at Christmas time of natural or artificial holly berries, cones, grasses and appropriate ribbons. The small automobile wreaths are made by wrapping the chenille around a small No. 10 wire ring; these are miniatures of the larger sizes, but bring correspondingly much larger prices. There are many other matters along similar lines that will suggest themselves to help enliven and keep up the interest in the work at this season. If the generally idle summer time is utilized in this way, there will be less night work and the store machinery will move along much more smoothly when the business stress comes on. K.

TENTH ANNUAL OUTING OF GREEK-AMERICAN FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION AT WITZEL'S POINT VIEW GROVE, L. I., JULY 6, 1916.

Officials in Charge: (1) D. Soterides, Member Committee on Arrangements; (2) C. Thomas, Secretary of the Association; (3) Chris. Pappas, Chairman Committee on Athletic Games; (4) Geo. Hanges, Chairman Committee on Arrangements; (5) Costos Sakelos, President of the Association.

Greek-American Florists' Ass'n. Outing.

The tenth annual outing of the Greek-American Florists' Association of New York was held at Witzel's Point View Grove, College Point, L. I., July 6, and was a very successful affair, as all the outings of this association have been. The steamer "Ajax" took a large party to the grove in the morning, and this was greatly augmented in the afternoon by arrivals in autos and by the electric lines. On the arrival of the steamer at the grove the party was photographed, after which a substantial breakfast was served, and following came base ball, races, dancing, bowling and other forms of amusement. Before the boat started on the return trip an exceptionally fine dinner was served.

At the close of the dinner, President Sakelos made a speech, which is nothing new for him, as Charles Schenck says he makes a speech every time he buys anything in their store. However, he had a more appreciative audience at the outing than he usually has in the wholesale stores, and his remarks were felicitous and were well received. He closed by introducing George Hanges, chairman of the outing committee, who distributed the prizes. The awards follow:

Boys' race, under 10 years; 100 yards—Lascaris, 1st; St. Theodoratos, 2nd.

Girls' race, under 10 years; 100 yards—M. Carlaftes, 1st; S. Wilson, 2nd.

Young ladies' race, 200 yards—Miss Agnes Birnie, 1st; Miss Maud Nicholas, 2nd.

Married ladies' race; 150 yards—Mrs. K. Kardiasmenos, 1st; Mrs. George Orth, 2nd.

Young men's race; one mile (novice)—Carlaftes, 1st; Theodoratos, 2nd.

Fat men's race; 150 yards—S. Zezzar, 1st; G. Carahahos, 2nd.

Broad jump—Tourney, 1st; Sherochos, 2nd.

Base ball; Greeks vs. Americans—Won by Greek team. Prize $10 in gold.

Race for members; 200 yards—K. N. Sakelos, 1st.

Greek outing marathon; 2 miles—Mavrikir, 1st; J. Cretie, 2nd; Sackell, 3rd.

Bowling—M. Denis, 1st.

Six hundred persons attended the outing. The day was fine and the association deserves credit for the excellent arrangements and the able manner of carrying them out.

OUTING NOTES.

Eddie Ankers, of Traendly & Schenck's staff, says that it is not right for married men to go to outings, and dance with other women, leaving their wives at home. Agreed. Move that hereafter no married men be allowed at an outing unless they take their own wives.

One of the attractions at Witzel's Grove is a shooting gallery, and Horace E. Froment established a reputation as a good shot.

George D. Nicholas, who has always been active and popular at the outings, was missed this year, a nephew having died suddenly, July 1.

Well-known American florists who attended were: Chas. Schenck, W. F. Sheridan, P. J. Smith, E. C. Horan, H. E. Froment, Chas. Millang, Anton Schultheis, Sr., Anton Schultheis, Jr., A. J. Guttman, Dan Sullivan, Wm. Bogart, Harry Riedel, Phil. Ditzzenburger, Geo. Orth, Chas. Matthews, Arthur Radice, W. R. Jackson, Eddie Angers and others. A. F. F.

Dahlia Names.

In all groups of cultivated plants, especially those in which new varieties easily and quickly arise, confusion of names is almost certain to occur. This confusion it is the province of a nomenclature committee to prevent or to rectify; and the earlier in the development of the group the work of such a committee can begin, the greater the share of its energies it can devote to prevention of confusion, the less time need it spend in rectification, and the more satisfactory will be the final result of its efforts.

With the dahlia, this important work has been almost overlooked for what is now nearly a century of growth of the flower in America; so that the elimination of incorrect and unnecessary names for dahlia varieties (and the weeding out of unworthy kinds that should accompany nomenclatural work), is now an almost impossible task. However, much can be done if all the members of our society will aid by furnishing suggestions and information.

The first step taken by the committee has been to propose a scheme of classification of dahlias, by which the broad groups of flower forms, into which the horticultural species divides, are defined and named. This scheme has been accepted, with slight modifications, by the executive committee of the society, and is now presented to the members for criticism and suggestion. It is the hope of the members of both committees that this scheme, in its final form, may be adopted by all dahlia growers in America for their catalogues and by show authorities for their prize lists; so that the broad terms, "single," "duplex," "show," "pompon," "decorative," "cactus," "penny-flowered," and the like, as applied to dahlias, may acquire a definiteness and fixity that will make a little more certain than has been the case in the past the use of these terms in dahlia literature.

But the real work of the nomenclature committee has hardly yet begun; which is the attempt to insure, so far as possible, that each name given a dahlia variety shall represent a definite idea. Then two persons, reasonably familiar with dahlias, will be able to feel some confidence, when either speaks or writes of a variety, that the other will have in mind the same flower. Now, hundreds of chances for confusion exist.

These nomenclatural ambiguities originate in many ways; but are always peculiarly liable to be numerous in a group like that of the dahlia, developing simultaneously along quite similar lines in so many different countries, with quite rapid interchange of varieties, but with no central agency for interchanging or checking names.

The dahlia well deserves its most commonly applied specific name, variabilis; since hundreds of thousands of dahlia seedlings may be produced in a single season, each slightly different from every other, and each a potential variety liable to christening should its producer, alone, see fit; and capable of being widely disseminated in from three to five years.

It is said that one breeder in England has grown 65,000 seedlings in a year. Fortunately, he has been wiser than many other breeders on a small scale who look with fond parental eyes on almost any variant among their seedlings; for of the 65,000 probably not more than 50 were even carried into the second season.

Under such conditions exceedingly similar, if not identical, varieties originate in different places each year, of which some pairs are named, differently, of course, pass into commerce, and may be quite widely disseminated before their essential identity is brought to light by some grower who tries them side by side. Such apparently duplicate varieties are Cuban Giant and Dr. J. P. Kirtland, Mary D. Hallack and Queen Victoria, Lucifer (German), and Ami Barillet (French), Bon Maza and Uncertainty, Harold Peerman (English), and Tante Blanche (French?) and several others known to the writer. There are undoubtedly dozens, if not hundreds, of other pairs so nearly alike that one name should suffice for the joint stock of both varieties, or of which one is enough better than the other to warrant discarding the inferior form and releasing the name for a better variety.

In some cases, however, so-called "improvements" on old varieties lose their apparent superiority when grown elsewhere than on the grounds of their originators. The dissemination of such improved (?) varieties should be discouraged until thorough testing under diverse conditions has proved the added floriferousness, greater size, etc., to be due to something more than the first impetus of cross-breeding.

Again, a breeder may originate a variety, name, and disseminate it, wholly unconscious that another has already selected the same name for an entirely distinct variety and given it some permanence by distributing stock. The society, guided by its nomenclature committee, should, in future demand that the baptismal record of a new variety introduced or handled exclusively by its members should be filed with it and approved before the new flower-child be considered legally entitled to presentation to the world. Had such a system been adopted 25 years ago, especially with an arrangement for international name-exchange, we would not now have quite so many Queen Marys, Monarchs, Meteors, Dandys, Comets, Charms and Sunshines, nor duplications of such uncommon appellations as Blushing Bride and Safrano.

Another frequent cause of duplication of names is the introduction of varieties with foreign names by different importers. One retains the original name, the other translates it into the English form or drops the foreign name entirely and substitutes for it another of his own choosing. So we have listed in American catalogs Ruhm von Baarn, a peony-flowered dahlia so named by its Dutch originator, Gloire de Baarn, the same flower after it had passed through France or Belgium on its way to us, and Glory of Baarn, the Anglicized name for the variety. Here the last part of the name gives a clue to the essential identity of the variety under the three names, but should we apply the same rule to Souvenir de Franz Liszt and Andenken von Franz Liszt, which express an identical idea in French and German, we would be in error, for the varieties under these two names are apparently wholly distinct.

Four names in three languages, all found in American or English lists, are Sneeuw witje, Schneewittschen, Snow White and Snow Queen—Dutch, German and English name, translation or mistranslation of the name for one beautiful white dahlia. To make the confusion complete some other introducer should apply the true translation, Snow Butterfly, for one of these forms.

Occasionally, also, a grower loses the name of a variety of which he has only a small stock, renames it temporarily, hoping soon to re-establish its identity, but before he can or does find the true name, distributes some stock under the false one and so gives this name a standing in the dahlia world to which it has no right.

It is even suggested that some dahlia growers, more pushing than scrupulous, have thought that, since "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet," it could do the flower no harm and might aid in working off the stock of some languishing variety if the old name were dropped and one a little more attractive selected.

Sometimes names are duplicated purely by accident, as Kielia, written hastily looks very much like Kulia and so has appeared in this way in print or in written lists. So, also, Meraviglia has masqueraded as Merongalla, Bessie Palisser as Bessie Palsifer and Indianerin as Inderianna; while Prince of Denmark, abbreviated as Pr. of Denmark, has finally passed into pretty good dahlia society as Prof. Denmark.

These are a few of the ways in which the list of dahlia names has become unnecessarily burdened and their application made uncertain. As the first step toward reform the nomenclature committee would be glad to know of all instances of these or similar errors; so that they may be included in a complete list of current dahlia names now in preparation. With this list as a basis and with some opportunity for the members of the committee to study most of these varieties collected in a few places for comparison, it is believed that the number of names could be profitably cut from the 5,000 or more now listed to one-third or one-fourth of this number. Certainly that number of varieties would give ample opportunity to gratify every taste. Only united, hearty support by the individual members of the society will make any such reduction possible.—American Dahlia Society Bulletin.

HEAVY SUPPLY AND NO DEMAND.

Business is now at about its lowest ebb. There are large quantities of stock coming in, with practically no demand, consequently prices are very low. Sales are made now with more of an idea of getting something for the goods rather than any thought of value. Roses are plentiful, and only the very best flowers bring satisfactory prices, the average blooms being sold for practically anything that is offered. Carnations are also abundant and $1 per 100 is the very highest figure, the majority being sold at from 33 1-3 cents to 75 cents per 100. Quite a large supply of herbaceous stock is coming in, of which delphiniums are the best sellers. Good spikes bring $1 per 100. Jack roses have not been selling as well as usual, $2 and $3 per 100 being about the price, as the quality is not up to its usual standard on account of the excessive wet weather. Outdoor sweet peas are in good supply, and are one of the best selling lines in the market. Fifty cents per 100 is the average price of good quality flowers. There are practically no prospects of having a better market until the bulk of the crops are thrown out.

NOTES.

The Copley Plaza Flower Stand, which has been conducted by Thos. F. Galvin since the opening of the hotel, has changed hands, Sidney Hoffman being the new proprietor.

CLUB MEETING.

Members of the florists' club journeyed to Fred Goldring's at Font Grove for the July meeting. One of the notable things in connection with the gathering was nine automobiles lined up along the road adjacent to the greenhouses. When the meetings were first held at this establishment, about nine years ago, the members journeyed by train; this year nearly all came either in automobiles or in auto busses, which run over state roads out of Albany. In the matter of a visit to the city board of education to request that the practice of presenting flowers to the pupils on the stage at the school closing exercises be restored, Edward P. Tracey, chairman of the special committee, reported that the board was unable to change the regulation this year, but might do so if the matter were called to their attention early next year. The club voted to continue the committee. The subject of holding a clambake brought out much discussion. It was finally decided to hold the bake at the grove of Henkes Brothers, Newtonville, Saturday afternoon, August 19; tickets for men, $2 each; for women, $1.25 each. Reports on the sale of tickets are to be in the hands of the entertainment committee on or before August 12, so as to enable the committee to formulate its plans. At the meeting the members present pledged themselves to take 56 tickets, a good indication that the number will be considerably larger. Fred Henkes called the attention of the members to a development at Menand's by F. W. Stevens, a local builder, who has erected a number of bungalows in the suburb. Each house is sold with an outfit of porch and window boxes which are now filled with plants in full foliage and bloom. Mr. Henkes suggested that other builders and house owners should be encouraged to use the boxes, as they are effective means of decoration, and the sale of plants helps the florists. It was decided on account of the lateness of the hour that a paper on "Seeds," to have been read by Louis H. Schaefer, be laid over until the next meeting. The invitation of Fred Henkes to hold the August meeting at his place at Newtonville was accepted, as was also the invitation of Fred A. Danker to hold the September meeting of the club at his home on Central avenue. Following the meeting a social time with refreshments was enjoyed. R. D.

BUSINESS STRIKES LOW GRADE

The bottom has dropped out of the market completely. Stock, such as it is, continues plentiful. Roses can be had at any old price. Carnations are poor in quality and are not wanted. Some very good asters and dahlias are arriving, and gladioli are plentiful at prices varying from $3 to $6 per 100. Sweet peas are very poor, as is also snapdragon. Lily of the valley is still up in price, the best selling at $6 per 100.

NOTES.

Miss Wiede, one of the sales force at the Washington Floral Co., was operated on at the Providence hospital last week. She is getting along as nicely as can be expected, and hopes to be able to leave the hospital in a few weeks.

Everything is ready for the outing of the florists' club. The prizes this year are the best that the club has ever been able to present to the winners of the various events.

Miss Barry, bookkeeper for Z. D. Blackstone, has just returned from a week's vacation spent at the Blackstone farm.

A. Winkler, of Chevy Chase, is cutting fine asters and Gladiolus America.

J. L. Loose and wife are enjoying a sojourn at Berkeley Springs, Va.

Cincinnati.SHIPPING BUSINESS HOLDS UP WELL.

Last week the market was very quiet. There was plenty of stock, but it met with a weak demand. Shipping business, however, is holding up pretty well. Roses are plentiful and a limited amount of carnations may be had. Both gladioli and Easter lilies are plentiful. Excellent sweet peas are coming into the wholesale houses, and the first asters arrived last week.

W. Ray Murphy, of the William Murphy Co., spent the latter part of last week and the first part of this week on a fishing trip on the White-water river in Indiana.

C. E. Critchell has been showing some good outdoor sweet peas.

Wm. Taylor has been cutting some excellent America gladioli. H.

Houston Convention Notes.

Secretary John Young, who will arrive in Texas a little ahead of time to complete arrangements for the convention at Houston, will spend a day or two at Dallas, where he will be the guest of the Texas florists at a banquet, July 17. Weather permitting, with Vice-President Kerr and others, he will visit a number of the cities of the state by automobile in the interest of the S. A. F. Indications are that Secretary Young will be given a rousing reception upon his arrival. A number of the craft from other parts of the state will visit Dallas on the occasion of his visit.

The executive committee for the convention is composed of the following: Vice-President R. C. Kerr, Houston, chairman; Louis Oesch, Dallas; F. W. Hensel, College Station; T. J. Wolfe, Waco; J. E. McAdam, Fort Worth; H. O. Hannah, Sherman; Bird Forrest, Waxahachie; Chris Houser, San Antonio, and E. E. Stone, Dickinson.

The programme for the entertainment of the visitors has been practically completed, and when not attending to the business of the convention the delegates will be on the go very much of the time. A general outline of the local hospitalities includes a trip down the ship canal to the San Jacinto battle grounds where a barbecue will be served, followed by sports of various kinds. There will also be a trip to Galveston, where a dip in the surf may be taken, and dinner will be served at the Hotel Galvez. Band concerts will be a feature of the convention garden this year, and there will be a special moving picture that will be of interest to all members of the society. The usual automobile rides about the city and suburbs will not be overlooked. These and many other side attractions indicate that those in charge intend to show their guests what true southern hospitality is, and are intent on making the Houston meeting one of the most enjoyable in the society's history.

Vice-President, S. A. F.

Montclair, N. J.

When we visited Montclair, July 10, it was in the throes of an election campaign. Having decided on a commission form of government, the next step was to elect the commissioners. It is acknowledged that Montclair is pretty well governed at the present time, and the commission experiment will be watched with interest. Although there was a long list of candidates, embracing professions and trades from lawyers to carpenters, we failed to find the name of a florist, and the florists of Montclair are successful business men and good fellows. We suspect they are all too busy to go into politics.

A. S. Wallace, 29 Fullerton avenue, has a large glass area and grows a variety of stock. He also has a good store, and in addition has quite a trade in seeds.

F. W. Massman, 416-418 Bloomfield avenue, has a very fine store, with a large conservatory in the rear, which is well stocked with plants. He is reputed to have been very successful since he located in Montclair. In years ago we often met him in the wholesale district of New York as a buyer, but having reared a clever family, we surmise that he can now take life easier and let the boys work.

Robert Freytag has a neat store at

The Late Wm. Tricker.

690 Bloomfield avenue, and another store and greenhouse at West Orange.

The growing and retail business formerly conducted by the late David Rose has been continued by his widow. A. F. F.

Montreal.LIMITED SUPPLY AND GOOD SALES.

Business held up remarkably well during the past week, and the trade report exceptionally good sales. Stock is somewhat scarce, but the supply of outdoor flowers is plentiful and perennials are used liberally. Peonies are about over—when they were in full swing nothing else had much of a call. Roses are scarce, as are carnations. White flowers for funeral work are also in short supply. The season is very backward. Sweet peas, which are generally in full crop at this time, have not commenced to flower. J. L.

Oklahoma City.

In spite of the fact that it is mid-July, the flower business is holding up well; there appears to be a good general demand in all lines of the trade, parties, weddings and funerals coming frequently enough to keep all hands busy. The local florists also feel fortunate that all the outside stock is doing so well this season, for they are cutting plenty of salable flowers from their gardens.

We find that W. H. Mann, who has a range south of the city, was the only sufferer from the recent hail storm, and his losses were not very heavy, about 300 lights of 12 by 14 glass.

Mrs. Eager, of Furrow & Co., left July 9 for a six weeks' vacation, to be spent principally on the Great Lakes. S. S. B.

OBITUARY.Charles William Bret Tricker.

Charles William Bret Tricker, the well-known grower of aquatics, died suddenly of heart failure in one of his greenhouses at Arlington, N. J., 10 minutes after he had arrived there on the morning of July 11. He left home apparently in the best of health. His son Charles was with him when he died.

The deceased was born in Ipswich, England, 64 years ago. He had acquired wide knowledge of the business and worked as a commercial grower before he came to this country in 1886. Thereafter he had charge of several private estates, being with Judge Benedict on Staten Island for seven years. He located in Arlington about 10 years ago. He was a member of the Masonic order, Society of American Florists, Horticultural Society of New York and its council, the New York Florists' Club and the National Association of Gardeners.

He is survived by a widow and six children: Mrs. William Seymour, of West End; Mrs. J. M. Coddington of Riverton; Rupert, of Pensauken; William E. of St. Paul, Minn., and Charles and Miss Florence of Arlington. Masonic services were held at the home, 518 Chestnut street, Arlington, July 13. Interment was in Arlington cemetery, July 14.

Edward M. Bogie.

Edward M. Bogie, a grower and retailer of Jersey City, N. J., died at his home, July 5, aged 43 years. He had for several years been a sufferer from tuberculosis, but with wonderful courage he kept about until the day of his death. As an instance, at 8 p. m. on that day he wrote a check and mailed it to J. K. Allen of New York, and at 11 p. m. he died.

His father, the late Alexander Bogie, who died seven years ago, founded the business in 1880, and since his death Edward had conducted it. The deceased was a man, even when afflicted with what he knew to be an incurable disease, of a cheerful and kindly disposition, and had many friends. He is survived by two brothers and one sister. His funeral was held at the family home, July 8, the pastor of the Presbyterian church, which he attended, officiating.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—N. J. Shingledecker is building one house here.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—Extensive improvements, which will include the addition of a conservatory are to be made at the store of the Rosemont Gardens.

OTTAWA, ONT.—The June peony exhibition of the Ottawa Horticultural Society was excellent in every way and the hall was thronged with interested visitors. At the close the flowers were sent to the hospitals.

LENOX, MASS.—At the annual meeting of the Garden Club of America held here, June 30, Mrs. J. Willis Martin, of Chestnut Hill, Pa., was elected president and Mrs. Francis King, Alma, Mich., secretary.

CHESTNUT HILL, PA.—The engagement is announced of Joseph F. Myers, of the firm of Myers & Samtmann of this place, and Miss Helen Campbell, daughter of Geo. E. Campbell, well-known rose grower of Flourtown, Pa.

LEAD has been reduced to $6.50 per 100 pounds.

THE late William Tricker, whose death is recorded in our obituary column this week, was a most enthusiastic student and grower of aquatics, and contained in the back volumes of THE AMERICAN FLORIST are many excellent articles on these plants from his pen. Victoria Tricker, by some growers considered a distinct species, was named in compliment to him.

Cleveland's Autumn Flower Show.

The premium lists for the flower show which will be staged by the Cleveland Florists' Club, in conjunction with the industrial exposition and fair to be held September 2-9 are ready for disposition and may be had upon application to M. A. Vinson, manager, 1393 West 25th street, Cleveland, O. Excellent displays will come from private estates in and about the city, but there will be numerous classes for amateur gardeners and commercial growers as well.

Canadian Horticultural Association.

Arrangements have been practically completed for the annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Society which will be held at Berlin, Ont., August 8-10, and the programme will be in the hands of the printers in a few days. The following subjects are included in the list of papers and discussions: "Commercial Ferns," by E. I. Hayward, Montreal; "Success With a Home Garden," by Geo. Baldwin, Toronto; "Culture of Peonies and Dahlias," by Harry Tattle, Toronto; "Bedding Plants," by F. Wise, Peterboro; "The Gladiolus," by J. A. Campbell, Simcoe; "Problems of the Retailer," by Harry Dilleuth, Toronto; "Outdoor Roses," by J. Luck, Montreal. There will also be interesting reports on tariff, plant registration, etc. The details of the social programme have not been announced, but it is promised that this will be full of interest.

The monthly exhibition of the association was held in connection with the regular meeting of the Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club, and proved to be quite a show, the competition being very keen, and the judges, Geo. Robinson and Geo. Pascoe, had a difficult task to rightly do justice to the many splendid entries. Special mention is due the plants and cut flowers staged by Hall & Robinson, especially their stocks and pot grown roses, which scored 19 points out of a possible 20. T. Trevis, W. R. Whitney and J. Luck were also large exhibitors.

An invitation was received from Professor Bunting of Macdonald College to visit that institution, and this was accepted, July 12 being decided upon as the date.

The annual outing of the association will be held at Otterburn park, July 26.

J. LUCK, Sec'y.

Chicago to Houston.

The going trip on the occasion of the annual convention of the Society of American Florists, to be held at Houston, Tex., August 15-17, will be one of the pleasant features, as it will convert an ordinarily tedious journey into a most enjoyable one. The route takes us through highly scenic and picturesque country. Occupying our own special cars we leave Chicago via the Wabash Midnight Banner Express at 11:55 p. m., Sunday, August 13, and arrive in St. Louis at 7:40 Monday morning. The party will have breakfast here, enjoying the well-known Harvey service. Members from other points will join us in St. Louis, and our special cars will be attached to the Iron Mountain Texas Limited, leaving at nine o'clock. A short distance from St. Louis we pass the United States recruiting station, Jefferson Barracks, which will be of especial interest at this time. For a distance of 22 miles we skirt the shores of the Mississippi. Continuing our journey we soon arrive at the heart of the Ozark Mountains, Little Rock and Benton, Ark. In close proximity is the famous pleasure resort, Hot Springs. At 11:30 that evening we enter the great state of Texas at Texarkana, which takes its name from Texas and Arkansas. At this point one may be sitting in Arkansas, and by crossing the aisle of the car can be in Texas. The night and following forenoon are spent in a direct southerly path through Texas via Palestine and Trinity to Houston, where we arrive at two o'clock that afternoon in time for the opening of the convention. One can readily perceive the social advantages and the added pleasure afforded in making this trip together through this most interesting section of our country, and many have already expressed their intention of being with the party. You are cordially invited to join us.

The fare from Chicago to Houston is $30.21. The charges for Pullman sleepers from Chicago are as follows: double lower berth, $6.75; upper berth, $5.40, drawing room, $24.

CIRCLE TOURS.

One can purchase a circle tour ticket which permits going to Galveston (with a stop at Houston), boat from there to New York, a seven-day cruise on the Mallory Line, including one-day's stop over at Key West, and return to Chicago, via Niagara Falls and Detroit; or via Philadelphia and Washington. One can also take the Atlantic Line from New Orleans direct to New York, a five-day trip, and from New York as above mentioned. Cost of either of these tours is but $80. Meals and berth on boat are included.

For further details, Pullman reservations, and other particulars, address H. L. Purdy, care of Wabash Railway Co., 808 Edison building, Chicago. Telephone, Harrison 4500.

Vesey's Buy Orchid Collection.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey, well-known growers of Fort Wayne, Ind., will start work shortly on four new houses, which will be used to provide quarters for a collection of orchids recently purchased by them from George Field, Washington, D. C., at a cost of $15,000. The collection comprises practically all of the commercial varieties, many of which have never been grown in the west, and will be used solely for cut flower purposes. This firm is said to be among the largest growers of orchids in the middle west, and the purchase, which will require three cars for transportation from the east, will prove a valuable addition to the already extensive orchid section at its establishment.

Indiana Dunes for Public Park.

The Horticultural Society of Chicago, The Wild Flower Preservation Society of America, The Prairie Club, The Audubon Society of America and a number of other kindred organizations, co-operating with many prominent citizens of Indiana, Michigan and Illinois invite all persons interested in preserving the dunes as a public park to be present at a joint meeting to be held adjacent to the Beach House, Tremont, Ind., Sunday, July 16, at 2 p. m., when an organization will be perfected. Trains will leave Illinois Central Randolph street station, Chicago, at 7:15 a. m. and 9:15 a. m.

FUNERAL WORK BRINGS BRISK BUSINESS.

Business showed a decided improvement during the past week, due to a heavy demand for funeral work. Roses are arriving better, both in quality and quantity, especially Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst and My Maryland, all of which are selling at fancy prices. There is an abundance of carnations, but most of them are of inferior quality. Sweet peas are to be seen everywhere, and although some are of poor quality there are also some very fine ones. Gladioli are making their way to the front more and more every day and are of A-1 quality, the best ever seen here at this time of the year. Dahlias are also coming in and the quality is excellent. Outside garden stock is arriving by the wagon load. Shasta daisies are the leaders and are, as usual, good sellers.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes had a brisk call during the week for funeral work and hospital flowers. He is now planting carnations, and his chrysanthemums in the benches are doing fine, while the pot stock is the best he ever had.

Funeral work has been very good at Arthur Newell's establishment. Summer trade has also been very satisfactory. Mr. Lacey, who is now in charge, says that business keeps up, even if the "boss" is not on the job.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. are cutting heavily in garden flowers. The demand for funeral work is very good. Mr. Rock is at The Club, Lakeview, Kan. Miss Richards and Walter Oberg are also on their vacations.

The chrysanthemum stock at The Rosery is showing fine form. Mr. Ellsworth continues to spend much of his leisure time at Forest Lake and reports the fishing good.

T. J. Noll & Co. are handling very fine Ophelia, Sunburst and Russell roses, as well as the Killarneys. They receive 1,500 Colorado grown carnations daily.

A. F. Barbe reports a good summer trade. His carnation and chrysanthemum stocks look fine.

Worcester County Horticultural Society.

The annual rose show of the Worcester County Horticultural Society was held in Horticultural hall, Worcester, July 1, and was largely attended. Despite the lateness of the season, it was generally conceded that this year's rose show was one of the best ever held by the society. The various exhibits were arranged in such a manner that the hall resembled a landscape garden. The stage garden, in which an orchestra was hidden, was the work of Edward W. Breed, ex-president of the society. The awards were:

Roses, 12 blooms—Edward L. Hall, 1st; M. J. Whittall, 2d; E. L. Hall, 3d.

Roses, 6 blooms—M. J. Whittall, 1st; Mrs. W. C. Ward, 2d; Mrs. P. G. Forbes, 3d; Mrs. S. T. Pierce, 4th.

Roses, 20 vases—M. J. Whittall, 1st; Mrs. S. T. Pierce, 2d; Irithorpe Farm, 3d; E. S. Hall, 4th; Elizabeth R. Bishop, 5th.

FLORAL WORK WEEK'S FEATURE.

Stock is very plentiful. Roses shorten up at times, but again come on in heavy supply, and sweet peas are arriving in large numbers and the flowers are of very good quality. The supply of gladioli is far in excess of the demand. Carnations are poor and most growers are throwing out their plants. There has been plenty of floral work during the past week, and everybody has been busy. Boston continues to ship quantities of short roses to this market, but they clean up well. The first of the outdoor asters arrived this week.

NOTES.

Macnair has his annual water scene in his windows, and it is attracting an unusual amount of attention. The scene this year is the finest shown in this city for some time. A ton of water per minute goes over the falls into the large tank at the bottom and the roar is tremendous. The display can be seen from the street cars and is electrically lighted at night.

Olney Williams is cutting large quantities of outdoor sweet peas, more than the local trade can dispose of, but he expects the out-of-town demand to take care of the balance.

BURPEE'S EARLY

— OR —

WINTER-FLOWERING SPENCERS

The House of Burpee has long been recognized as "American Headquarters for Sweet Peas," and our introduction of these Fordhook Strains of Winter Flowering Spencers marks an era in commercial Sweet Pea growing.

The Novelties offered below, excepting Yarrowa, are the results of crosses made at our Fordhook Farms during the past seven seasons. All stocks are grown at our Floradale Farm, "The California Home of Sweet Peas."

FORDHOOK PINK AND WHITE:—A most popular Winter Flowering Spencer. A color that is always in demand, similar to the old Blanche Ferry, bright rosy pink standard, wings almost pure white. The immense flowers measure 2½ inches in diameter and are perfect in form. A very early, free and continuous bloomer, awarded a Certificate of Merit at the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March, 1915, and the American Sweet Pea Society, San Francisco, June, 1916. ¼ oz., $1.25; ½ oz., $2.00; oz., $3.50.

FORDHOOK PINK:—This is a distinct shade of pink suffused with lavender throughout. Flowers are large size, exquisitely waved, produced in threes and fours on long stems. ¼ oz., 40c; ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1.25; ¼ lb., $3.50; ½ lb., $6.25; lb., $12.50.

FORDHOOK ROSE:—Introduced by us in 1915. Flowers of largest size usually borne in threes and fours. A charming shade of rosy carmine. Awarded a Certificate of Merit at the International Show, New York, March, 1915, and the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March, 1915. ¼ oz., 50c; ½ oz., 85c; oz., $1.50; ¼ lb., $4.00; ½ lb., $7.50; lb., $15.00.

YARROWA:—This magnificent Australian variety has proved its unusual merit with commercial growers in all parts of the country. It has an exceptional reputation as a sure-money-maker. First exhibited by us at the great International Show in New York, March, 1914, and awarded a Certificate of Merit by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, March, 1915. Flowers exquisitely waved, averaging 2½ inches in diameter, many of them being duplex or double. A bright rose pink with a clear, creamy base. ¼ oz., 35c; ½ oz., 60c; oz., $1.00; ¼ lb., $2.75; ½ lb., $5.00; lb., $10.00. Our Special Leaflet on Winter Flowering Sweet Peas free on application.

EARLY JULY SALES BETTER THAN 1915.

Trade so far this month has been fairly good, and in a majority of cases the sales show an increase over the same period of last year. Stock of all kinds is plentiful, and is to be had in large lots at most reasonable prices. American Beauty roses are much more plentiful and very choice stock, especially from the young plants, is obtainable. Flowers from the old American Beauty plants are also very good for July, and like the new stock, are cleaning up nicely at good summer prices. Roses in general are in large supply, and at times sell at good figures. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are seen in large quantities at nearly all the stores, but the quality in a great many cases could be much better. Good roses of this variety sell quickly at reasonable prices, but the large supply of inferior stock has had a tendency to keep the average down. Ophelia and Sunburst are in good supply, and are moving well. Richmond, Rhea Reid, Milady, Hadley and Hoosier Beauty continue to be in good demand, and there is also a like demand for My Maryland, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Mrs. Moorfield Storey, Francis Scott Key, Lady Alice Stanley and Mrs. George Shawyer. White Killarney and Double White Killarney seem to clean up pretty well each day, and there are some very good Killarney, Killarney Brilliant and Killarney Queen to be had. A few Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Champ Weiland, Tipperary and Mrs. Bayard Thayer are included in the shipments, and are rapidly becoming a factor in this market. Mrs. Aaron Ward, Prince de Bulgarie, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and the miniature roses, Cecile Brunner, George Elgar, Fireflame and Baby Doll, are the other offerings in roses. Carnations are holding up remarkably well in quality this year, and are arriving in large quantities. Peonies are not as plentiful as they have been, and another few weeks will mark the end of the cold storage supply. A few northern Michigan grown peonies are arriving, and are having a good call. Practically all the local growers are through cutting and have dropped this item from their price lists. Lily of the valley is more plentiful than it has been for some time, but this is due more to the falling off in demand than to the increased cuts. Orchids are also in better supply and have dropped considerably in prices the past week. Gladioli are gradually becoming more plentiful and the first local grown outdoor stock, mostly Pink Beauty, reached the market last week. There is a good supply of indoor gladioli being offered in a large number of varieties, the best sellers being Mrs. Francis King, America, Chicago White and Myrtle. A large quantity of gladioli is arriving from outside points, principally Michigan and Mississippi, but so far the shipments from the south consist mostly of America, and the Michigan stock, Pink Beauty. Sweet peas are still seen in good supply, but are showing the effects of the weather. Asters, dahlias, larkspurs, snapdragons, stocks, daisies, coreopsis, gaillardias, candytufts, pansies, cornflowers, pond lilies, lilies, callas, feverfews, marigolds, delphiniums and a long list of other indoor and outdoor miscellaneous flowers are included in the offerings.

NOTES.

The annual stockholders' meeting of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association was held at their store on North Michigan avenue, Thursday, July 6, at 3 p. m., when the officers for the ensuing year were elected, as follows: Edw. Muret, president and director; Fred Schramm, vice-president and director; Chas. W. McCauley, treasurer and director; George Weiland, secretary and director, and Joseph Schoos, Fred Stielow, Jr., Rudolph Ellsworth and Anton Then, directors. The stockholders were enthusiastic over the showing that was made last year, when the sales increased fully 28 per cent over the previous year ending July 1. The firm is now starting on its fifth year, and is under the able management of Paul Klingsporn, who took charge three years ago.

William Duntemann, of Bensenville, was seriously injured on the afternoon of July 3, when a fire truck and wagon collided as they struck a water tank when the volunteer fire department, of which he is a member, was answering a call. The ligaments and tendons in both of his legs were badly torn, and it is understood that he will be laid up for at least six months, according to the attending physician. Chas. Erne and E. C. Pruner visited him shortly after the accident, and report that they found him making the best of the situation, although he was suffering greatly from the severe pain.

Arthur Weiland, son of George Weiland, of Evanston, was badly burned about the face the evening of July 3, when one of his fireworks exploded while he was trying to find out why it failed to go off. Fortunately, his eyes escaped injury, which seems a miracle, when one considers that his face was so severely burned.

A meeting of the wholesalers was held last week, when the affairs pertaining to the special service, inaugurated by the trade during the recent expressmen's strike were wound up, and a final statement issued. The total expense of conducting the service from May 17, 1916, to June 21, 1916, inclusive, was $1,932.38, which expense was divided between those who used it, at a cost of approximately 13 cents per package. Exactly 13,797 outgoing packages were handled, and 2,154 incoming ones. A part of the expense was incurred when the platform men walked out in sympathy with the expressmen, which made it necessary to deliver the shipments by autos to outside points, such as Harvey, Riverside, Hammond, etc. Fred Lautenschlager was manager, A. C. Kohlbrand, secretary, and E. C. Amling, treasurer, of the cartage service, and much credit is due them for the large amount of missionary work that they were called upon to perform, and which they were only too glad to render, notwithstanding that it interfered greatly with their regular work. The trade felt so indebted to Mr. Lautenschlager, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., in particular, for the splendid manner in which he handled the situation, that they presented him with a slight token of appreciation for the special interest that he took in their welfare, and it is needless to add that everyone fully realizes what he accomplished, and all join in extending him and his able assistants, A. C. Kohlbrand and E. C. Amling, a hearty vote of thanks. A committee, consisting of A. L. Randall, E. C. Amling and C. L. Washburn was appointed to interview the Interstate Commerce Commission in regard to whether or not the express companies ought to pay for a part of the cartage from the stores to depots, inasmuch as they always furnished this service previous to and after the strike. A committee, consisting of A. G. Burke, C. L. Washburn and N. J. Wietor, audited the expense books and found them to be O. K.

Roy J. Dills, with N. Bombersbach, Decatur, Isles Cole, of Heimbreyer & Cole, Springfield, Phil. Daut, with Daut Bros., Decatur, and F. H. Meier, Vandalia, were the guests of Ed. Jacob of the A. L. Randall Co. this week at Hotel Jacob, and from all reports everyone had a most delightful time. T. E. Waters escorted the crowd through Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s green-

John Walsh, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, will spend his vacation at Boston, Mass., this year, and will leave Monday, July 17. Miss Florence Scriven, who keeps the Flower Growers' books, is spending a few weeks at Phoenix, Ariz. Michael Fink, who is enjoying a well-earned rest, will be back on the job next week.

N. J. Wietor says that Wietor Bros. are busy planting their chrysanthemums, and that as soon as they are finished with benching them the only stock left to house will be the carnations. They have had an unusually brisk demand for chrysanthemum stock this season, and nearly every mail is bringing in new orders.

Frank Schleiden, with Chas. W. McKellar, will leave July 22 for Saugatuck, Mich., where he will spend his vacation. It looks mighty suspicious, for he leaves about the same time for the same place that one of the young ladies does who is employed in the wholesale market.

Herbert Craig, of J. C. Craig, will be the first of the store force to enjoy his vacation, and it is rumored that he is going to do the same thing that all the rest of the promising young men in the trade have been doing the past few months. Ask him what.

Miss Marguerite McNulty, book-keeper for Peter Reinberg, is an active worker in church circles, and had charge of an ice cream booth one day last week, when she sold over $50 worth of ice cream cones.

Kyle & Foerster are still supplying their trade with peonies, and will have enough to offer for several weeks to come. This firm is still strong on American Beauty roses in the longer-stemmed grades.

Weiland & Risch's shipments of gladioli have been attracting a number of visitors to their store, who are particularly interested in the varieties that they are growing and trying out this season.

Lou Bunte, of the Ernst Wienhoeber Floral Co., is enjoying a well-earned vacation. Frank Pasternik is next on the list to enjoy his, and will spend it with his family at Paw Paw Lake, Mich.

John Bruchner, George Bombenger and Joe Weis caught 114 perch off the government pier July 7 between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m., which they consider a pretty good catch.

P. J. Delinke, the Chicago avenue florist, is busy packing up his trunks, and will leave shortly for Cicero, where he will spend his summer vacation.

The E. F. Winterson Co. is offering a good supply of Boston ferns, which are reported to be very scarce in this vicinity.

C. Claussen says that his outdoor gladioli crop is a week later than last year, but that the quality as a whole is much better.

Hoerber Bros. are pleasing their customers with a fine grade of My Maryland roses, which they are cutting in quantity now.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are still handling a large quantity of peonies and will have enough to supply their customers all the rest of the month. This firm reports trade as good, especially in this line, with the sales comparing most favorably so far in July with those of the same period in 1915.

JULY STARTS OFF ENCOURAGINGLY.

July business started very favorably and continued so throughout the week, although the "pep" has already begun to slacken up, and the demand, although fairly good, is not so brisk. Stock is plentiful in most lines. Carnations are only fair in quality, but are moving nicely. Roses are mostly short-stemmed, and with the exception of Kaiserin, arrive partly open. A few long and medium American Beauties arrive, with a good demand. Easter lilies are very abundant, and it is unnecessary to tell of the fate of many of these in this hot weather. Candidum and water lilies are in good demand, and of excellent quality. Sweet peas are also plentiful, but of poor keeping quality, but growers assure one the quality is improving. Rambler roses in sprays, pink, white and yellow, have met with a good call. There are plenty of outdoor flowers to select from, both as to varieties and colors. Greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

Last call for the florists' club picnic at Willough Beach park, July 20. The committee assures use there will be a good time for all, old or young, man or woman. Games for children will be a feature. All club members and out of town florists and gardeners are invited to make this a big day. The indoor baseball game will start at 1:30 and the programme of other events includes base ball, races for boys and girls, women and men, with special classes for those of much avoirdupois of both sexes. The ladies' nail driving contest, sack races and three-legged races are always amusing features, and the watermelon and pie-eating contests have not been forgotten. There will be a tug-of-war between the wholesalers and the retailers. Prizes are also to be awarded in the jumping contests, ball-throwing and the relay race for men in pairs. Captains of the ball teams will kindly communicate with Chas. Graham, chairman of the entertainment committee, promptly.

Andrew von Quiram, of the Cleveland Florists' Exchange, has been away on his vacation this week.

FUNERAL WORK SEASON'S MAINSTAY.

There is not much activity in the flower business here at present, due to the extremely warm weather we have been having. There still remains a good supply of roses, carnations, lilies and outdoor flowers, but the returns realized could be much more satisfactory. A fair business is being done in funeral work, which is really all that is keeping trade alive. The summer business lull is affording many the opportunity of getting away for a rest and a number are taking advantage of this.

NOTES.

The florists' and gardeners' club has arranged for a field day in Sewickley Heights, July 19. The train will leave the Pennsylvania station at 9:20 a. m. and Federal street station at 9:25 a. m. George Wessenauer and his committee will meet this train at Sewickley and arrange for the transportation of the party to the Sewickley Heights territory, and provide a noon-day lunch for all the members of the club who notify him by Monday, July 17. The Sewickley members of the club are anxious to show the boys all the places in their district that can be visited in the time allotted. Send your notification to George Wessenauer, Sewickley, Pa., that you will attend and you will be well taken care of.

Ross E. Adgate, C. C. Phillips and E. J. McCallum, all of the McCallum Company, left July 10 for a fishing trip in and around Fairmont, W. Va., on the Cheat river. George McCallum will leave July 20 with a delegation, headed for Wildwood, N. J.

The Saxonwald Greenhouses are erecting a large addition to their plant at Castle Shannon. This will be the final enlargement, as 150,000 feet of glass is plenty enough to look after, according to Mr. Meuschke.

W. P. & S. L. Gallaher are now actively started in the retail business at their new location, 206 Fifth avenue, and are finding their opening days to be very satisfactory.

Joe Marks of the A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., Chicago, and Frank J. Farney of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, were in town July 7-8.

TRADE APPRECIATES CHANCE FOR REST.

Summer trade conditions now prevail—very little doing, but everybody seems glad to rest up after the termination of a very busy season which prolonged activities up to July 1. Very little stock of quality is now seen and the call for it is light. Some good Easter lilies are to be had, but the dearth of funeral work has caused this item to suffer, being little called for. Eastern grown American Beauties of good quality are on the market, but the demand is limited and the price correspondingly low, and the returns will be disappointing to the consignors.

Many of the local trade are planning for extended vacations. Philip Breitmeyer and wife have already departed for an all summer stay with their married daughter in Montana. Norman Sullivan is with a party of friends on an auto tour in the East, and Walter Taepke is preparing to leave shortly to enjoy his summer outing.

E. G. Reimers & Son Co., Inc., are tearing down some of their city green-houses and removing them to their country range. They report having better results in growing cut flower stock at the latter location. Last winter, carnations at the country place averaged 15 blooms to the plant, while the city average was only seven to eight and of poorer quality.

Freight and duty on nursery stock from Holland and Belgium are exceedingly high this year. On a shipment of small evergreens and rose plants invoiced at $125, the freight and duty was $189 and taking into consideration the cost of boxing, packing, etc., the charges amounted to nearly 200 per cent.

Andrew Rasmussen of New Albany, who bought some fine specimen evergreens in the east this spring and was unable to plant them in the location he had selected for them, now has them growing in tubs and they are in fine condition.

E. C. Walker has established a nursery and will specialize in evergreens best adapted for this locality. He is also a bee expert and as this has been a good honey season he will have several thousand pounds to dispose of.

The C. B. Thompson Co., Inc., had the order for the commencement flowers of the girls' high school, 150 in all, calling for shower bouquets of two dozen Killarney roses tied with tulle. The price was $1.50 each.

In a damage suit resulting from a street car colliding with and wrecking a wagon loaded with plants belonging to F. Walker & Co. last spring, the street car company has been ordered to pay all damages.

The wet weather has interfered with the nursery trade here, with the result that it was not quite up to normal this season. Plant sales, however, were about 30 per cent better than in 1915.

The New Nanz & Neuner Co. is building a new rose house 32x150 feet. The Nanz & Neuner catalogue, which has been published for 50 years, was discontinued this spring.

Brady & Bryant are a new firm that are handling cut roses exclusively at wholesale. They handle good stock, their prices are right and they are doing a nice business.

The Jacob Schultz Co. has the classiest delivery vehicle in the city. The color is Persian lilac, the body of special design, with beveled plate glass panels.

Wood, Stubbs & Co. have added a nursery for trees and will grow perennials extensively. Their plantings to date occupy about 15 acres.

A. Leeming is sending in sweet sul-tans, sweet peas and Shasta daisies, which find a ready sale at good figures.

The F. Walker Co. will finish planting carnations and chrysanthemums this week.

Midsummer inactivity has followed the intense heat which has characterized the past week. Funeral work, however, has been in good demand. June business this year was very good both retail and wholesale, the total sales being much heavier than in the same month, 1915.

The Berrydale Gardens of San Jose, Calif., will be moved to this city in the near future. The firm conducts a wholesale and retail business in calla lily and freesia bulbs, hybrid tea roses, berry and carnation plants.

The business session will be held on the afternoon of the first day and will be followed by a steamer ride on the lake and a banquet in the evening. Tewksbury, Mass.

A severe electrical storm, accompanied by high wind and hail, caused much damage to establishments of florists and vegetable growers in this vicinity July 2. At the range of A. C. Tingley, three houses were badly wrecked and a 6,000-gallon capacity water tower was carried 300 feet from its foundation. The range of Frank H. Farmer also suffered considerable damage and vegetable growers in the vicinity had much glass broken by hail.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

GOOD STOCK BUT LITTLE DEMAND.

All the customers are away; that is the word from the trade in the center of the city, the past week being very dull. There were a few important funerals, but outside of this demand there was scarcely enough business to ripple the surface. The supply of flowers is very good for the season; there was never a better assortment and the quality is all that could be desired. The supply of roses is diminishing, as so many houses are now being dried off, but there are sufficient of good Russell, eastern American Beauties, Ward, Sunburst, Hadley, White Killarney and Maryland for all demands. Carnations of such quality that $3 per hundred was obtained were seen, but the bulk sold for from one-third to one-half of that price. There is a great abundance of gladioli, southern greenhouse stock, some of it fine. All kinds of outdoor flowers, particularly sweet peas, are plentiful and very cheap. Lily of the valley is the only scarce item. Cattleyas are to be had in quantity at buyers' prices. There is the usual full supply of easter lilies. All the commission houses close now at noon Saturday and at five p. m. during the week, which course is also largely followed by nearly all the central cut flower stores.

NOTES.

The greatest problem of the rose growers is the selection of varieties for the coming season; the range of available sorts that have made good is steadily increasing and the risk is becoming something of the nature of a horse race to be able to pick the sorts that will be the favorites in next season's event. One of the successful younger growers is John E. Andre, of Doylestown. In his 60,000 feet of glass, he has confined himself to five varieties, Killarney, white and pink, Killarney Brilliant, Sunburst, and added Prima Donna this season. He has about 5,000 of each variety. Killarney Brilliant was his best bread-winner the past season. He has some splendid beds of Sunburst and also of Prima Donna, which are strong and vigorous, the picture of health. He aims to keep his bushes low, always pruning them well back. By this system of pruning he does not tie up his roses except one string around each bush to hold the branches together after they have been cut back. Numerous mulchings of manure are given during the season, none of the straw of which is removed, an added board being placed to hold it in—it gradually rots down and is taken up by the roots. All his watering when the stock is under way is with a more or less diluted manure water pumped under good pressure from a large tank. An artesian well over 200 feet deep has so far been an unfailing source of supply, but he is now adding as a reserve a large submerged cistern 13 x 80 feet and 14 feet deep, in which to catch all his greenhouse surface rain water. The last season's results have been very satisfactory to him. All his stock is handled by the Leo Niessen Co., being right at the railroad track, he has been able to get a siding run in, which is a great help in getting bulk shipments, such as manure and coal. By lengthening the siding he has made a coal yard and built up quite a business in this line on the side, enabling him as a dealer to get better service and also wholesale prices.

The postponed meeting on Tuesday last on account of the first Tuesday falling on the 4th, was for the season very well attended. The feature was the lecture of Dr. John Washburn of the National Farm School, Bucks County, Pa., on "How to Make Good Gardeners, Florists and Farmers Out of the Submerged Population of the Great Cities." It was a very good discourse, showing what can be done by intelligent work with inexperienced, but willing workers. It was well illustrated with appropriate lantern slides. The lecture was received with much interest and close attention, and at its close Dr. Washburn was given the thanks of the club.

BUSINESS AT LOW EBB.

The melancholy days have come,
The saddest of the year.

It was November the poet had in mind when he wrote the above, but it is applicable to the florist business of this city for the next two months. The weather is hot; a lot of poor stock is reaching the market and there is very little demand, even for good stock. Even the joys of "goin' a-swimmin'" have been nipped in the bud, for man-eating sharks are cruising along the New Jersey coast, and have already claimed two victims. Saturday, in the season, the best day of the week for the florists, is now the worst, and some stores, both wholesale and retail, are closing on Saturday afternoons, as nearly everybody that can get away leaves the city. There is funeral work, but, as was said of the twelve baskets: "What is that among so many?". American Beauties are plentiful enough, but many of them are poor. The best special stock has wholesaled at the rate of $20 to $25 per 100, but there are long stems with inferior buds that go as low as $6 per 100. In tea roses there is always a demand for a limited amount of special stock, but what is left over and inferior stock goes a begging, the push cart men coming in for a good share of it. There is but little demand for lily of the valley, and inferior stock is unsalable. Lilies, too, are very cheap. Many of the carnations arriving are practically worthless. The peonies are out, but a limited supply of greenhouse asters is already arriving. Sweet peas continue plentiful and cheap. There is the usual variety of outdoor flowers for this season, but no prices can be placed on them.

July 10.—The market is very quiet this morning, with a surplus of stock and much of it going to waste. Practically all stocks are very cheap, and it is more a question of getting rid of it than of prices.

NOTES.

Charles C. Johnson, who has had much experience in the plant auction business, has formed a partnership with Charles Millang. The firm name is Johnson & Millang, Incorporated. They have taken a floor in the Coogan building, Sixth avenue and 26th street, and as soon as necessary alterations are made will open a plant store, starting auctions in the fall on Tuesdays and Fridays.

The wholesale firm of Moore, Hentz & Nash was dissolved, May 27, by the death of Jonathan Nash. The new firm is Hentz & Nash, Incorporated, with Henry Hentz, Jr., of Madison, N. J., as president. A son of the late Mr. Nash is in the new firm, and is, we believe, the secretary. A further statement will soon be issued.

Celestine Bourque, buyer for the Charles A. Dards retail stores, has gone to White Lake, N. Y., for a month's vacation. While there he will be glad to hear from his many New York friends. Frederick Evans, of the same firm, is also on a four week's vacation at Bradley Beach, N. J.

Meyer Othile, of the wholesale firm of Riedel & Meyer, Inc., has gone on a two weeks' vacation to the lake region of this state. Meyer is cautious and intends to do his swimming in fresh water, where there are no man-eating sharks.

John Reynolds, with Henry M. Robinson & Co., and Thomas Fredrico, with B. S. Slinn, Jr., are in the Catskill mountains for two weeks.

SUMMER BULLNESS AT HAND.

Business is gradually settling down to its regular summer gait. The supply of outdoor cut flowers is plentiful and the quality is good, helping to offset the shortage of indoor stock which is showing the effects of recent hot weather.

CLUB OUTING.

A large fire which caused a delay in the electric railway service, our only means of reaching the picnic grounds, and the nineteenth congress of the North American Skat League interfered with the attendance of the basket picnic at Kieppers' park, July 9. A noticeable fact was the absence of many of the so-called "old timers." Nevertheless, with ideal weather, the programme of events was run off and many beautiful and valuable prizes were awarded, and all who attended had a most enjoyable time. The following were among those who donated prizes: Schroeder Floral Co., Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., Gimbel Bros., Schuster's, Boston Store, Wisconsin Plumbing & Heating Co., Dever Bros., Rauschenberger - Mueller Greenhouse Co., A. F. Kellner, Wm. Manke, Fox Point Floral Co., C. C. Pollworth Co., Nic Zweifel, J. Livingstone, C. Kamp, Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., A. Reinhardt, Kummer Floral Co., Holton & Hunkel Co., Heitman-Ostreicher Co., R. Lietz, Baumgarten Floral Co., Chas. Menger, Wm. C. Zimmermann, E. Welke Co., Currie Bros., G. H. Ackermann, Gust. Rusch Co., Hummel & Co., Downing, J. M. Fox & Son, Inc., Rose Semler and Fred Gutermuth. The awards were as follows:

Tug of war—Holton & Hunkel team.
Base ball—Cudahy team, score 11-4.
Race for women—Meta Kasten, 1st;
Lillian Hanisen, 2nd.
Fat men's race—A. F. Kellner, 1st;
A. Rendt, 2nd.
Peanut race—Ruth Voelzke, 1st;
Ione Zawodny, 2nd.
Girls' race—Pauline Gauger, 1st;
Ruby Kellner, 2nd.
Sack race—Hugo Marks, 1st; Grover Kash, 2nd.
Potato race (ladies')—Dora Gruenewald, 1st; C. Bauernfeind, 2nd.
Pie eating contest—E. Mecklenburg, 1st; L. Kornorowsky, 2nd.
Boys' race—W. Berndt, 1st; M. Samuel, 2nd.
Men's race—Clarence Retzlaff, 1st;
Hugo Marks, 2nd.
Melon eating contest—Ervin Walles, 1st; Wm. Wartgo, 2nd.

NOTES.

In the industrial parade during home-coming week the Waukesha Floral Co. decorated their delivery car entirely with fresh cut flowers, the color effect being red and blue, and were awarded the first prize.

Wm. C. Zimmermann, the Grand avenue florist, will be the delegate from the local aerie of Eagles at the convention which will be held at Savannah, Ga., August 11.

According to the will of the late J. M. Fox, James F. Fox becomes president and manager of the Milwaukee street store.

BUSINESS ASSUMES A QUIET TONE.

Market conditions here have suffered little change during the past week. Stock of all kinds is looking well. Some fine indoor carnations are seen, and dahlias, asters and gladioli are also of splendid quality and in good supply. Roses have also improved much during the past three weeks. It is noticeable, however, that business is getting more inactive.

NOTES.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson are handling carnations of exceptionally fine quality of the indoor kind. Also cornflowers and roses, in the latter especially noteworthy Ulrich Brunner, the Killarneys and September Morn. Trade here is reported fairly good.

Business continues good with the Redondo Floral Co. Part of the force are away and the rest are kept busy. Will Linzinbar, of this firm's staff, is spending his vacation at Catalina Island, where he is enjoying deep sea fishing.

O. C. Saakes, in addition to his usual supply of good stock, has been showing some extra fine Golden West dahlias. He reports trade a trifle quiet at present.

J. W. Wolters has been showing an unusually large display of Eucalyptus ficifolia; also salpiglossis in all their wonderful colorings.

The force at the Wright Flower Shop, Inc., celebrated the Fourth of July with an outing at Seal Beach.

S. Murata & Co. continue busy, sending many large shipments to the Rocky Mountain states.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President;
F. W. Belgiano, Washington, D. C., First
Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

Disclaimer Resolution.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at the annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, held at Chicago, June 20-22, 1916:

Resolved, That this association is opposed to any legislation affecting the germination of seeds, nullifying the disclaimer, or interfering with interstate commerce.

THE crop of Michigan beans for seed purposes was looking well July 9.

THE California bean crop is said to be short, due to drying winds and lack of rain in March and April.

VISITED CHICAGO: Arthur B. Clark, president of the Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn., westbound.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—L. L. May has returned from a Milwaukee, Wis., sanitarium greatly improved in health.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, reports the arrival of its first car of Lilium Formosum bulbs at Vancouver, July 1.

There has been a decline of 25 cents in the price of timothy during the past two weeks, due to favorable crop conditions.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, July 12, were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.50 per 100 pounds.

A. HENDERSON, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, and family made a four-day auto tour to Oconomowoc and Lake Geneva last week.

A. M. VAN DER SCHOOT, representing R. Van der Schoot & Son, Hillegom, Holland, expects to call on his firm's Chicago customers the latter part of July.

THE Georgia and Florida watermelon growers report prospects excellent, although the crop is somewhat reduced because of the high price of fertilizer.

PARIS, FRANCE.—Henri Louis de Vilmorin, of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., is reported to be in the French diplomatic service and in Holland at the present time.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—The heavy growth of white clover in the bluegrass section has made the bluegrass seed crop short.—Onion sets look favorable so far, notwithstanding the excessive amount of rain.

APHIS is active in the California sweet peas, according to the Braslan Seed Growers' Co., within two weeks of cutting time. Some onion crops in the river districts are reported as affected.

ACCORDING to the June crop report of the United States department of agriculture, the estimated value of clover as bought was $12.14 against $9.99 in 1915; as sold, $9.98 against $8.14 in 1915. Timothy is quoted as bought at $4.04 as compared with $3.46 and as sold at $3.33 against $2.75 a year ago.

Connecticut Seed Crops.

Orange.—On the tenth day of the month, while this is being written, the rain is coming down in torrents and we have to report one of the strangest week's weather ever known in June from the fact that for the past six days it has rained every day and every night, some days raining very hard, so that the ground is thoroughly soaked with numerous ponds of standing water, in some places covering growing crops. In many cases a man can hardly traverse the fields except in rubber boots, much less a horse, which means the weeds are making rank growth as well as the crops. It is fortunate, indeed, that we did not have this weather three weeks ago,

Kirby B. White

otherwise the corn would have rotted in the ground. As it is, sweet corn has made a good stand and now only needs the weather for cultivating and hoeing. Onion, beet, carrot, turnip and kale have all started off unusually well and present indications could hardly be better with an increased acreage on all the above items.

It looks as if Connecticut would again come into its own as a seed growing center and the widespread demand for these seeds would indicate a fair market and a return again to the balmy days in the seed growing business. The trade seems to be willing to pay a fair price, but with the high cost of labor, fertilizers, land and horses and everything that goes into the production of a crop, surely present prices are warranted and even at the present level of values do not show anything too attractive in return for seed crops as compares with other crops that can be produced at so much less expense.

Number one loose, native timothy hay is selling at $35 per ton, potatoes and onions at record prices and the season as far as it has progressed in the market garden line shows very much advanced prices for early vegetables over the prices of 1915.

Stricker Seed Co., Asheville, N. C.

Securing a charter from the secretary of state, July 5, increasing its capital stock to $30,000, the Stricker Seed Company of Asheville, N. C., located at 22 West College street, is undergoing a complete reorganization. The company will remodel its establishment, install new equipment and seed fixtures in preparation for an extensive mail order business in addition to a large wholesale and retail business. L. R. Stricker, the former proprietor, conducted the business at its present location for many years, but owing to ill health is forced to give up an active part in the management. D. P. Durban will succeed as manager of the store. Mr. Durban was in the seed business in Augusta, Ga., for 11 years, and for several years previously in Birmingham, Ala.

M. F. Hoffman is president of the newly organized concern, Mrs. Annie D. Martin is vice-president, and Stephen Adams, secretary. The other stockholders are J. G. Adams, J. G. Merrimon and L. R. Stricker. The store is on the corner of College street and Lexington avenue, and contains a basement and three large store rooms.

Henry Field Seed Co. Has Good Year.

At the annual meeting of the Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, Ia., held July 3, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Henry Field, president; A. L. P. Thompson, vice-president; F. E. Tunnick, secretary-treasurer. The annual report shows the company to be in excellent condition. A dividend of 20 per cent was declared to stockholders, and the company also issued to employees a 10 per cent "labor dividend," based upon the amount of wages each received during the year. The company filled 133,652 orders during the past year, amounting to $412,912, showing a substantial increase both in number of shipments and money value over 1915 sales.

Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Ass'n.

The eighth annual convention of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association, which was held at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, was a well attended and enthusiastic meeting. President A. E. Reynolds, of Crawfordsville, Ind., wielded the gavel and carried out the programme in his effective way and introduced a recommendation which is bound to bear good fruit, namely a committee on trade rules, which was duly named.

William Jacot, New York, and Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass., were unanimously elected to membership, following which the reports of officers and committees were heard, the report of the legislative committee, Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., chairman, proving of special interest. A special committee was named to draft resolutions on the death of Albert McCullough, Cincinnati, O., and through its chairman, George S. Green, of the Illinois Seed Co., Chicago, reported as follows:

McCULLOUGH RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, In the death of Albert McCullough during the past year, the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association has lost one of its most active, capable and untiring members, be it

Resolved, That this association in convention assembled at Chicago, this nineteenth day of June, 1916, hereby expresses, not only its sense of loss as an organization, but also the heartfelt sorrow of each member individually, and be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the association and that the secretary be instructed to transmit a copy thereof to the family of Mr. McCullough.

The resolutions were adopted by a rising and unanimous vote. Eloquent tributes were paid to the virtues of Mr. McCullough by Messrs. Green, Curtis Nye Smith and others. The report of Curtis Nye Smith, counsel for the association, was heard and approved.

At a meeting of the board of directors held June 19, the following officers for the ensuing year were elected: A. E. Reynolds, Crawfordsville, Ind., president; C. C. Massie, Minneapolis, Minn., vice-president; Wm. R. Jossman, Detroit, Mich., secretary-treasurer. John A. Smith, Toledo, O.; Geo. S. Green, Chicago, and E. T. Stanford were appointed committee on arbitration for the ensuing year. The present trustees are: Geo. R. Green, W. G. Scarlett and E. T. Stanford, expiring in 1917; C. C. Massie, J. Chas. McCullough and R. W. Pommer, expiring in 1918; A. E. Reynolds, J. H. Smith and M. H. Duryea, expiring in 1919, the latter elected at this meeting. The following committee was appointed on trade rules, its object being to standardize rules for business Jefferson, Louisville, Ky.; F. W. Annin, Toledo, O.; M. H. Duryea, New York; D. I. Bushnell, St. Louis, Mo.; and Chas. Dickinson, Chicago. Curtis Nye Smith was retained as counsel for the coming year.

During the convention an interesting discussion was had on the subject of the status of ownership and determination of same in F. O. B. and C. I. F. transactions; also as to the New York and Virginia laws relative to tagging and labeling containers to describe contents thereof. A brief adjourned session was held on the morning of June 20, at which routine business only was transacted, the secretary's report having been delayed in transit.

At the closing meeting, June 20, two additional names were added to the arbitration committee, H. B. McCullough, Cincinnati, O., and Marshall H. Duryea, New York. The auditing committee, Messrs. Jefferson, Scarlett, and Wood, reported that the books of the treasurer were correct.

The Pacific Seed Company, Portland, Ore., was admitted to membership. The secretary was directed to communicate to the American Seed Trade Association officials the names of the legislative committee who would go to Minnesota to attend the seed analysts' meeting in July, and request that a like representation be named from the A. S. T. A. to appear jointly with the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association representatives before the official seed analysts' convention.

Sweet Corn.

Last season we came across a plot of sweet corn which forced an old truth back to our mind; namely, the fallacy of using early varieties for late work. This is a common mistake; for we cannot calculate the number of days it takes to mature an early variety and subtract from a given date of early frosts in the fall. There are several reasons. One is that these early varieties all lack vigor to overcome the intense summer heat and often drouth during their early career; another, and one little understood, is that nature hastens maturity when there is danger of a short growth period. Thus, these varieties come premature—setting small and often worthless ears, in an effort to reproduce. It has been our experience that for late sweet corn there is nothing better than the strong variety, well timed. We have found Country Gentleman and Stowell's Evergreen the best for this purpose, and the date of last planting may vary from June 20 to July 10. In Ohio we may set July 1 as the surest date for late sweet corn, but sometimes under a warm late fall the latter date is better. Very often moisture conditions are unfavorable for the young corn, especially if interplanted among early potatoes, cabbages, etc. To help along we should therefore carefully thin the corn to proper distance, keep weeds down, and hoe and cultivate faithfully. An old grower told me once that the greatest enemy to fine corn is a perfect stand—he meant too many plants per acre.

MARKETMAN.

French Truffles.

The Journal of the Society of Arts gives an interesting account of how the truffles of Perigord and Sarladais are gathered for sale. The districts of Perigord (Department of Dordogne) and Sarladais are famous for their truffles. These highly prized fungi make their appearance during the first days of August, and are gathered from then to the end of March. They are found under a variety of oak called the truffle oak (chene truffler), also near the evergreen oak (chene vert), and the hazel (noisetier). Those who make a specialty of gathering truffles are called "caveurs de truffes." They search for them with trained dogs or pigs, the animal locating the hidden truffle by scent. The truffles are gathered every day or two, and carried by the "caveur" to the nearest market town, where he sells them to commission merchants, who buy for the large dealers. The normal price for truffles is five francs per kilogramme (about 4 shillings per pound), but sometimes the "caveur" receives as much as 12 and 15 francs (nine shillings sixpence and 12 shillings per pound). The first-of-the-season truffles are called "truffles a la marque," and are inferior in quality to those gathered later. "Truffles a la marque" are black outside and white inside, and have little or no fragrance. With the appearance of cold weather the truffles improve in quality and acquire a greater fragrance. The fine quality truffle is black outside, black and gray grained inside (noire marbree). The truffles grown in Perigord and Sarladais possess the most fragrance, and are generally superior to those grown in other sections of France. In 1913—the latest year for which detailed statistics are available—France exported 451,500 pounds of fresh, dried and pickled truffles, 21,600 pounds of which went to the United States. These shipments had an average value of about five shillings sixpence per pound.—London Gardeners' Chronicle.

New Early Flowering Giant Pansies

Or Winter Blooming

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the Summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President;
Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.

Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June, 1917.

American Association of Nurserymen.

PRESIDENT WELCH'S ADDRESS.

President Welch, in his able address delivered at the forty-first annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen at Milwaukee, Wis., June 28-30, a synopsis of which was given in these columns last week, brought out a number of points that were received with much interest by the members in attendance, among the more important being the following:

Legislation.—The work of the legislative committee has been greatly benefited by the employment of Hon. Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass., as general counsel for the association. He has given careful attention to all legislative questions which have arisen during the year, one of the most important being the question of quarantine by the federal horticultural board against the importation of currants and gooseberries on account of the white pine blister rust. The board also seriously considered quarantine against these products from the eastern section of the United States into other states.

Transportation.—On June 1, 1915, rates on carload lots in the official classification were advanced from the fifth class to the fourth class in spite of protests of the shipper. C. M. Sizemore, chairman of the transportation committee, has worked faithfully during the past year to have the former rating restored, but so far has not succeeded. An organized effort should be made to secure a minimum of 14,560 pounds for small cars in both official and southern classification territory. Shippers will find this minimum a decided advantage in western territory, and I am confident it is an advantage to the railroad companies. It encourages carlot shipments, thereby saving the expense of loading, transferring and hauling of many local shipments by employees. It also insures more prompt delivery, a great advantage to both carrier and consignee.

Tariff.—Personally, I favor an advance in the rate on nursery stock not otherwise specified in order to check the importation of foreign stock and give greater protection to the American grower. A large amount of nursery stock is imported annually that can be grown and sold at a profit by American nurserymen at prices we pay for it abroad, after adding the cost of delivery and duties.

Arbitration.—The Detroit convention provided for an arbitration committee, through which disputes among members of the association may be settled without expensive law suits. I wish to impress upon you the wisdom and fairness of arbitrating all disputes that may arise. The committee is composed of fair-minded men of the highest type, well qualified to act as arbitrators. This committee serves without compensation and the men composing it only exemplify the loyalty of our membership.

Free Distribution of Nursery Stock.—In some sections of the United States government experiment stations are undertaking the free distribution of nursery stock. In one case which has come to my attention a large railroad corporation has established a nursery with the idea of distributing its products without charge to people living along its lines. County demonstration agents have in some instances undertaken to provide their people with stock at the actual cost of growing, the legitimate expense of advertising, personal solicitation, placing of stock, etc., to be paid out of state and federal funds. The practical effect of this is disastrous to the nursery business, creating the impression that nurserymen, who are doing business in a legitimate manner, are selling at exorbitant prices. Our state, district and national organizations should co-operate in every way possible to prevent such practices.

Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.
Treasurer American Association of Nurserymen.

Nomenclature.—The committee on nomenclature has been very active and has done much toward making their work permanent. It has arranged for definite co-operation with other organizations of a similar character, and is in a fair way to secure an appropriation of $3,000 by congress to promote the work.

Publicity.—This is one of the many important questions that we have discussed for some time, and many of our progressive nurserymen believe that the time for action has arrived. It is a big question, and deserves our best attention. Publicity in many other lines of business has been productive of very profitable results, and if we can largely increase the interest in and the demand for our products throughout the nation by a reasonable expenditure of money through systematic publicity, it should be worthy of a trial, providing some practical method of securing the necessary funds can be devised.

Unclaimed Nursery Stock Regulations.

In accordance with a recommendation of the secretary of agriculture of the United States, instructions have been issued to the effect that unclaimed nursery stock may be sold without the certificate of an officer of the department of agriculture under the following conditions:

(1) Where the collector shall find that a permit has been issued by the department for the nursery stock.

(2) That foreign certificates of inspection are attached to the containers, and

(3) That the latter are plainly marked to show the general nature and quantity of the contents, the name and address of the exporter, the name and address of the consignee, and the country and locality where the stock was grown.

Unclaimed nursery stock not complying with the requirements mentioned above to be destroyed under customs supervision.

Park Supts. Annual Convention.

The executive committee of the American Association of Park Superintendents has fixed the date for the holding of the eighteenth annual convention of that organization at New Orleans October 10-12.

A program of lectures and papers is being prepared, to be presented by eminent men connected with the park and recreation movement. There will also be numerous social features, outdoor demonstrations and inspection trips, and inasmuch as this will be the first convention of the organization in a city south of Washington, D. C., it is expected that it will be a record breaker in the matter of attendance, because the trip to the south will be a popular one in October and there will no doubt be a large attendance of park executives of cities of the south, which have been advancing rapidly in recent years in the way of park development.

Wm. Allen, secretary of the New Orleans Association of Commerce, is chairman of the local committee on arrangements. Announcement will be made later of the convention programme in detail. The officers of the organization are: Emil T. Mische, Portland, Ore., president; Roland W. Cotterill, Seattle, Wash., secretary.

Aesculus at the Arnold Arboretum.

Aesculus discolor.—It is fortunate that the scarlet-flowered variety (var. mollis) of this buckeye is hardy here, for the flowers are not surpassed in brilliancy by the flowers of any other horse-chestnut. On the typical Aesculus discolor the flowers have a red calyx and yellow petals generally more or less flushed with rose. This is a much less common plant than the variety mollis on which both the calyx and the corolla are bright red. This is a very common plant in Georgia and Alabama and ranges west to southeastern Missouri and to eastern Texas. It is the only red-flowered buckeye which has been found west of the Mississippi river, and it sometimes reaches the size and assumes the habit of a small tree. On the Edwards plateau in western Texas there is a yellow-flowered form (var. flavescens) which, because it has yellow flowers, was long mistaken by botanists for the Appalachian tree buckeye, Aesculus octandra. Aesculus discolor and its varieties can be distinguished from the other American species by the soft covering of pale down on the lower surface of the leaflets, and from all species of the genus except Aesculus californica by the pale orange-brown color of the seeds. Aesculus discolor, var. mollis, is just coming into flower in the large bed in the rear of the horse-chestnut group on the right hand side of the Meadow Road. Here it is growing with several plants of Aesculus georgiana.—This shrub, which is a native of central Georgia, is covered again with its compact clusters of yellow and rose-colored flowers. Perfectly able apparently to support the new England climate, this buckeye is one of the handsomest and most interesting southern shrubs which the Arboretum has made known and introduced into gardens.

Aesculus Briotii.—This French form of the so-called red-flowered hybrid horsechestnut (Aesculus carnea) is in flower in the collection. It is the most brilliantly colored of all the forms of Aesculus carnea, and few trees hardy in this climate bear such showy flowers. It begins to flower when not more than 10 feet high; it is perfectly hardy, and it should be seen more generally in American gardens.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, June 2, 1916.
